They've been dumping sewerage on us for years. Quincy Bay is polluted and we can't use our beaches. Now the MWRA wants to bring sludge to the shipyard while they sit in plush new offices in Roxbury.

Liquor License Transfer Approved

By JANE ARENA

The common victualer and all-alcoholic license as held by Glasgow Pub, Inc., doing business as Callahan's Tap, 296 Copeland St., was transferred to Edward P. McNulty of Weymouth at Tuesday's meeting of the License Board.

McNulty, whose experience in the restaurant and bar business spans 16 years and includes positions of manager at the Wharf Restaurant in Boston and Dillon's in Vermont, told the Board that he plans to operate under the name Callahan's Tap "at least for the first few years."

Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue told McNulty that the Health Department had ordered both bathrooms on the establishment to be upgraded. McNulty said he planned to do so but that no other major alterations are planned. He told the board that only the menu will be significantly changed, because he wants to establish a reputation as a "good neighborhood restaurant rather than a men's bar."

Police Chief Francis Finn

told McNulty that "getting along with neighbors in the area should be a top priority. He also suggested that only Massachusetts drivers' licenses be accepted as customer identification at the bar, and that all bartenders take part in an alcohol recreation program.

The license was granted pending a team inspection by the City Health, Fire and Building Departments.

McNulty said he would probably not be open until some time in October.

License Board Briefs

• Granted a request from Mary Kelly of St. Mary's Home and School Association for a one-day all-alcoholic license for Saturday, Oct. 14 from 8 p.m. to midnight to raise funds for the school.

• Granted a request from Frank P. Brillo of Quincy Youth Football, to hold tag days Friday and Saturday, Sept. 15-16. Raindates are Sept. 22-23.

• Granted a request from Quincy Legion Post, 2 Mechanic St. to hold a flea market inside the hall Saturday, Sept. 16 from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. The doors will be open to the public at 8 a.m.

According To QCAP Poll: High Cost Of Housing No. 1 Issue

According to a poll conducted by Quincy Community Action Programs Inc., Quincy voters support by wide margins efforts by all levels of government to address the multiple problems created by the lack of affordable housing.

The survey of over 400 voters reveals that the high cost of housing in the city is an issue of grave concern for most people. It also yields evidence that candidates for elected office could do so well by proposing an innovative city program for housing.

Based on responses to a question asking voters to name the most important issue in Quincy today, education, overdevelopment and affordable housing emerged as the three key issues.

For 25% of those who will vote in the next city election, affordable housing is the No. 1 issue.

Voters were asked to limit their choice to one of five issues including education, affordable housing, overdevelopment, crime and high city taxes.

Because the survey was specific to housing, voters were able to express their opinions in several ways. For example, 85-90% responded that they believe it is more difficult to buy or rent a home in Quincy today than it was 10 years ago.

This overwhelming response clearly indicates that both homeowners and renters are aware of the housing crisis in this city.

According to survey results, 53% of those who vote regularly in the city felt that the federal government should increase spending on housing.

A question about state spending on housing drew a strong involuntary response regarding the state fiscal crisis. Even so it is highly significant that even that 73% responded by saying that the state should either maintain its current level (23%) or increase spending on housing (50%).

Not surprisingly, among women who vote regularly, 59% felt that state funds for housing should be increased. This statistic reaffirms what has been learned from national and state polls which repeatedly reflect a gender gap where women are more likely to express concern over issues like affordable housing.

According to Rosemary Wahlberg, Executive Director of QCAP Inc. voters have slightly different attitudes about state and federal funding for three reasons.

- First, older voters remember that prior to 1980, the federal government was very much involved in housing.

- Second, everyone recognizes that the state is in tough fiscal shape, - and

- Third, voters have begun to accept the concept of the public-private partnership. This acceptance is evidenced by the response to questions regarding housing programs in Quincy. While 58% of those who vote regularly said they would be more likely to vote for a candidate who proposed a housing program in the city, 65% expressed support for a candidate who proposed a program involving a sharing of housing costs with developers.

Wahlberg expressed surprise at the large percentage of voters, 68%, to express support for setting controls on rent increases. Of particular significance is the fact that the majority of respondents were mature homeowners who vote regularly.

According to Wahlberg, there are lessons to be learned from this survey for politicians at every level of government.

"Quincy voters reflect the mood of Massachusetts. There is a desire to attack the housing crunch, but only a serious, well-reasoned attempt to do so will be acceptable."

Wahlberg said she hopes that candidates for elected office will listen to the message of the survey and will develop their own ideas for addressing the issue of affordable housing.

"I don't expect the city government to eliminate the problem entirely, but we have to at least establish a housing policy. I want to emphasize that while we need programs, not just any will do, and will be clear as to who will pay for it and who will benefit."

Kelly, City Reach Agreement On $95,000 Back Taxes

The License Board Tuesday reviewed and approved an agreement between the city of Quincy and Peter Kelly concerning the terms of payment of $95,000 in outstanding real estate taxes on 14 properties in the city.

City Solicitor Don Hansen told the board that approval and signatures of board members were needed on the agreement according to a city ordinance. He said he has already met with Mayor Francis McCauley who approved and signed the agreement.

Under the terms of the agreement, Kelly will pay half of the real estate taxes to the city on all property he owns or controls for the year 1989 by Oct. 15. The balance will be paid on or before Nov. 15.

Hansen told the Board that Kelly has been "very cooperative" in the matter, and said that he does not anticipate a problem in the payment of the taxes.

Peanut Butter, Canned Pork, Butter To Be Distributed

Mary Brelsford, Director of Community Programs announces that peanut butter will be distributed to needy residents during the next commodity distribution.

There will also be canned pork and butter distributed at this time. Distribution is scheduled for the week of Sept. 18-22.

The Hunger Relief Act extended the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Program for two years and congress allocated $120 million for "high nutrient caloric density" foods which must also be desirable and packagable, hence peanut butter.

Peanut Butter is a staple of most families and prices range from $1.50 to $3 per pound. So families will save around $6 for peanut butter, $6 for pork and $2.50 for butter, for around $14.50 worth of commodities.

Residents of Quincy, Weymouth and Milton must meet eligibility guidelines or receive assistance under one of the following programs.

Anyone receiving any of the following: Veterans benefits, fuel assistance, SSI, Head Start participation Subsidized public housing or income at or below the poverty guide lines is eligible.

Distribution in Quincy will be at the Sons of Italy Social Center and the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, Sept. 18, 19, 20, from 1 to 4 p.m.

Contact person is Mary Brelsford who can be reached at 471-0796.

Quincy residents who receive assistance under one of the following programs are eligible to receive butter, peanut butter and canned pork.

- Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC)
- General Relief (GR)
- Supplemental Security Income (SSI)

BUSINESS INSURANCE IS GOOD BUSINESS

As true today as it has been down through the years, the primary purpose of insurance is to eliminate a risk which may cause a loss that an individual cannot bear alone. The bottom line is, people today are interested in the insurance policy as a protective umbrella which affords a measure of protection against the unknown.

The prudent businessman, especially in these days of rising costs and external hazards, should most definitely secure a comprehensive insurance program that will meet all the contingencies he may encounter. For anyone who is vitally interested in the protection of his investment, a policy can be tailor-made which will meet each individual requirement and specific risk factors.

Our company can provide basic and comprehensive policies at premium costs that everyone can afford. Remember — business insurance is good business!

Asians And Politics

Someday the city councillor from Ward 6 might very well be of Asian ancestry.

With the great influx of Asians into North Quincy, this would seem to be a good possibility.

But it may be a long time coming if voter registration figures mean anything.

They indicate the day of an Asian political figure in Quincy appears to be a long way off.

Since last year's Presidential election there have been relatively few new voters registered. About 300 to 400 or so.

And of those, only a handful were Asians.

"At this stage they don't seem to be that interested in registering to vote," says City Clerk John Gillis.

"They may be trying to get accustomed to their new surroundings and the problems of everyday life in what is a new world for them."

"But someday, like those of Irish and Italian descent, they may turn to politics to better themselves.

Someday they will have a political impact on the city.

GILLIS

SPEAKING OF VOTER registration Quincy has lost voters since last year. A lot of them.

Although there were 300 to 400 new voters, the city has lost a net of 3,004 voters since last year's Presidential election.

Last year there were 51,537 registered voters. Today there are 48,533.

Where did the 3,004 go?

They move into the city, says Gillis, and register to vote because it is a Presidential election.

Then many of them move on for various reasons. Many of them are apartment dwellers who leave for job changes or take up residence in other communities. And, of course, death takes it toll, too.

Municipal elections in Quincy are, as you know, non-partisan. But in case you are interested, Democrats are still strongly in control in a community that was for many years staunch Republican.

Of the 48,533 registered voters, 29,563 are Democrats, 7,080 Republican and 11,890 Independent.

That means Democrats outnumber Republicans by 22,483 and Independents by 17,673. Democrats also outnumber Republicans and Independents combined by 10,593.

And, any candidate running for office in Quincy had better woo the woman voter.

Registered female voters number 27,478 to 21,052 male. That's a 6,426 margin.

THERE ARE GOING to be two winners and two losers in the mayoral preliminary election.

Question: If Peter O'Connell is nominated and Steve McGrath isn't, where will the McGrath support go?

Or, if McGrath is nominated and O'Connell isn't, where will his followers go?

If James Sheets is nominated with O'Connell who gets the McGrath and Joseph LaRaia supporters?

If Joseph LaRaia is nominated with McGrath, Sheets or O'Connell who gets what then?

Interesting. Time will tell.

ONE OF THE RECENT Quincy Recreation Department's Arts and Crafts exhibits was a paper mache alligator created by youngsters at Palmer Park.

It won third place.

Park Department head Ray Cattaneo would have given it first place for realistic honors one night in his office where some of the exhibits were temporarily stored.

CATTANEO

The alligator started making a noise, which would startle anyone. But upon investigating, Cattaneo discovered the reason for the noise: a mouse inside the alligator, nibbling at the paper mache.

SMALL WORLD: Peter Kenney, Mayor McCauley's executive secretary, recently returned from a vacation to San Francisco.

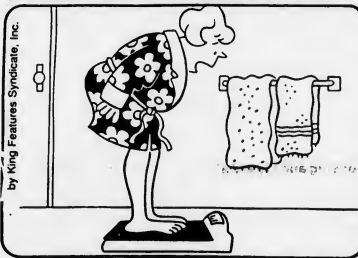

One night he decided he'd like a pizza. He walked into a pizza spot, ordered one and said to the man: "Make it a good one. I'm from Boston where they make the best pizza."

"I know," said the guy taking the order. "I'm from Randolph."

Mayor Race Close Down To Wire

hours until another one could be called for and brought in.

But, as an insurance policy this year, Gillis plans to have a second one at City Hall as a back-up in case there should be a problem.

The nine school committee candidates are:

Incumbents Mary Collins, 116 Lansdowne St. and Frank Santoro, 40 Haviliend St.; Michael Jovanovic, 62 Town Hill St.; Michael C. Preble, 27 Crosby St.; Richard Crespi, 73 Ruggles St.; Ronald Mariano, 57 Presidential Drive; Gary D. Fine, 88 Lancaster St.; Judith P. Brams, 107 Atlantic St.; and John H. McDuff, Jr., 216 South St.

Incumbent Margaret "Peggy" Nigro has decided not to see re-election, leaving one of the three seats vacant.

The six top candidates will be on the November ballot.

There are no preliminary races for councillor-at-large, ward councillor and the two seats on the school committee, because there were not enough candidates for preliminary contests.

Given the fact that the mayoral campaign has been relatively low-keyed and there are no councillor preliminary races, Gillis estimates turnout will be less than 50 percent.

Moreover, he said it will be up to the mayoral candidates to get the vote out. Gillis noted that if there were preliminary races for councillor-at-large and ward councillor, turnout would probably be higher.

As always, the weather could play a role in the turnout. Dry, comfortable weather tends to bring out more voters than wet, uncomfortable conditions.

Gillis also said the slow mayoral campaign has resulted in an extremely slow voter registration period.

Since last October, about 300 to 400 new voters have enrolled in Quincy, compared to 1,200 or more new voters for an average municipal election.

Besides the mayor's and four-year school committee races, the November final election will include several other races.

There are five candidates vying for three councillor-at-large seats. They are: Incumbents Timothy Cahill, 23 Summer St. and Patricia Toland, 82 Cedar St.; Michael Cheney, 94 Rock Island Rd.; Susan Gallagher, 21 Willow St.; and Denis Tardo, 141 Sea St.

Cheney is giving up his Ward 1 seat to run at-large.

There are also two races for ward councillors.

In Ward 1, Peter Kolson of 215 Palmer St. and Marcia Olinto of 8 Bayview Ave., oppose each other.

In Ward 4, Thomas Fabrizio of 36 Reardon St. and Joseph Shea, 55 Tinson Rd., will seek the seat being vacated by Sheets.

The other contested race is for the two-year vacancy term on the School Committee, created by the death of Christopher Kennedy, School Committee. Running for that seat are Mary "Jane" Powers, 16 Roberta Ln. and former school committee man Charles Sweeny, 49 Ames St.

Ward councillors running unopposed and thereby assured of reelection are: Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, Ward 2; Lawrence Chretien, Ward 3; Charles Phelan, Ward 5 and Thomas Nutley, Ward 6.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Merchants Motorcade For Parking Areas

A 75-car motorcade of Wollaston, North Quincy and Norfolk Downs merchants and businessmen descended upon a City Council hearing to plead for their share of city-financed off-street parking.

"Parking is the life blood of retail business," said Frank Remick of Remick's of Quincy, who attended with William A. O'Connell of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce and George A. Yarrington of the Quincy Taxpayers Association.

No opposition was registered to the taking of land off Chapman St., Wollaston, for parking purposes but there were mild protests to similar landtaking off Vane St., Norfolk Downs.

"What does the city do for homeowners?" asked Edward F. Hayes of 19 Vane St., "Are we going to become a city of parking spaces and no dwellers?"

ONE JOB FOR DELLA CHIESA

Plan E Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, seeking election under the new Plan A charter, promised that if elected he would serve the remaining year of his term as State Rep and not seek re-election.

But he reaffirmed his belief that his service as a state legislator for the past four years while also holding jobs as city councillor and mayor enabled him to render more efficient service to Quincy.

One of his three opponents in the Oct. 8 preliminary election, Laurence J. Curtin, said he doubted if anyone can "properly serve his city and his state simultaneously in two different major offices."

Meanwhile, Frank H. Foy, a third mayoral candidate, told a Germantown gathering that he favored a second road to Germantown to take some of the load off Palmer St., its only access to the rest of the city.

Health Boards Unite To Combat Environmental Threats

Board of Health officials from Weymouth, Breintree and Quincy, have formed a Tri-Town Board to combat three major industrial proposals for facilities located on their common border within a quarter mile of each other.

The health officials say their communities are exposed to serious health and environmental hazards from the three projects: Clean Harbors Inc.'s proposed 90,000,000 pounds per year hazardous waste incinerator, Boston Edison's proposed 300 Megawatt power plant (with future expansion to 1200 Megawatt possible - per company officials) and the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority's sludge processing plant that handles sewage from 43 metropolitan communities including the city of Boston.

The facilities are located with a quarter mile radius in the Fore River Basin and are completely surrounded by heavily populated neighborhoods. There are approximately 30,000 residents within one mile of the facilities.

Object of most of the concern is Clean Harbors Inc.'s proposed hazardous waste incinerator. Health officials point out that health studies conducted as part of the firms Preliminary Project Impact Report (P.P.I.R.) show that the three communities already have elevated incidence and mortality rates of cancer in comparison to the State as a whole and in comparison to their matched control communities in the studies. They say that the State is allowing the siting process to proceed with gross disregard for the health impacts on the already ailing communities.

The Tri-Town Board criticized the air modeling used in the study as well. Clean Harbors' used wind data from Boston's Logan Airport for their air dispersion models. Logan Airport is 17 miles from the Fore River site and wind patterns vary greatly between both sites due to major topographical differences. They say that dispersion of particulate emissions will vary greatly from the modeling due to those differences.

The Tri-Town Board is appealing to the Hazardous Waste Facility Site Safety Council, a board made up of state regulatory officials and appointees of Governor Michael Dukakis to extend the comment period on the 6,000 page P.P.I.R. from 30 days to 90 days. They say this is necessary because of state budget cuts to their Technical Assistance Grants from $300,000 to $114,000. The budget cuts were a result of the state's ongoing fiscal crisis.

These grants were to be used by the communities to hire consultants and attorneys to review the highly technical P.P.I.R. Governor Dukakis has cut the grants leaving the communities virtually defenseless against the resources of Clean Harbors Inc. That company has spent approximately $3,000,000 on the siting process to date.

The Tri-Town Board will pursue assistance and support from national health groups as the siting process continues.

Lydon-Russell Renews Lofty Oaks Affiliation

Lydon-Russell Funeral Home of Quincy has renewed its affiliation with Lofty Oaks Association, a New Hampshire organization dedicated to reforestation and conservation efforts in Massachusetts.

The support of the Lydon-Russell Funeral Home has contributed to the planting of more than 12,458 trees on Massachusetts' public lands.

The firm arranges to have a tree planted for each service they perform to provide a living memorial in honor of the deceased and to renew the forest life of Massachusetts.

The memorial trees are planted in the spring and fall. The program is part of a large endeavor, to restore the countryside with the eternal beauty of living trees.

After each service, close family members and friends are informed that the memorial tree has been arranged for by John Lydon Jr. of the Lydon-Russell Funeral Home. When the certified nurserymen have planted the tree, the designated people will receive a certificate of planting suitable for framing and keeping in the family's history.

Houghs Neck Carousel Will Stay In Quincy

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

The historic Houghs Neck carousel, after a setback in May, is again slated for Tidemill Plaza at 572-618 Southern Artery.

This is subject to final approval by the Quincy Planning Board at the end of September, and confirmation by the Quincy City Council. A joint announcement was made by Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, developer Richard Buccheri of R J B Management Corp., and Domenick DeAngelis, whose family own the carousel.

"This is a significant step," Cheney noted. "This is a great time for the City of Quincy and for the (DeAngelis) family. It will be a monument to their father and mother - the mother died five months ago. We wanted to see it stay in Quincy. We will appreciate having it back in the City of Quincy as a part of its history - like the Adams homes."

The "flying horses" will occupy 6,500 square feet of the commercial development, formerly the Duane property. This will include a Super Purity Supreme Market, a restaurant and several "family-oriented" stores, according to Buccheri.

Also contemplated is a function room below the carousel to house artifacts and enlarged pictures of the original Houghs Neck area. There will be a Shipbuilding Museum adjacent to the carousel, with windows also shaped like portholes. Also planned is a pier at the waterfront, making the plaza accessible by water as well as by land. There is also the possibility of scenic boat rides.

Overall footage of the project will run to 98,000 square feet. A walkway will surround the entire plaza.

Originally, site was to have a 172-unit eight-story condominium. Because of the lack of interest in purchasing condominiums, this plan was dropped. All buildings in present plans will be limited to two stories. The cost will be between $15 and $17 million dollars, and will return an estimated $282,000 a year to Quincy in real estate taxes.

William McMillen, architect from Hingham, explained that cost of the carousel and museums was aided by a grant from the National Trust for Public Lands, a private foundation, which was interested in historic restorations and in the carousel. Land and construction of the building are being contributed by Buccheri's firm.

On display mounted on a wheeled pedestal was "Silver," a carousel horse restored at a cost of $2,000 for Antonetta DeAngelis, late mother of the family of seven.

"This is one of 42 horses from our carousel," DeAngelis said. "We appreciate that is going to stay in Quincy. We have had offers from New York - the carousel was made in Tonawanda N.Y. in 1920 - from Cranston R.I., but we have been leaning toward Quincy."

The carousel was in operation on Fensmore Ave., in Houghs Neck from 1940 to 1954 when the land was claimed by eminent domain by Quincy for the Great Hill School site. After the school was razed, Veterans Memorial Park was located there.

Carousel parts were kept beneath the DeAngelis home for 35 years. Brought out for renovation last year, "only the paint had deteriorated," DeAngelis noted. They were sent to The Carousel Works in Mansfield Ohio for renovation, now nearing completion.

Plans call for a year 'round activity for a heated glassed-in carousel. It will carry seasonal decorations both from within and outside the building. It will be in operation by members of the DeAngelis family 12 months a year.

Specific impact on Southern Artery is expected - there will be a green appearance, said Buccheri. "With greenery along the area, there will be a gazebo at the entrance."

The firm will also contribute roadwork restoration along the artery and there will be a view of the shore, to create a water-shore scenic affect. Employee parking will be beneath the buildings and an ample parking space for customers will be provided.

Once started, it will take 12 to 16 months for completion, state Buccheri. This is expected by mid-1991.

Introduced by Cheney were members of the DeAngelis family present: Mrs. Clementine Brill, John DeAngelis, Mrs. Jenny Smith of Westwood, Joseph DeAngelis, and Domenick DeAngelis, their spokesman.

Also, H. Hobart Holly, historian and Doris Oberg, vice president of the Quincy Historical Society; Dorothy Laing and Ruth Wainwright, Houghs Neck historians.

Jennifer Goba Completes Basic Training

Army National Guard Private 1st Class Jennifer Goba has completed basic training at Fort Dix, N.J.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions. She is the daughter of Ronald J. and Susan J. Goba of 43 Elm Ave., Wollaston.

The private is a 1987 graduate of Hingham High School.

Michelle Sevigny of Dorchester was granted a license Tuesday to open a small secondhand clothing store, Michelle's Vesterwear, at 72 Billings Rd., North Quincy. This is the former site of Pick of The Litter Pet Shop.

License Approved For Second Hand Clothing Store

The License Board stipulated that all clothing must be washed or dry-cleaned before it is displayed for sale. Police Chief Francis Finn said that the clothing should be properly cleaned before it even enters the store.

Sevigny told the board she plans to sell clothing and accessories from the period of 1860 to 1960, including hats, clothing, handbags, linens, lace, fabric and jewelry. Her store would not be in competition with consignment shops in the area, she said, because she will not sell current fashion clothing.

Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue said that, although the city does not allow the sale of second-hand clothing at flea markets, she understands the need for customers to have the option for used clothing. She said that the granting of the license does not "Open the door for one-day flea markets."

Sevigny said the premises would be totally cleaned before she opens for business and that some alterations to the building would be done as well. The board said that a copy of the construction plans must be approved before construction can begin.

The hours of operation for the store will be Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Board Approves Restaurant License

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from George Papastathopoulos (Papás) of Easton for the common victualer license as formerly held by Royal Pizza, doing business as Jimmy's House of Pizza, 499 Washington St.

Atty. Mark Reed, representing Papás, told the board that Papás had operated the restaurant prior to 1986 when he sold it to new owners. He did, however, hold a financial interest in the establishment, Reed said.

Due to financial problems, the restaurant was closed in May of this year when the Department of Internal Revenue seized assets of the establishment. Reed told the Board he is confident that Papás will be successful in operating the 32-seat restaurant as he was before 1986. He has had 12 years experience in the business and currently owns two other restaurants in Easton and Abington.

According to the records of the License Board, the license fees on the site have not been paid, so Papás is legally able to have the license transferred back into his name.

Police Chief Francis Finn cautioned Papás that one of the "biggest problems" of the establishment is "unruly kids" congregating in the area of the restaurant, and suggested that this may have contributed to its closing. He told Papás that he should consider it a priority to discourage groups of kids hanging around the restaurant.

A request from Anthony M. DeAngelo for a Motor II license to buy, display and sell five used cars from Only Volvos, 350 Sea St., was continued for two weeks Tuesday so that License Board members can view the site and review the records.

DeAngelo told the board he plans to rent five spaces behind the K.Z. Services station at 346-350 Sea St. He said he had spoke to Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney who had no problems with the license.

However, the board noted that the service station has been the subject to numerous complaints from area neighbors concerning several cars parked in the back of the station.

Conservation Enforcement

Officer Heather Sargent was also before the board to attest to neighborhood complaints regarding the lack of grease and oil traps on the property. She asked that the traps be installed at the site.

The board will visit the site and also review the records to discern what licenses are currently held at K.Z. Services.

"The Choice is Clear"

'What I Would Do As The Next Mayor'

The Quincy Sun invited each of the four mayoral candidates to state in his own words why he thinks he should be elected and what he would do for Quincy as its next mayor including what he considers his major goals.

The theme: "What I Would Do For Quincy As Its Next Mayor."

We asked that their response be in approximately 1,000 words. Here are their words in the order in which their names appear on the Sept. 12 preliminary election ballot.

JOSEPH J. LARAIA

The present administration has by its actions and inactions mismanaged several important areas of responsibility in our city government. They include Quincy City Hospital, the landfill facility off Willard St.; and the loss of the shipyard to a sludge treatment facility.

I have addressed these problem areas and have been in the forefront of these issues over two years ago. I have recommended solutions that are Quincy's most direct approach to raising needed revenue to allow us to maintain our levels of services in education, public safety and other needed municipal services.

To help our hospital, a valuable medical facility under control, I recommended that we terminate the contract with private management at Quincy Hospital. It's eight years of private and unaccountable management that must cease and made accountable in the interest of its owners the people of Quincy, the patients and employees.

The Mayor has suggested a trash disposal fee to pay for handling our 6 million dollar annual bill for trash disposal. I prefer the other alternative to reopen our closed landfill facility on a temporary basis of up to four years to cover this expense. This facility under city control can control its operation, its environmental requirements and provide needed revenue. We know that State and Federal resources are not available.

Our choices are limited since we are facing a deficit of 6 million dollars in this year and the year after. And these deficits don't include the financially strapped City Hospital. Since the city has no excess funds projected, there is no other way we can help keep the hospital operational under city control.

Our option to consider expanding educational programs are tied to the availability of additional revenue. We need to provide programs that will allow students to explore their talents in educational programs and sports in the middle schools. There is a pressing need to meet the financial obligations to repair and improve our school buildings estimated to approach a capital expense in the amount of 14 million dollars.

The loss of our shipyard to a sludge treatment facility represents a continuous challenge since it is a new venture in this part of the country. We will have to continually challenge it's impact to our environment.

We have also lost the over $2 million dollars in revenue from taxes paid by General Dynamics. We must make up that loss by seeking compensating payments or reduction in MWRA expenses to at least make up that loss. We have legitimate demands in this pursuit.

I believe my experience as former Mayor, City Councillor, and my anti-establishment posture in city government during my political career makes me the best candidate to affect needed changes and improvements in our city government.

JAMES A. SHEETS

Quincy is more than a city of bricks and mortar, more than blacktop and wood. Our city is people -- families putting down roots and building memories; it is being able to say with pride, "I live in Quincy."

As a people we have remained committed to those values that have made Quincy a beautiful city in which to live. We have maintained those ideals that have added so much enrichment to the fabric of our lives. We have worked to preserve that sense of pride which comes from our rich heritage.

Our challenge today is to be successful coping with future problems, and that is why I want to be mayor of Quincy. Together with the people of Quincy we can successfully take our city into the uncertain decade of the 1990's.

What are some of the challenges we must meet? One such challenge is education. The children of today must be educated to lead productive and meaningful lives in the 21st century. Three of my children have graduated from the Quincy public school system and my son Luke attends North Quincy High School this year. Most of his life will be spent working in the 21st century.

As your Mayor I will work with parents, teachers, administrators, and the School Committee to ensure that we continue providing quality education to all students and that every child in our school system be educated to his or her full potential.

To accomplish this mission we must strengthen parent-teacher organizations; we must continually evaluate our curriculum to ensure that our students are graduating from high school with an adequate knowledge base, the necessary basic skills, the ability to think critically, and with a value system that stresses the work ethic; the learning environment in our schools must include properly maintained buildings and facilities; and, each child must be assured of books and supplies as each educational program demands.

We must also meet the challenge of keeping our environment pure and clean. This means continuing to battle against both the sludge treatment facility at General Dynamics and the toxic waste incineration facility at Clean Harbors. We must fight to win and not compromise. Compromise is defeat when it comes to our environment. The people of Quincy Point must never be abandoned in their battle for what is their rightful heritage -- clean air. If they lose, we all lose.

We will continue to be challenged in the 1990's by the issue of over development. Development must be brought under control and kept under control. We are a city of communities where people live and raise families. They must be protected from the side effects of development such as increases in traffic. We must look at rezoning our city in order to protect neighborhoods; making present zoning ordinances more strict; and, downscaling those projects which can be built as a matter of zoning right. We must also purchase and preserve as much open space as possible. We must control our own destiny when it comes to development, and now allow it to be controlled by developers.

The 1990's will also witness an increase in the population age of people in Quincy. We must not override Proposition 2½ least the tax burden become to great for our citizens - especially our seniors on fixed retirement incomes who want to stay in their homes. We must be sensitive to provide for those who have provided so well for us in the past.

These and other challenges face us in the decades ahead.

I believe my 16 years of service on the City Council, my experience as City Council President and chairman of many council committees; my experience of serving in the State Legislature, which no other candidate for mayor can claim, and; 26 years of teaching many of your sons and daughters, friends and neighbors about how government works, uniquely qualifies me to understand the people of this city and its problems and lead Quincy into the decade of the 1990's.

Yet, as we face the future together, we know it will take more than experience to provide leadership. Leadership must have character. So I want you to know as your mayor I will place a higher premium on trust than power; I will be conscientious and accountable; I will remember I have been elected to serve as well as lead; and I will secure the widest possible consensus on essential matters that concern every resident of this great city.

I intend to listen to the people where they live; enlist the help of our capable and concerned citizens, so that together our common efforts will begin to produce noticeable and meaningful results in our beloved city.

'What I Would Do As The Next Mayor'

PETER F. O'CONNELL

Many people have asked, "Why would you even want to leave business and run for Mayor?"

The answer is simple. There are no hidden or complex reasons. I want to serve this city. As a young boy selling newspapers in front of City Hall, Bill Edwards, the City Historian, used to tell me about the incredible history of Quincy and how the city came to be what it was. Ever since then, I have always been fascinated by the history and government of Quincy and I always harbored a dream to participate in it.

I remember Mayors like Tom Burgin, Mel Della Chiesa and Jim McIntyre and how well they ran Quincy and the respect they brought to it. I think it would be a great honor to lead this city, to be part of today's history in the community where I was born and have lived all my life.

Quincy annually spends $118 million dollars to provide you with services like public safety, education, and public works. The Mayor is ultimately responsible for the supervision of over 2500 city employees.

With 25 years of business experience, I suggest that I can best manage this city on a sound financial basis, and keep property taxes down. In these difficult financial times, I am the only candidate who has managed multi-million dollar budgets and supervised hundreds of employees. We hire the person to fill the job of Mayor by our vote... don't we want someone who has shown they can successfully manage a large operation?

As one who has experienced the hard knocks of the private sector, I'll also stand up for Quincy against the State or any outside agency, like the MWRA, that tries to dictate to our community.

I believe that my experience, leadership and sincere concern for our city has prepared me for the job that I seek.

If I am fortunate enough to be elected Mayor, an O'Connell Administration will be a positive, prideful experience for our city. It will be an administration for our children, living conditions for our seniors and better neighborhoods for us all. I'd like to tap the collective energies of the private sector and people working together to help a neighbor, to clean a park, or even to change priorities within or city.

Nearly 2000 people have already helped in our campaign. It is wonderful to see their enthusiasm and spirit. I'd like to keep that high level of involvement as Mayor in a truly caring city.

We must also remember that our children are our future. My primary goal as Mayor is to substantially improve the quality of education in Quincy. Our good students are fleeing the Quincy schools in record numbers and our college placements and test scores are only "average," or "in the middle." We must do better. Much better. We must equip our children for the 21st century. It is outrageous to me that parents had to picket City Hall for new books, and it is shameful that our school buildings have fallen into such disrepair.

Our children deserve the best. We must raise the quality standards of our schools dramatically. That means tougher standards for students like more homework and more demanding criteria for promotion, and it means competency testing for our teachers and administrations. Let us reward those who inspire their students and let us improve those who do not. We pay $38 million dollars a year for education, we deserve the best.

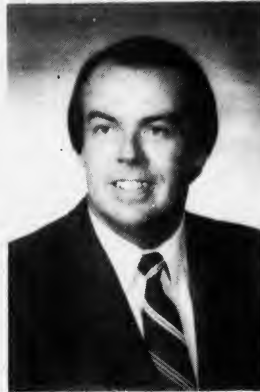

Another crucial priority is public safety. There are no simple solutions to the misuse of drugs in American society. Each day we witness the frustration of nations trying to control this problem. But we must do our part as a community and I believe that we can do better.

First and foremost, drug awareness and education must be a K through 12th grade learning experience. Our children should learn about the dangers of drug abuse throughout their school years. In addition, more children should be exposed to programs such as Project D.A.R.E. I also believe that we should increase the police undercover drug unit. Their drug busts may be small on a national scale but they are crucial for our city. I would like to stimulate broad community involvement in Quincy so that more parents, students, educators and police are working together to help our kids.

These are only a few priorities among the many Quincy must face. Our hospital also has serious problems; overdevelopment threatens many neighborhoods, our beaches are polluted, and the MWRA wants to treat sludge at the shipyard and sit in plush, new offices in Roxbury.

I've challenged the MWRA with a lawsuit. I'll continue to stand up for Quincy against them.

Finally, "THANK YOU." I have walked across this city to introduce myself and I have always received a smile and a pleasant welcome. This is a community of good and decent people who want the best for their families. I would be honored to be your Mayor.

STEPHEN J. McGRATH

The city of Quincy faces many challenges as we approach the 1990's and the next century.

The next Mayor of Quincy must devise solutions to these problems and I believe I bring the experience and knowledge of city government necessary to the task.

I am talking about many issues in my campaign for Mayor of our city and would like to mention a few:

Education would be a major priority in a McGrath Administration.

Educational issues are really divided into two parts.

First, the physical condition of our school buildings must improve. I have been saying this since the beginning of my campaign. Many school buildings need attention, but this now mere parroting of the Marriott Corporation report which I believe was unfairly critical of our school maintenance personnel. The solution is a bond issue which could address the physical plant problems of our school system.

Second, our school budget must be carefully reviewed to ensure that funds are spent wisely. We have a $38,000,000 budget in the current fiscal year, yet parent organizations are forced to have bake sales to provide basic school supplies. While it wonderful that parents want to give of themselves this way, the school system should be providing these basics.

In our school system, the student must be No. 1 and the direct needs of the student must come before any other budget expenditure.

Our downtown area needs attention and must be improved in its appearance. We must make the commitment to keep the downtown clean and attractive.

In addition, the key to revitalizing downtown Quincy does not lie in a wholesale rezoning there, but in attracting good retail stores to occupy such sites as the newly renovated (former) Remick's and (former) Lerner's stores.

I would charge our Planning Department with the task of working with business communities in the area to attract the type of retail to make downtown Quincy prosper.

The next Mayor of Quincy must also deal with a state administration which seems intent on imposing its will over our city.

I am opposed to the extension of Old Colony Commuter Rail system through our city because of the negative environmental impact that will result.

I am firm in my position and do not advocate or condone any compromise on the issue.

We have already won part of the battle in this fight; I traveled to Washington in June and met with Andrew Card, President Bush's deputy chief of staff, and expressed my concern on sludge treatment at the shipyard and especially the composting element, the most obnoxious aspect of it. Shortly thereafter, the MWRA Board of Directors voted to eliminate composting from the shipyard site.

Municipal experience is a must for any candidate who seeks to serve as Mayor of Quincy and I bring that experience with my candidacy. I have served 12 years on the Quincy City Council; 10 years as a Ward Councillor, 2 years as a Councillor at Large. I served as Council President and am in my second term as Chairman of the City Council Finance Committee. I understand municipal finance, city budgets and city government.

I envision a city of outstanding schools, a vibrant downtown, clean neighborhoods, streets and parks, and a clean environment. I want very much to be a good Mayor of the City of Quincy and will work as hard as humanly possible to make you proud of me as your Mayor, and of Quincy, the greatest city in the world.

Bank Of Boston Lowers Rates On 'First Step Mortgage' For First-Time Homebuyers

Bank of Boston has lowered the initial interest rates on its First Step Mortgage program for first-time homebuyers in Massachusetts.

The program, announced in May, is designed to make first-time home ownership more affordable for those with moderate incomes.

The current initial interest rate on the first $5 million allotment in the First Step program, which targets first-time buyers of newly constructed homes in the City of Boston, has been lowered to 7.95 percent, down from 8.65 percent. Approximately $3 million remains in this pool of mortgage money for first-time buyers of new homes in Boston.

In addition, the Bank has lowered from 8.65 to 8.15 percent the initial rates for loans under its Series II and III allotments of the First Step Mortgage. Series II and III of the program, totalling $10 million, target existing housing in the Greater Boston area, which includes cities and towns within or abutting Route 128. Approximately $5 million of Series II and III mortgage money remains available at the 8.15 percent rate.

The new interest rates will be extended to all loans that have not yet closed under the First Step Mortgage Program.

"With conventional mortgage rates generally drifting lower, we felt that trend should also be reflected in our First Step program," said Leon E. Wilson, Jr., Director of Residential Mortgage Lending for Bank of Boston.

"These lower rates will further enhance the ability of prospective buyers to afford their first home."

Maximum sales price increased.

The drop in interest rates also permits the maximum sales price for a condominium, co-op or single-family home to be increased from $140,000 to $150,000 for new construction in Boston and to $147,000 for existing housing stock.

Bank of Boston introduced the First Step Mortgage program by making available $50 million in special reduced rate mortgages for first-time homebuyers throughout New England, including $25 million in Massachusetts. The program, which was developed in cooperation with local community groups, eases initial rates, relaxes income and other eligibility requirements and streamlines the mortgage application process.

The First Step product is available to a single-person household with an annual income of less than $35,000, or two or more people in a household with an annual household income of less than $45,000.

The main features of the adjustable-rate First Step Mortgage include:

- A discounted interest rate for the first year.

- Reduced application fee for closing costs, including no "points" at closing.

- Increased home-buying power, because First Step permits a higher portion of income to be spent on mortgage payments. (National mortgage eligibility guidelines set a limit of 28 percent of household income for monthly mortgage payments; First Step allows a more realistic limit of 31 percent, which enables buyers to qualify for a larger mortgage.)

- Lower annual and lifetime interest rate caps.
- Allowance for a higher portion of projected rental income for multifamily homes to be counted toward mortgage payment.

Series I, II and III of the First Step Program have accounted for $15 million of the total $25 million in reduced-rate financing for first-time homebuyers in Massachusetts. The remaining $10 million will be made available in two $5 million allotments, to be announced in September and October, for the purchase of homes throughout the remainder of the state, outside of Greater Boston.

The 8.15 percent initial rate will apply for the $5 million Series IV allotment, which will become available to qualified first time homebuyers outside Greater Boston on Sept. 7. The bank will examine this rate at the end of September for the final $5 million, which will be released in October.

Quincy Residents To Benefit From Farmer's Market Funding

Sen. John Kerry announces that the Senate has passed additional funding for legislation he authored to create the Farmer's Market Coupon Demonstration Program as well as increased funding for the Women, Infants and Children program (WIC).

In Quincy, the WIC program serves 1,441 residents.

The Farmer's Market Coupon Demonstration Program was authorized last year when Congress approved the legislation first introduced by Kerry.

"The $2.126 billion for WIC and the $2.8 million appropriated for the Farmer's Market Coupon Program demonstrates our commitment to the nutritionally at-risk in our country," Kerry said. "This money is an investment in the next generation of Americans."

"I am pleased that the increased funding will enable 250,000 more pregnant women, children and infants nationally to receive vital nutrition and health care assistance," Kerry said.

The Farmer's Market Coupon Demonstration Program is operating in 10 states including Massachusetts. The state received a grant of $235,000 for the first year of its three-year program.

During 1988 the Massachusetts Farmer's Market Program served 17,000 WIC families at 32 local WIC programs.

"This program assists WIC participants in buying fresh and nutritious food at local farmer's markets," Kerry said.

"Evidence shows that not only are farmers' market sales up, but that because of this program, a whole new group of consumers are visiting farmer's markets as well."

The Massachusetts WIC program serves about 73,850 women, infants and children through a statewide network of 35 local programs at 100 sites.

OCTOBER 12TH!

Tardo Opposes Faulty Fire Alarms Ordinance

Councillor-at-large candidate Denis Tardo has voiced his opposition to an ordinance that would charge city property owners for false alarms caused by faulty equipment.

The ordinance was expected to be introduced at Tuesday's City Council meeting by Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney and Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan.

Commercial and residential buildings in Quincy, which have alarm systems directly linked to the fire department, would be warned for the first false alarm caused by a faulty system and then be asked to correct the problem.

Another false alarm in a six-month period would result in a $50 fine and subsequent alarms during that period would subject owners to fines of $100.

The sponsors say the ordinance is aimed at reducing the number of false alarms which can endanger fire department personnel and city residents.

Tardo said while "it is the duty of our public servants to inform the general public of the dangers of not having an adequate fire alarm system installed and maintained, it is not proper to levy fines that could encourage homeowners and landlords to disconnect alarms that are sensitive."

The ordinance would apply to owners of multi-dwellings which have alarm systems directly hooked to the fire department and business which have those alarm systems.

Furthermore, residents would not be levied for instances where a smoke detector picked up a burning toast or other actual "fire incidents" but only for those alarms which somehow malfunction to all the fire department out on a needless run.

However, Tardo said, "It is not uncommon for an alarm system to activate from such minor infractions as common cigarette smoke, the steam from a washer or dryer or an ant crossing the path of a detector.

"Anyone with knowledge of sophisticated electronic equipment would understand the complexity and necessity of sensitive smoke and heat detectors," he said.

Tardo also charged that "The council is prematurely proposing this fee in an effort to raise funds without regard to the lives that are saved because of the use of sensitive alarm systems."

Cheney said the ordinance is more than a revenue raiser for the fire department which faces a budget crisis this year. He said residents are supplementing the false alarms, which are nearly 30 percent of all the department's calls.

"It is our initial feeling that the people should be reimbursed for this service if the people (responsible for the alarms) don't take any correct action," Cheney said.

Civil Defense, Churches Conduct Disaster Exercises

Members of the Congregational Churches of Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth in conjunction with the South Shore Congregational Youth Conferences, Inc., recently conducted a successful "Disaster Day Exercise" at Camp Kingsmont in West Stockbridge, Mass.

Clergy, camp counsellors, staff personnel along with Quincy Civil Defense volunteers and Quincy Composite Squadron Civil Air Patrol worked together to prepare some 300 young adults who spend the week at Camp Kingsmont the opportunity to better protect themselves and all who are at the camp in the event a disaster or emergency situation developed.

The scenario involved a blackout and a shortage of water. According to Quincy Civil Defense Deputy Director Anthony Siciliano, the campers did an excellent job when the power was shut off at approximately 11 p.m. one recent evening.

"They all returned to their cabins safely with flashlights, looking out for one another only to be told in the morning that the power outage still existed and they would have to conserve a most precious resource, water, because the electrical pumps that pump water were out of service," Siciliano said.

"I must say that the clergy and staff did an excellent job in keeping this exercise a secret and the police care and lighted wooden barricades added to the reality that an emergency did indeed exist.

"After a cold breakfast the campers were finally told that this had been an exercise to find out how well they would cope in a real emergency," Siciliano pointed out.

Besides the drill, a presentation and lecture on four phases of emergency management, mitigation, preparedness, response and recovery, was conducted.

Assisting Siciliano were Shawn McKay, auxiliary police officer and an emergency medical technician; Robert Gogan, Arthur Gogan and the Quincy Composite Squadron Civil Air Patrol.

A videotape of the Disaster Day Exercise at Camp Kingsmont is available for viewing at Civil Defense Headquarters, 55 Sea St., Quincy. Call 773-1380, ext. 241-242.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Next Tuesday is Election Day, but for many people, this day will have no more significance than National Smile Week or Jesse James' birthday ... because they don't vote.

This may sound like something out of a eighth grade civics book, but voting is still one of the most effective ways to influence the way things happen in this town, this county, this state, this country and even this world. It's the only way to make sure that your candidate gets in; the person who represents your views and ideals. It is the only way to oust a politician who has lost contact with the way the people in his district are thinking. The one man - one vote theory of democracy also serves as an equalizer. A man may have Tom Selleck's good looks, the advantages of a fancy education, and millions to add to his campaign, but he can't get elected unless the average voter selects him or he gets in because of the lack of voter concern ... So let's get out and vote on Election Day. Vote any way you wish ... JUST VOTE!

Traditions Grow With Each Generation.

Back in 1931, Joe Sweeney joined his Uncle Dennis to help renovate the newly acquired funeral home on Elm Street. Originally a cabinetmaker by trade, Joe soon became the second-generation link in a family-owned tradition. One of instinctive and genuine concern for the city's bereaved families.

After the home's renovations were complete, Joe began assisting with services and went on to become a funeral director in 1941. When Dennis Sweeney died in 1948, it was to Joe that he entrusted the continuation of the Sweeney Tradition.

Well-liked in Quincy, M. Joseph Sweeney not only respected the customs of the large Catholic population, but also those of newcomers in the Protestant and Moslem communities. In 1962, he acquired the Elcock Estate, circa 1863, in West Quincy to better serve the residents in that growing area of the city.

Since 1917, Sweeney Funeral Homes have been responding to the needs of South Shore residents — whatever they were. As early as 1940, we began offering pre-planning as a way for wise Quincy residents to plan their future.

Today, with funeral costs one of the top five major expenses for most families, pre-arrangements make better sense than ever before. Call Dennis Sweeney, our third-generation funeral director, at (617) 773-2728 for a free consultation. We've been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years.

Quincy Will Put Accent On Running Game

For the past few years Quincy's football team has featured its passing game, but this fall the Presidents will run much more than in the past.

"We are developing a running game and for the first time in a long time we will be mainly a running team," coach Jack Raymer said. "Last year we had the number one passer in Division I in Chris Noble (now at the University of New Hampshire) and this season we want two boys who will be trying to fill his shoes and who can pass well."

Sharing the quarterback chores will be Mike Flavin, who did well for the junior varsity last year, and sophomore Greg Collins, who did a fine job for the freshmen in 1988.

"There is real competition for the job and both boys will get their full share of action," Raymer said. "They both are capable quarterbacks who can pass well when called upon."

Raymer has a number of promising wide receivers, including Chris Fay, Bill Cantelli, sophomore Chris Walker, a fine prospect who transferred from Hull; John Fahey, Tom Fratello, Steve Jon, Colin Kelly, Dan Thackeray, Dave Cahill and Pete Eleuteri.

The tackles are led by veterans Co-Capt. Joe Baker (220) and Tony Madden (260). Others are Dave Johnston, Pat Neil, Chris McLaughlin and Keith Norris.

Co-Capt. Tom Morrell (218) leads the guards who

The tailbacks are Lou Pagnani, Mark Bogan, Bill Reardon, Jason Eleuteri, Mark Zaborowski and Pat Donahue.

Defensively the ends are Munroe, Graham Chevy, Bob Crossman, Dave Chapman, McInnis and Anderson.

The tackles are Baker, Johnston, Lallis and Neil.

The linebackers are Morrell, Erickson, Dave Chevy and John Dowling.

The cornerbacks are O'Donoghue, Flavin, Reardon and Collins.

The defense backs are Pagnani, Bogan, Chris Lewis, John O'Connor and Zaborowski.

"The line is the strongest group I've ever had here," said Raymer. "The boys worked awfully hard in the off-season and are in outstanding condition. I think the line, both offensively and defensively, will be our strong point."

"This is a great group of boys and I am optimistic. They are working very hard and will be ready for our opener (against Cambridge Rindge and Latin at home Friday night, Sept. 15)."

In addition to an intersquad scrimmage, Quincy scrimmaged Don Bosco and this Saturday will meet Marshfield at 9:30 a.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium in a game scrimmage. This will be Alumni Day and all Quincy alumni are invited to attend. "We will have a cookout and I hope a lot of graduates will be there," said Raymer.

Following the opener against Cambridge, a Suburban League game, Quincy will host Waltham in a league game Sept. 22 at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Owens Scholarships To Be Presented

Two baseball players, one from Quincy High and one from North Quincy, will receive college scholarships from the proceeds of the Thomas Owens Memorial Semi-Pro Baseball Tournament which finished last week at Adams Field.

"I will sit down with Marty Finnegan (coordinator of athletics for the Quincy schools) and we will discuss the scholarships," said tournament director Al

Julian. "The only thing we insist upon is that they go to baseball players."

Andre Realty of Medford won the tournament title with a 12-3 win over the Weymouth Elks, completing a total of 17 tournament games.

The Elks could have won the title the night before with a win, but Andre pulled out a 4-3 decision, necessitating another game in the double-elimination tournament.

"This year we had nine teams and we had some close and interesting games," said Julian. "Next year we hope to have 12 teams."

The tournament MVP was Andre's Tom Leham, who was 4-0, his final win being the championship game.

Anyone wanting to know more about the scholarships are asked to call Julian at 773-8142.

QUINCY POLICE OFFICERS finish their 20-mile run for MDA Labor Day from Scituate to Quincy in two hours; 45 minutes. The officers, through donations and pledges, raised more than $1,000. They are Charlie McCarthy, Steve O'Brien, John Riley, Joe Murphy, Jack Kelly Jr., Danny Coughlin and Charlie Santoro.

Quincy Police Club Raises Over $1,000 In MDA Runathon

The Quincy Police Runners Club, with the help of many generous pledges, raised more than $1,000 Labor Day by sponsoring a 20-mile runathon for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Fifteen participants ran along the 20-mile route from Scituate Harbor to the Quincy Police Station on Sea St. for MDA Monday afternoon. They completed the route in 2 hours, 45 minutes.

who helped organize the fundraising event, was very pleased with the runathon's success.

"As far as the weather, the people and the run, it was tops. A lot of people helped collect money," Santoro said, noting donations by the Quincy District Courthouse, Quincy Police Department and the McDonald's on Southern Artery.

"It was a wonderful day. We'd like to have another run next year," he said.

Santoro and fellow officers Steve O'Brien, Jack Kelly Jr. and Sgt. William Stenmon began in Scituate and ran along Route 3A. Others joined in at various points through Cohasset, Hingham and Weymouth.

"Some people ran 10 miles, some five miles and others three," Santoro said.

Among those who joined in were Officers Tom Hickey, Bill Wright, Steve Igo, Leo Coppens and Tony Balzano, Lieutenants Francis Mullen and John Mulligan, as well as Dan Coughlin, Charles McCarthy and John Riley.

The Quincy Police Runners Club, which participates in some 45 road races a year, decided to start the MDA runathon as a way to raise money for Jerry's Kids.

Santoro said the runners club "runs a lot of miles" and the runathon allows them to put their running "to good use."

All proceeds from the runathon will be donated to MDA.

The word road some experts think came from the Middle English word rode meaning "a mounted journey."

Quarterback And Receivers North's Strong Points

By TOM SULLIVAN

With the North Quincy football squad preparing for its opening game at Milton Sept. 16, Coach Ken McPhee sees the quarterback position, several fine wide receivers and a deep secondary as the Raiders' strong points.

"We had an excellent turnout of over 100, but we still lack depth and are inexperienced," McPhee, starting his eighth year as head coach, said. "We have two excellent quarterbacks, are strong and deep at wide receiver and we have a lot of fine players at defensive back, especially the secondary."

Jim Bryan and Rich Brooks, who played with the junior varsity last year, will share the quarterback spot. They combined for 15 touchdowns passes for the jayvees a year ago.

"Bryan filled in nicely for the varsity against Weymouth South when Billy MacDougall was hurt and did a fine job for us," McPhee said.

Both can throw well and with wide receivers Co-Capt. Kevin MacDougall, a two-year starter; sophomore Desmond Bellot, who sparkled for the freshmen last year; Wayne McCulley, Chris Deshler, Paul Wilson and Mike Herman, McPhee expects to put the ball in the air quite a bit.

Co-Capt. Keith Gott will be at fullback and is expected to have a banner year. He ran well last season. Backing him up will be sophomore Chris Murray.

All home games at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Dan Gilmartin, a spot starter for the varsity last year, will be at halfback and Bill Early and Dave Kiley, up from the jayvees, will be the wing backs.

Evans Kiley, Mark Kelleher and Mike Doherty, all 1988 jayvees, will be the tight ends, 220-pound Alex Malasi, a two-year starter; 230-pound Scott Leonard, a spot starter, and Kevin Heffernan will be at tackle, Mike Iacobacci, a spot starter for the varsity; Scott Kemp, Mike Oliver and Pat Faherty will be the guards and Matt Swierk and Chris McCallum the centers.

Faherty also will be at center. On defense, Doherty, Kemp, Kelleher and Evans Kiley will be at end, Malasi, Leonard, Heffernan and Adam Somerville at tackle and Oliver and Brian Zimmerman at nose guard.

"Zimmerman is a senior playing football for the first time and he has come along very fast," McPhee said. "I look for him to have a fine season. He will be captain of the hockey team."

Linebackers are Early, Iacobacci, McCallum, Dave Kiley and Jim Ferrara and the promising secondary includes Gott, Bellot, MacDougall, Gilmartin, Jason April and Gary Rawdon.

"This is a fine group of boys and they are working hard," McPhee said. "I think we will have a good offense with a good balance of running and passing. I'll be able to tell more after the new players gain a little experience."

The Raiders have scrimmaged Braintree and Xaverian and will hold their final scrimmage Saturday. Last year North finished at 6-4 and had a four-game winning streak snapped on Thanksgiving when Quincy won a 29-21 thriller.

Following the opener at Milton, North will play its first Suburban League game at Newton North on Sept. 23.

NORTH QUINCY coach Ken McPhee and his co-captains, Keith Gott, left, and Kevin MacDougall, hope to open on the right foot when the Raiders face oldtime rival Milton Saturday, Sept. 16.

The Headlock Cafe of Quincy, the world mud football champions, will defend its championship this Friday, Saturday and Sunday at North Conway, N.H.

The team, which also won the world crown in 1985 and 1986, is comprised almost entirely of Quincy residents, graduates of Quincy and North Quincy High.

The team finished the regular season undefeated and will be the top-seeded team in the championships.

Leading the defense is Capt. Jeff Giordano. The defense is ranked number one and helping to attain this rating are Joe Bertoni, N. Hourin, 'Rhino' Delorey, Doug Gott, Bill Lawless, Dave Perdios, Steve Infascelli, 'Bones' Morrissey, Ken Murray, Colin Riley, Cameron, 'Critt' Flaherty, Bob Macadoo and Mulvey.

"I have to give a lot of the credit to our coach, Dan Coughlin (three-time all-star coach) for his selection of plays," said Giordano.

Mark's main targets will be Brian Doherty, Gerry Mulvey, Vinnie Cameron and Len Picot, Fred Murray is the team's all-star center and the Riley brothers, Colin and Eric, are back. Paul Vespaziani and Whitey McGuigan are other stars on the offensive team.

The rookie squad has been impressive with Pat Duffin, Pat McDonald and Mike Conlin.

The team will miss Kevin O'Connell, who will be out with an injury for the second year in a row.

Walter Clifford is the spotter and team mascot and Paul Smith is head of security.

Each team must enter a float in the annual parade and last year the Quincy team took first prize. Jeff and Mark Giordano, former assistant coaches at Quincy High, Perdios, Cameron, Vespaziani, McCormack, Bertoni and Picot were tournament first team all-stars. Coughlin was voted Coach of the Year for the third year in a row and Mulvey was given the Prunee Award.

Continental Cablevision Raises $7,100 For MDA

Continental Cablevision's Quincy system raised $7,100 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association during a summer drive for new subscribers and an employee bowl-a-thon this week.

Continental representatives will present a check to MDA on Monday, during one of the local segments of the Labor Day national telethon for "Jerry's Kids" on Boston's WCVB-TV 5.

"We wanted our new subscribers this summer to feel they were getting something special when they signed up for cable service and the satisfaction of knowing they were helping children with Muscular Dystrophy certainly is a special feeling," said Kathy Taraschi, Continental's Quincy marketing director. "We thank them."

From July 10 to Aug. 25, Continental agreed to donate $10 to MDA for each new subscriber. The program raised $5,580 for the charity.

On Tuesday (Aug. 29) 16 Quincy employees of Continental, who had collected pledges from friends, relative and neighbors, raised another $1,527 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association during a bowl-a-thon at the Merrymount Lanes in Quincy.

"We are grateful to the Continental employees who took the time to care, as well as to those who helped out by pledging donations to muscular dystrophy," Taraschi said.

WEEK OF: September 7

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Meticulous, often to a fault. You should make an added effort to see the larger picture as well as the details. You're an honest friend. The coming six months favor travel, possibly to all-new destinations. Career starts on an upward spiral early in 1990.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19
Combining the talents of others brings bright results. Partner approaches current problems with new vigor. In family matters, be sure that your expectations are realistic.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20
You have a way with words at this time. Use talents to make an appeal to a higherup. Experimentation brings better than expected results. Be sure to speak up if witnessing an injustice.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20
Thursday-Saturday are favorable for bargain-hunting, for antique collecting, and for travel generally. Monday-Wednesday focus on financial planning. Avoid shortcuts in all monetary matters.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22
You have a great gift of gab this week. Romance is favorably spotlighted through this charismatic period. Don't ignore financial responsibilities, and don't postpone visits to friends.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21
Household tasks are more pressing than you may have realized; this is not the time for procrastination. Creative gifts are impressive; you have tremendous potential in this area.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22
Week includes a potpourri of events, ranging from local travel to reunions with a dear old friend. Pets too have a place on the agenda. The key at this time is to be ever-conscious of priorities.

LEO - July 23 - August 22
Thursday and Friday favor partnership ventures, but be sure areas of responsibility are clearly defined. The weekend offers opportunities for romance or friendship. Small financial windfall may arrive by Tuesday.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22
Surprise arrivals make for a busy and possibly expensive week. Don't even think about trying to beat petty friends or colleagues at their own games. Communication situation improves noticeably.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22
Beware of others out to borrow your bright ideas which, by the way, are plentiful at this time. Weekend offers opportunity for reunion with family member. Patchups are likely within friendship circle.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21
Paperwork piles higher and higher through the period; it may be time to recruit help, but remember that confidentiality is crucial. Financial ideas benefit from additional research.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22
Enterprising Sagittarius may be coming up with a major business idea at this time. But watch for a self-indulgent streak and work on strengthening your willpower.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20
Week progresses at an intensified pace as you both embark upon and wrap up major projects. Leave time for organizing a fitness regime. It's important to recharge those batteries.

THE RECENTLY renovated Main Office of Quincy Savings Bank, 1200 Hancock St.

New Look At Quincy Savings Banks, Main, N.Q. Offices

There is a whole new look at the North Quincy branch and main office of Quincy Savings Bank.

Extensive renovations were recently completed in each office which complement the style and decor of the bank's other six branch locations.

Both the North Quincy branch and main office were redecorated in warm tones of mauve and blue. New furniture in cherry wood with rich looking upholstery complete the look. In each office, comfortable chairs and tables are grouped together to provide small areas for discussion. The effect is warm and pleasant, very soothing.

"We wanted to create an environment that reflected the personality of the bank - places in which customers feel comfortable," said Charles A. Pearce, chairman of the board.

In addition to cosmetic changes, the North Quincy branch was expanded to include five additional teller windows, a second drive-through window and a larger customer service area.

"These renovations were necessary to accommodate our growing customer base in North Quincy," Pearce said.

Quincy Savings Bank, which owns and operates eight offices on the South Shore, is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Excel Bancorp, Inc.

Kelly's Name Change Approved

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Peter Kelly, owner and manager of Kelly's In The Square, 19 Cottage Ave., for a change of name. The change is from PK Pub, Inc., doing business as Kelly's In The Square, to Kelly's In The Square, Inc., including both the street level of the restaurant and the lower level.

Kelly was before the board on Aug. 1 requesting an extension of his license to include the lower level for functions.

At that time, City Solicitor Don Hansen opposed the extension because the request was filed under P.K. Pub, Inc. as opposed to Kelly's In The Square Inc. The license was denied at that time.

On Tuesday, Atty Richard Barry, representing Kelly, told the board in a letter that, according to public records at the Secretary of State's office, the name PK Pub, Inc. was incorporated in Oct. 1987 and that the license in question was issued under that name.

The next day, however, the Secretary of State's Office issued an amendment which changed the name from PK Pub to Kelly's In The Square, Inc. which is the correct corporate name of the establishment.

The board approved the name change on the license but must receive approval from the Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission before the license extension can be enacted.

Until that time the board will issue one-day licenses as the functions occur.

On Tuesday, Board issued one-day licenses to Kelly's In The Square for Sept. 9, 16, 17, 23, 24, 26 and 28.

Councillor James Sheets and political newcomer Peter O'Connell scored impressive victories in Tuesday's preliminary election and will meet each other in the final election Nov. 7.

Sheets, considered a dark horse early on only to come running down the home stretch, received 7,749 votes or 35 percent of the vote. O'Connell, who is waging his first campaign for elected office, was second with 5,903 or 27 percent.

Councillor Stephen McGrath finished third with 4,976 or 22 percent while former mayor Joseph LaRaia was a distant fourth with 3,121 or 14 percent.

Some 22,331 voters or 46 percent of Quincy's electorate turned out for the long-awaited preliminary election.

The last returns were announced at City Hall at 10:30 p.m. City Clerk John Gillis said there were no problems with the computerized ballot counting machines.

"We had no problems. This was the best election we ever had," Gillis said following the ballot counting.

In the school committee preliminary election, incumbents Mary Collins and Frank Santoro emerged victorious as did four newcomers: Ronald Mariano, Judith Brams, Gary Fine and Richard Crespi.

Collins, a veteran school committee member, topped the entire preliminary ticket with 9,823 or 19 percent followed closely by Mariano's 9,003 or 18 percent.

Rounding out the school committee vote were:

Santoro with 7,371 or 14 percent; Brams with 4,686 or nine percent; Fine with 4,643 or nine percent; and Crespi with 4,494 or nine percent.

The six finalists will vie for three, four-year seats Nov. 7.

Failing to get on the final ballot were John McDuff (3,881 or seven percent), Michael Preble (3,124 or six percent) and Michael Jovanovic (2,408 or four percent).

There were 582 blanks cast in the mayoral preliminary election.

Both Sheets and O'Connell were upbeat in their victory speeches made before hundreds of campaign workers and supporters. Sheets delivered his speech at the George F. Bryan Post where he announced his candidacy in February. O'Connell's celebration headquarters was at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Sheets, a 16-year Ward 4 councillor making his first run for mayor said, "This victory belongs to you, not to me or my family."

"It belongs to all of you who began eight or nine months ago, quietly and thoroughly reaching out to the people of the city of Quincy touching their hearts and minds."

"This is not simply a win. It's a big win and it's the first step toward the Mayor's Office," he said.

Sheets thanked his family and his campaign workers who have worked so hard for him. He gave special thanks to Campaign Manager Thomas Koch and Jackie Quirk who helped him with his Ward 4 duties to allow him to successfully run for the office.

"We'll see you tomorrow morning at campaign headquarters," he said, "because then we begin a new one."

O'Connell also thanked his family and supporters and looked ahead at the next eight weeks of the campaign.

"This is a very special night. The last eight months have been very exciting. Words do not begin to express it," said O'Connell who entered the race in January shortly after Mayor Francis McCauley announced he would not seek a fifth term.

"Running for mayor is very exciting and being in the final...we came out of nowhere. Over the next eight weeks, we're going to double our efforts to convince the citizens that we have the programs for Quincy."

"Quincy is a great city. The differences between the two final candidates are significant," he said, "and we will make sure that we get the message to the citizens of Quincy so that they can decide who should lead the city of Quincy into the 1990s."

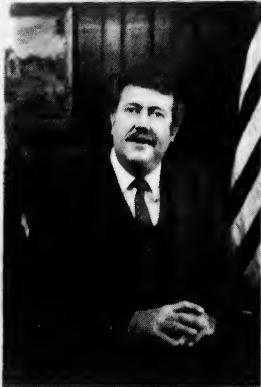

"It's a monumental effort to put someone in the Mayor's seat," O'Connell said, thanking his family and supporters.

Later, he said, "The citizens of Quincy are winners tonight. There were four good strong candidates, all capable of being the next mayor. I think all the candidates for mayor deserve a great deal of credit."

"It was a strong campaign, a positive campaign and it will go down in history as one of the best campaigns in the city of Quincy."

25 Local Names On Treasurer's Unclaimed Money List

Twenty-five Quincy names are among 3,000 in Massachusetts entitled to nearly $1 million in unclaimed money.

State Treasurer Robert Crane is attempting to return the funds under the state's unclaimed money law.

The money has been reported to the treasury by insurance companies doing business within the state. Included in the proceeds are unpaid life insurance benefits, unpaid benefits on health and liability insurance policies, pension checks and customer overpayments.

Under the state's unclaimed money law, accounts which have been dormant for at least five years are deemed to be abandoned and must be reported to the treasury. The department then tries to locate the rightful owner of legal heirs to return the money.

"Many of these accounts represent the cash value of life insurance policies which the owners do not realize they are entitled to claim," Crane said.

More than 1,000 accounts range between $100 and $500; 21 accounts between $500 and $1,000; 137 accounts between $1,000 and $5,000; 11 accounts between $5,000 and $10,000; and three accounts more than $10,000.

The remaining accounts are less than $100.

The Quincy list includes Quincy Hospital which is projecting a $4 million deficit this year.

The other Quincy names listed are:

Asie A. Abboud Jr., Walter Chase, Francis Delorey, Francis H. Delorey, Elizabeth Dolarsky, David Ford, Cheryl L. Gardner, Mabel D. Hadden, Harland Harvey, Paul D. Higgins, William F. Hourahan, S. Hulchini, Bernard W. McCauley, Mary I. MacLeod, Anna E. Metherall, William R. Metherall, Katherine Mullen, Alfred Podogroski, Eric J. Riley, Stephen K. Richmond, Daniel A. Salvatore, Grace Shields, Giulia Tazioli and Ethel S. Walter.

Persons who believe they have a valid claim should call the treasurer's office at (617) 426-0060 or toll free, 1-800-632-8027.

De Cristofaro Urges Vote On Waste Incinerator Question

Ward 2 Councillor Theodore DeCristofaro is strongly urging all Quincy voters to vote on a referendum question concerning the construction of a hazardous waste incinerator in the city or in abutting towns.

The question, to appear on the Nov. 7 ballot reads: "Do you favor the construction of a hazardous waste incinerator in the City of Quincy or in any of the towns abutting Quincy?"

DeCristofaro stressed the importance of voting for the non-binding referendum question which will make it clear to the state how Quincy residents feel about Clean Harbors' proposal for a hazardous waste incinerator in the Fore River industrial basin.

"It is my hope that the citizens of Quincy will make every effort to get out and vote to express their concern for the health and welfare of the people of Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth," DeCristofaro said.

CD Security Exercise

The Quincy Civil Defense Emergency Operating Center will be fully activated Wednesday, Sept. 13 beginning at 8:30 a.m. for the National Security Exercise (CIVEX '89).

Police, fire, public works, hospital, health and school departments and civil defense division heads are welcome to participate.

The proposed plan of action will be similar to the procedure used for Janice II, hurricane exercise, in June, 1988.

Strong Support For Methadone Van Says McCauley

City officials serving on a committee to review a proposed methadone clinic in Quincy were unanimous in their support for the van which will begin service later this month, Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday.

"We had a good committee. It was a good crew that worked it out," McCauley said Tuesday in reference to the five committee members that researched the proposal and was instrumental in drafting an agreement.

The committee members are: Quincy Public Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue; John Mahoney, social health coordinator for Quincy public schools; David Spillane, legal counsel for the city; William Spinks, director of the South Shore Council on Alcoholism and Ken Tarabelli, director of Survival, Inc.

Last week, McCauley signed the agreement which will allow the van to service Quincy, Braintree, Milton and Randolph clients at the rear of the city's Public Works building on Sea St. The van will operate seven days a week from 6 to 8 a.m. for at least six months.

Methadone is a synthetic drug used to help heroin addicts kick their habit.

McCauley, who acknowledged that the van has divided some city officials, said, "Some people tend to shy from things like this but when you look into it, you realize it can work."

The program will be reviewed in March by the next mayor who will determine if any changes are needed. He will also decide if the program should be continued.

Habit Management, Inc. of Boston will operate the methadone service under a contract with the state Department of Public Health's division of alcoholism and drug rehabilitation. According to McCauley, Habit Management will carry all necessary insurance to relieve any risk to the city.

While city officials have assisted during the past year in planning the methadone stop in Quincy and will review its operations, the van does not involve any city expenses, McCauley said.

The van will service up to 80 addicts who will be required to pay Habit Management an admission fee of $200 a weekly fee of $105. McCauley noted the cost covers both the methadone and mandatory counseling from either Survival Inc., a substance rehabilitation group, or the South Shore Council on Alcoholism.

The cost of the services for program participants covered by Medicaid has yet to be set by a rating board, the mayor said, adding that addicts unable to pay may qualify for payment by the state Department of Public Health.

The mayor was hesitant about the program beginning in Quincy but was relieved to learn a similar program in Brockton has been successful.

Chief O'Connell: Wollaston Fire Station Won't Close

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Although the city's budget crunch has forced him to reduce the fire department's minimum manning level by three men, Chief Paul O'Connell said Tuesday the situation does not warrant the closing of the Wollaston Fire Station.

"I don't feel that we've depleted manpower to the point that we have to close a fire house. Closing (the Wollaston station) is not the issue."

"Manpower is the issue," the chief said.

Because the department's overtime account has less than $10,000 in it, O'Connell has been forced to make reductions to save money. The chief has reduced his minimum manning level from 34 to 31 firefighters. The 10 supervisory officers will remain, he said.

As for equipment, O'Connell has sidelined Ladder 2 out of the Wollaston Station and has reduced Tower 1 in Houghs Neck to part-time status.

"When we fall to 31 men and 10 officers, (Tower 1) is put out of service," the chief said, explaining he does not want to send any equipment out on a call with less than a three-man complement.

The fire department is strapped financially because its overtime account was reduced by $150,000 this year, primarily because the city's share of local aid was cut by $3.4 million.

Mayor Francis McCauley had hoped to restore the overtime funding but because local aid was drastically cut, he said he couldn't. He also said any surplus money would be reserved for emergencies.

There is about $900,000 remaining in the city's free cash account. Some city councillors have asked the mayor to use some of the money to help the fire department's finances.

However, McCauley has declined those requests. Instead, he has suggested that the Wollaston station be closed, thereby saving $1.2 million in renovation costs.

The money could then be used to add men and reactivate equipment in the fire department, McCauley said.

O'Connell points to the state, not McCauley, for the lack of adequate funding.

There's nothing going on between me and the mayor or the fire department and the mayor. I don't get into the surplus part of it - whether the money is there or not," O'Connell said.

The chief, who has watched the state's fiscal decline carefully over the past several months, said he knew funding would be tight when he took command of the department this spring.

"I knew coming into this job that the financial picture was bleak," he said.

McCauley's suggestion to close the Wollaston station could emerge as a big issue in the mayoral campaign. However, the chief insists closing the station is a secondary concern, the first being his men.

"The issue is the number of men on duty and number of apparatus in service. I'm trying to consolidate here - that's why we're running three men to each piece of equipment."

"My issue is the minimum amount of men on duty. I'd like to have 37 firefighters and 10 officers on duty," O'Connell said, adding that level still falls behind the minimum standard set by the National Fire Protection Agency.

Besides consolidating manpower and equipment,

O'Connell cannot make a promotion to fill a captain rank which has been vacant since February. "This drains my overtime," the chief said, adding that other unfilled vacancies are being filled by overtime.

In the meantime, O'Connell said he will continue to develop options and alternatives other than closing the Wollaston station to deal with the budget crunch.

One of those options is to maintain at least one piece of equipment even if it means shifting one piece of equipment from another station.

The chief also said he will disclose those options as he develops them.

"We're trying to provide the best service we can with the resources we have. We're running at a level below what we had at one time and that's frustrating," O'Connell said.

The driver of the truck, David Moran, was not hurt and only a small amount of diesel fuel leaked into the house. The truck's storage tank was empty at the time of the crash.

'No Smoking' In Effect At Schools

With the opening of school, a no smoking ban is in effect in accordance with a recently passed Massachusetts law.

"This means," explained Joseph A. Mazzarella, director of Quincy Vocational Technical School, "that either in or outside the school, or anywhere on school property, students cannot smoke."

It also means close supervision of students, and at the vocational school, at least, no smoking clinics will be scheduled and conducted by Assistant Director, Marie Hurley.

Hurley has led stop-smoking hypnosis classes at the local YMCA in Quincy, and will hold clinics for staff and students at Quincy High and the adjacent vocational facility.

In addition, ninth graders will be given an indoctrination on the new law which was explained last year to older students.

'Save Our Shores' Plans To Dissolve

Plans to dissolve Save Our Shores will be outlined at the annual meeting of the group on Sept. 27 at 7:30 p.m. at Savin Hill Yacht Club. The 20-year old environmental organization which at one time had a record 250,000 members, will decide whether or not to continue the all-volunteer group.

Clara Yeomans of Quincy, president of S.O.S. and former chairman of the Quincy Conservation Commission, in her letter to the membership wrote:

"The purpose of the organization as stated in its original bylaws was to establish a National Recreation Area and Historic Site in Boston Harbor in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and to encourage the protection and promotion of the marine resources of Massachusetts Bay and its natural, scenic, historic and recreation areas."

"Many ideas promoted by Save Our Shores regarding the Harbor use have been carried out," she continued, "and have certainly made the legislators and the people of the Commonwealth aware of the valuable marine resource at their doorstep."

Continuance of SOS depends upon the decision of those attending the Sept. 27 meeting.

"If there are those who are willing to take up the challenge to preserve this organization and take it into the 21st Century, speak now or forever hold your peace..." says Maureen Mazrimas, editor of the "News and Views of Boston Harbor," Save Our Shores publication.

Johnson To Take New Post?

Quincy Junior College President Dr. Clayton Johnson may be leaving Quincy for greener pastures.

Johnson, who has headed QJC for the past seven years has been offered, according to informed sources, the presidency of Hudson Community College in Jersey City, N.J.

The post pays $85,000 or about $15,000 more than he gets at Quincy.

The job would be quite a challenge. Hudson Community College has about 4,000 students with a budget of some $25 million. Quincy Junior has 2,000 students and a budget of a little more than $1 million.

According to the sources, members of the Association of Community College Trustees visited Johnson recently to see if he might be interested in the job in New Jersey.

As a result of that visit, Johnson was in Jersey City this week and met with the trustees of Hudson Community College.

During the meeting or soon after, Johnson reportedly was offered the post.

Johnson confirms he did go to Jersey City this week. "I have met with the trustees," he says. "But I have made no decision."

He reportedly has two or three weeks to "think it over" and make his decision.

JOHNSON

Johnson who was given tenure at Quincy Junior two years ago adds:

"I'm very happy in Quincy."

But a nice pay raise and new job challenge could make him happy in Jersey City.

One thing that continues to gnaw at Johnson in Quincy is the fact that he comes under the Superintendent of Schools and must report to him.

Johnson strongly feels the president of a junior college—should run the college. That's his job, he feels.

Reportedly at Hudson Community College he would run the show.

Will he go on or will he stay?

He's wrestling with that answer right now.

Quincy, Mass., Quincy, Ill. United In Marriage

When Cheryl Donovan, a sixth grader from Quincy visited Quincy, Ill. in April, 1976 as part of a Bicentennial year exchange between the two cities, she never knew her life would be changed forever and that Quincy (Ill.) College would play a key role.

At that time she had joined other fifth and sixth graders, junior and senior high school students, and adults from Quincy in a special visit to Quincy, Ill.

She kept in touch with those she had met here, and later made the decision to attend Quincy College, enrolling in 1982. Her story was the subject of a Herald-Whig feature which appeared in the H-W's Oct. 29, 1983 issue.

A new story, however, has emerged as Miss Donovan, daughter of Paul and Mary Donovan of 136 Hamden Circle, Wollaston, recently became the bride of Greg Schwartz, son of Ralph and Mildred Schwartz of 2626 Cedar, Quincy, Ill.

The couple, both 1986 Quincy College graduates, was married July 8 in Boston. Fr. Dennis Schaefer, OFM, associate professor of music at QC and close friend of the couple, officiated the ceremony.

The couple will make their home in Evansville, Ind., where Schwartz is environmental and governmental affairs manager for Red Spot Paints. The new Mrs. Schwartz, a former special education teacher in Canton, plans to continue her teaching career.

What started as a Bicentennial exchange has happily resulted in an exchange of wedding vows between two former QC students, both from Quincy.

Historical Commission Hearing Sept. 25

The Quincy Historical Commission will hold a public hearing on Monday, Sept. 25 at 7:30 p.m. in the third floor Planning Conference Room at New City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The purpose of the meeting is to consider the following properties:

- 1357 Hancock St. Exterior color change to facade
- Presidents Place Associates, 8-20 Washington St. Reviewing a proposal of exterior signage on the garage and front of the building, and landscaped areas
- Any other business before the commission at the time of the meeting.

THE VALUE OF INSURANCE

Paying a regular insurance premium is as much a cost of doing business as are wages and purchases of supplies and equipment. But insurance goes one significant step beyond -- it eliminates worry.

If there were no insurance, business people would be loathe to take risks. Even the mere instance of transporting goods and materials would be a cause for apprehension if they knew the shipment was not covered against loss.

Insurance also extends the basis for credit. No bank, no foreign lender will extend credit unless there is insurance available in sufficient amounts to protect against loss. Some financial institutions may even require a depositor to assign an insurance policy as a basis for the granting of a substantial loan which cannot be secured otherwise.

Insurance aids the economic development of our nation. And insurance companies, by virtue of their capital investment in transportation, construction and real estate, have contributed in no small measure to the prosperity of the nation and its people.

If you are considering protection get in touch with the insurance professionals at Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. Please visit our office at 1050 Hancock Street in Quincy or give us a call at 471-6200.

Hungarian Visitors Impressed With Local Election Process

By PAUL HAROLD State Senator

Political reforms in Hungary are front page news around the world but the Quincy mayoral election was the main interest of Hungarian leaders visiting Quincy Tuesday.

Since the 1956 uprising in Hungary, the nation has made steady progress towards a Western-style economic system. Such reforms have allowed for a degree of freedom from the Soviet Union which has controlled the governments and economies of Eastern Europe since World War II. To coincide with the economic reforms, Hungarian leaders are now planning changes in the political system to allow for competitive elections.

The decision this week by the Hungarian government to allow East Germans to flee to West Germany via Hungary indicates the extent and genuineness of the wave of reform in Hungary.

The election observers had the chance to meet Councillors James Sheets and Steve McGrath campaigning at polls and Peter O'Connell at his headquarters. Joseph LaRaia was unable to schedule a meeting because of busy election day activities. They were impressed with the broad-based citizen involvement

A DELEGATION of Hungarian leaders visited Quincy Tuesday and were made honorary citizens of the city by Mayor Francis McCauley during a ceremony at City Hall. Standing, from left, Susan Feher, Csaba Kracsun, Erika Goldberg, Mayor McCauley, Istvan Stumpf, Zoltan Pecze and Senator Paul Harold who escorted the delegation. in the campaign and the formalities of the voting system.

Earlier in the day the visitors toured the Adams Mansion with Supt. Maryann Peake and were made honorary citizens in ceremonies at City Hall by Mayor Francis McCauley.

Their visit to the U.S. is sponsored by the American Council of Young Political Leaders. They were escorted on their visit by this writer.

Among those in the group was Mrs. Bodo Edit Rozsa, a member of the Hungarian Parliament. Her district is famous for the production of the Hungarian spice, "paprika."

In addition to competitive elections, Hungary plans to open an international stock exchange, the first in Eastern Europe and a new joint-venture law allowing 100 percent foreign ownership of some Hungarian companies.

Some freedoms have been granted to the Catholic Church of which two-thirds of the country belongs. The Church in Hungary does not have the independence of the Church in neighboring Poland and has not been in the forefront for political reforms.

Shiphaven, smiled and told his supporters, "Well I guess the choice was not as clear as we had thought," paraphrasing his campaign slogan.

"And you didn't have a winner here tonight but the city of Quincy does have some winners and I want to congratulate Jim Sheets, my colleague on the City Council, and also Peter O'Connell, for their victories in the preliminary tonight and wish them success in November."

He then acknowledged several family members, area coordinators and his campaign manager, Leo Kelly.

"I really want to thank each and everyone of you tonight your friendship over the year has meant a great deal to me and really must take off my hat to all of my workers who worked very, very hard from the beginning of this campaign and the people who knocked doors with me throughout all the streets of the city.

"And we really did get through many of the neighborhoods twice. In fact, my wing tips are going through their second resoling tomorrow," he remarked as laughter erupted.

"But it really has been a campaign that quite frankly I have enjoyed immensely. I think we learned a lot about the city of Quincy."

"To be honest," McGrath continued, "I don't think I would have changed any part of the campaign one iota," referring to his stands on such issues as the MWRA, Old Colony railroad and the cleanliness of the city.

"I really do not want any tears tonight. Tomorrow, the sun is going to shine again and I look forward to completing my term on the city council."

Some of the School Committee finalists were at City Hall after the returns were in, they were happy with their performances.

Collins simply said, "I'm delighted."

Mariano said, "I feel great. This is a real thrill for me," adding that he had been thinking about running for office in the past.

Fine said, "I'm happy. I made it through to the preliminary. I want to thank my supporters. I expect to work twice as hard from here on in."

Although he was knocked out of the race, LaRaia told his supporters at the Torre Dei Passeri social hall that he will still be a factor in the final election.

After thanking his "political family," LaRaia said "Needless to say the results are an indicator that Joe LaRaia will not go into the election for mayor of the city of Quincy.

"But I can assure you that Joe LaRaia will be a voice in the city of Quincy. I will make an impact as to who the next mayor of the city of Quincy will be with your support."

"We obviously didn't catch the imagination of the public," LaRaia said, adding that he was not trying to be hostile.

He also said he does not envy the next mayor because of the difficult issues he will face.

"I do not envy the next mayor of Quincy. I know the problems facing the city of Quincy and I did identify with those problems," LaRaia said, naming such issues as the city's tight fiscal picture, the MWRA and Quincy Hospital.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Snug Harbor Housing Planned

Executive Secretary Frank C. Hendry of the Quincy Housing Authority revealed tentative plans for development of Sailors Snug Harbor in Germantown as a housing project for veterans' families.

Hendry said house plans and layouts currently pending before the State Housing Board call for 78 four-family, 29 two-family and 30 one-family buildings on the site.

There was also the possibility, he said, of remodeling the present building to house a post office, a branch library, a supermarket and a drug store.

HAVEY DEFEATS GROSSMAN

Clayton L. Havey of Boston defeated Joseph B. Grossman of Quincy 20,808 to 12,509 to gain the Republican nomination for a seat on the governor's council, a post held by Grossman in the 1930s.

Psychiatric Abuse Line Now Available

The Citizens Commission on Human Rights announces the availability of a Psychiatric Abuse Line in Massachusetts for victims of psychiatric rape.

Peter Dockx, New England Director of the Commission said: "We have assisted many individuals over the years who have found themselves deceived by psychiatrists or institutions and made worse by the treatment they received."

The Commission has witnessed many psychiatric atrocities over the past 20 years of its existence, but few compare with those revolving about and rising out of psychiatrists and psychologists sexually abusing their patients. Patients stake their entire trust and mental stability in the hands of the psychotherapist only to be crushed with degradation," Dockx said.

According to data received by the commission, more than 90 percent of victims of psychiatric rape have been prescribed drugs which aid and abet the psychiatrist in his efforts. It is the use of these so-called "medications," usually many different drugs in confusing and devastating doses, which apparently lock in the final state of mind which sets up the final crime.

Kevin Hall, deputy director of the commission, said, "It has also been documented that psychiatrists will go to extraordinary lengths to hide the sexual abuse of patients.

Only the psychiatrist can declare a person insane and a danger to self and others, for they are considered the experts.

"They have at their disposal all sorts of tools to cover up their crime including drugs, electro-shock, threats of incarceration, and even involuntary commitment."

Massachusetts has more than 2,100 psychiatrists per the Massachusetts Psychiatric Association, and 4,700 psychologists per the Massachusetts Psychological Association.

According to a recent APA survey, seven percent of all psychiatrists and a similar number of psychologists surveyed "admit" to sexual contact with their patients.

If the state statistics of repeat offenders reflect those of other states, (2.1 to 5.6 victims per offending psychiatrist, per a California survey), Massachusetts could have upwards of 2,000 "white-coat rape" victims.

United First Parish Special Events For 350th Anniversary

Historic United First Parish Church (Unitarian) of Quincy, better known as "The Church of the Presidents" has scheduled a number of events this fall to celebrate its 350th anniversary.

A commemorative booklet edited by church member Richard E. Post, Sr. and others will be published in September.

On Sunday, Sept. 24 at 4 p.m. there will be a public Service of Celebration with Rev. William F. Schulz, president of the Unitarian Universalist Association, as the main speaker. This service will also be highlighted by two original musical compositions. The first will be an anthem entitled "Guardian of Freedom" by church member and former professor of music composition Dr. John Dowd. The second will be a hymn entitled "Within These Walls" by church member and composer Mary Elizabeth Bond.

On Sept. 26, there will be a special invitational anniversary dinner for members, past members, and friends of the church.

On Oct. 5 actress Harriet Bigus of New York will present a one-woman dramatization based upon the letters of Abigail Adams. Her program will be sponsored by the Quincy Arts Lottery Council and open to the public without charge.

A leader in liberal religion since its establishment in 1639, United First Parish Church was the life-long home for both Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams. Their tombs stand today in a crypt within the church, along with those of their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine. The patriot John Hancock was baptized here in 1737 by his father, the Rev. John Hancock, who was minister in the early 18th century.

Ryan Family Celebrates Anniversary

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Ryan Family gathered at Faxon Park over the weekend to celebrate the occasion of Michael Ryan settling on Common St., West Quincy, 150 years ago.

Michael, a quarrryman, worked the West Quincy quarries after leaving County Tipperary, Ireland. He was one of the first members of St. Mary's Parish where he served as a sextant in the mid-1800's.

Michael had two sons, James and John. James was killed in the Civil War when he was hit with a musketball at Newbern, Tenn., when only 17 years of age and was one of the first Quincy boys lost in that war.

John married Mary O'Brien and raised a family of six. The family now members about 120 descendants.

The Ryans have served their country well, sending boys off to the Civil War, World War I and II and the Korean and Vietnam conflicts.

John W. Ryan, a great grandson, was killed in Okinawa in World War II. The corner of Quarry and Common Sts., only 100 feet from the homestead, was named in his honor.

The festivities started Friday with a golf tournament at Brintree Golf Club with a good turnout. Saturday, 85 of the fourth, fifth and sixth generations assembled for a cookout and games.

A softball game was won by Papa Jim's team, which defeated Uncle Berger's team, 5-1.

The committee was made up of great-grandchildren Richard, Jim, Gerald and Bob Ryan and Anna Crandall.

The Ryan committee thanked Ray Cattaneo and the Park Dept. for their cooperation in having the park and its facilities in excellent condition.

Dr. Paul has served as a staff chaplain at Boston State Hospital, as pastor of the Rockdale Congregational Church and as pastor of the Blue Hills Community Church.

of students with special needs at Quincy High School. The Pauls are the parents of three grown sons, Bruce, Wesley, and Jonathan, all of who received their education in the Quincy Public School System and all of whom are alumni of Eastern Nazarene College.

Dr. Paul, who will assume his new duties Oct. 15, said: "I share with the people of Quincy and the surrounding communities a commitment to the values that will enhance the quality of life for all its citizens. It is my belief that Eastern Nazarene College provides a vital link in cooperative service to our community now and in the approaching decade."

Eastern Nazarene College, which is beginning its 70th year on the Quincy Campus, is a four year, co-educational, liberal arts college sponsored by the Church of the Nazarene. Legion Education Award Presented Posthumously To Central Student

An American Legion Education Award was for the first time presented posthumously at Central Middle School to Peter Grippi.

The award presented by Past Commander Robert Eng of Quincy Legion Post was accepted by his brother, David Grippi. Had Peter lived, he would have completed middle school with the Class of 1989.

"It was J. Thomas Henderson, an eighth grade teacher, who felt Peter would have earned this special recognition with his courage, determination and good humor in the face of his illness and the treatments for leukemia," said Mary Catherine Iannoni, Head Counselor.

The Grippi family has established annual awards in Peter's memory. This year's awards were presented to Carrie Frenette and Kevin Price.

A second American Legion Education Award was presented by Eng to Heather Powell, who had served as Mayor of the Student Senate.

Central students had assembled to hear classmates speak as they completed a year they had dubbed, "We Survived the Year of the Beam." Speakers were Maura Crowley, Jacqueline Bradford, Zoe Bohl, John McCarthy, Carrie Frenette, David Flaherty, Jennifer Walker and Heather Powell.

Louis DiMartinis, principal, and head counselor Iannoni presented other special awards. The Principal's Awards went to Christopher Dupill, Maureen Lind, Pamela Norton, Christina Trifone and Jennifer Walker.

The Moscardelli Prize was awarded to Thomas Geary, while Skoler Family annual awards were presented to Christie Richmond and Michael Kavanaugh.

Also presented were awards to students who had excelled in their studies, who had perfect attendance, and who participated in extra-curricular activities. Teacher sponsors and instructors made the presentations.

Nearly 100 Volunteers Help WSPA Clean Up Wollaston Beach

The World Society for the Protection of Animals, WSPA, recently sponsored a clean-up of Wollaston Beach which attracted nearly 100 volunteers from Quincy and surrounding communities.

WSPA is mainly concerned with persistent marine debris, largely plastics which remain in the water and the coast line long after they are first discarded. WSPA officials warn that marine animals often become entangled in plastic six-pack rings or mistak

Working in pairs, volunteers removed and tabulated trash along a two-mile stretch of beach. In total, 585 pounds of trash was cleared away, including five hypodermic syringes.

WSPA records indicate the removal of 4,611 plastic objects, 1,728 glass pieces, 1,618 pieces of paper, 1,122 metal pieces, 416 pieces of styrofoam, 164 rubber objects and 50 pieces of cloth in just three hours.

The data collected is being logged into the State database at Massachusetts Coastal Zone Management in Boston and the National database at The Center for Marine Conservation in Washington D.C.

The data will help scientists and policy makers realize the extent of plastics pollution problem in the marine environment.

WSPA will hold another beach cleanup Saturday, Sept. 23 at Salisbury Beach in Salisbury MA.

For further information on the Salisbury Beach cleanup or the problem of persistent marine debris, contact WSPA at 522-7000.

'Church Family Celebration' Sunday At Bethany Church

The reopening of the Church School will be celebrated this Sunday at the 10 a.m. service at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

Children will be welcomed and participate in the celebration. The focus will be the Church Family around the theme: "Bethany, a Special Place."

The Bethany Folksingers, led by guitarist Carol Ann Bohlen, will sing two selections. The folksingers will also lead the congregation in singing.

A large artistic depiction of Bethany Church will be at the altar and children and adults will place their names in the church on symbolic "stones" indicating their place and commitment to Christ's "Family of Faith." The painting of the Church is the creation of Eugene Ryder, Bethany's artist-in-residence.

As the "stones" are placed, Carol Ann Bohlen will sing "His Banner Over Me Is Love" and "Here We Are."

The Chancel Choir under the direction of Charles J. Blue, Sr., Bethany's Organist, will sing as the offertory Handel's "Alleluia, Amen."

This will be the first service for Elizabeth M. Upton, Bethany's new interim Associate Minister, and she will be presented to the congregation and assist in leading the liturgy.

The senior minister, Rev. J. William Arnold, will have a story for the children and give interpretative comments on Bible passages used in the service. Balloons will be distributed near the close of the celebration.

Sunday morning will begin with a free continental breakfast in the Church social hall, to which everyone is invited. Children will be registered, the teaching staff presented, and the Superintendent Jerry Capobianchi will give a brief overview of the curriculum. Regular classes will begin the following Sunday, Sept. 24 at 10 a.m.

A fellowship hour with light refreshments will be held in the Allen Parlor beginning at 11 a.m. following the celebration.

For more information concerning the programs and ministries of Bethany Church, or to register new pupils, please call the church office at 479-7300.

Squantum First Church Marks 75th Anniversary

Members of First Church of Squantum celebrated the 75th anniversary of their church Sunday in the first of two special anniversary services.

The Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, Pastor, preached on the subject, "From Tent To Temple." He reviewed the history of the church from the summer of 1910 when services were first held in a tent erected on the site of the present Squantum fire station on Huckins Ave. The initial impetus for those services was the need expressed by Squantum mothers for a local Sunday School for their children.

Dr. Langevin spoke of the worship held in the fall of 1911 in the spacious private home of Calvin A. Richards which was then located on the site of the present church. That building was partially destroyed by fire in 1913 at which time the Sunday School had to be moved to an adjacent carriage barn. The church was officially organized in 1914 with fourteen members. Those members built the first church building themselves. It was dedicated on Sept. 20, 1914.

The present building was constructed in 1949 when a larger congregation required roomier quarters. The congregation has been located on the same corner in Squantum since 1911.

Hymns were sung by the congregation, accompanied by pianist Janet Williamson and organist Mary Ruth Scott. The Chancel Choir sang.

Greeters were Luther and Ruth Swenson. Ushers were Tore Wallin and Harry Holmes. The Fellowship Hour was hosted by Evelyn and Sandra Ahearn.

On Saturday, the congregation will gather in Fellowship Hall for a special 75th anniversary banquet. Doris Oberg of the Quincy Historical Society will speak at the dinner.

The church will hold its second anniversary service this Sunday at 10:30 a.m. The Sunday School meets at the same time.

Rally Day At Point Congregational

This Sunday church members, friends and visitors will gather for education, worship and fellowship at Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Sunday will be "rally day" when the church school for all ages, infants through adults, reopens.

The church will begin its new Sunday morning schedule with Church School classes from 9:30 to 10:15 a.m., family worship in the sanctuary from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m., and with refreshments and fellowship time before and after the worship service. Young children not yet ready to remain in the sanctuary for the full hour may choose to join "Kid's Stuff," a new arts and crafts program for children led by adults.

A new bus schedule will also be provided to and from the Senior Citizen's Center at 1000 Southern Artery and Pagnano Towers at 109 Curtis Ave. each Sunday morning

The bus will depart from east and north wings at "1000" Southern Artery at approximately 9:20 a.m. in time for either of two adult classes at 9:30 a.m. There will be a return trip, leaving the church at 10:10 a.m. A second trip by bus will depart at approximately 10:20 a.m. for the worship service at 10:30 a.m. The return trip will be at 11:50 a.m. In every trip, stops will also be made at Pagnano Towers.

Each Sunday, the church will provide a choice of two adult classes. One class will focus initially upon "What Is the United Church of Christ?" and then, throughout the year, a variety of "Issues and Answers," each future topic consisting of three or four Sundays in length. A second informal class will focus upon "Next Sunday's Sermon," a Bible Study in preparation for the following Sunday's service of worship. All church members and friends and new residents of the area are cordially invited to attend one of these adult classes any or all Sundays from 9:30 to 10:10 a.m., prior to the service of worship. For further information call the church office at 773-6424.

This Sunday, worship will begin at 10:30 a.m. and will be led by the pastors, the Reverends Fred and Carol Atwood-Lyon, by Organist and Choir Director Dr. Herman Weiss. An offertory solo will be sung by Jeffrey Sposato, and the Chancel Choir will sing. Quincy Point Congregational Church is located at Southern Artery and Washington St.

Children, young people and adults may register for the Church School any Sunday by coming to the church at 9:30 a.m. or by calling the church office. Mondays through Fridays, 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Friendship Sunday At Lutheran Good Shepherd

Friendship Sunday, Sept.

17, will open the fall schedule of the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, corner of Harvard and West Squantum Sts.

Members of the congregation are inviting friends and neighbors to join them for Sunday School at 9 a.m. and a Holy Communion worship at 10:30 a.m.

Rev. Fred Reis, pastor of University Lutheran Church, Cambridge, as a special Sunday School guest, will perform feats of magic while teaching Christian values to children and adults.

Special music at the worship service will include selections by Mary Jane Rupert on the harp and Lois Cornils on the flute and organ. Refreshments in the vestry will follow the service.

'Soul Of Nature' Sermon Topic At United First Parish

This Sunday Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, minister, will deliver the sermon "The Soul of Nature" during the 10:30 a.m. service at United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents."

In his sermon, Dr. Bennett will reflect on Emerson's "Nature," new thinking in cosmology, and on his recent camping "expedition" to the rain forest in the Olympic National Park.

The Church Choir, Norman Corey, Director, will sing anthems by Bach and Hassler. Mr. Corey will also play organ works by Buxtehude, Stanley and Bach. Dorothy Close and Matthew Malloy will usher and Julie Dzengeleski and Elaine Sincavage will host the social hour.

Visitors are welcome to the worship service and are invited to attend the social hour in the Parish Hall following worship.

The Church School continues registration, continuing through Sept. 24. There are four levels of instruction as well as a Youth Group for teens. Curriculum units include "Read Me a Story" (ages 4-5), "What is Religion - For Others and For Us" (ages 6-9), "That Book - The Bible" (ages 10-12), and "Who Are We, and What Do We Stand For" (teens). There will also be supervised child care for infants and toddlers.

Brenda Chin is the Director.

This year is the 350th Anniversary of the establishment of historic First Parish Church. A leader in liberal religion since its establishment in 1639, "Church of the Presidents" was the life-long home for both Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams. Their tombs stand today in a crypt within the church, along with those of their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine. A special ceremony of celebration is being planned for Sunday, September 24th, at 4 p.m.

The church is located at 1306 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, opposite City Hall. Call 773-1290 for information.

How Much Home Can You Afford?

Pinpointing how much home you can afford can save you money and time. When should you begin? Before you even start looking for that dream home, it's wise to sit down with a Realtor or lender and pencil out what you can really afford.

To determine how much you can afford, you need to estimate these costs and your resources:

1. THE DOWN PAYMENT: Most loans today require a minimum down payment of at least 10 percent, and most often it's 20 percent. Those who can afford a 25 percent down payment typically get special "priority" loan service that can get your loan funded in as little as 10 days.

2. QUALIFYING FOR THE MORTGAGE: Your monthly payment will be comprised of principal, interest, taxes and insurance (called PITI). It should be no more than 25 percent to 28 percent of your gross monthly income.

The total monthly bills for all debts should be no more than 33 percent to 38 percent of your gross monthly income.

3. CLOSING COSTS: In addition to the down payment, buyers must pay fees for the loan and other fees, such as points, to originate the loan. Each point is one percent of the mortgage loan. You can expect to pay between one-and-a-half and five points for your home loan. These charges must be paid in cash at the time of the final transaction, unless you choose, and are able, to include these in your financing.

Finally, three key factors specifically determine your ability to qualify for a home loan:

1. Employment and Income: Lenders will examine your history of employment, stability of income, potential for future earnings, education, vocational training and experience, and any verifiable ity of income, potential for future earnings, education, vocational training and experience, and any verifiable secondary income, such as bonuses, commissions, child support and dividends.

2. Credit Report: Lenders look closely at credit reports. If there are negative issues to be resolved on your report, be prepared to explain each item fully.

3. Assets: Lenders calculate your cash on hand and other assets that can be converted to cash quickly to be used for the down payment. Assets can include savings accounts, current checking account balances, money market funds, certificates of deposit, stocks and bonds. If you are receiving your down payment as a gift, that can be considered an asset too.

Former Quincy mayor Joseph LaRaia and Franklin Jay, a former city treasurer, have filed a lawsuit in Norfolk Superior Court claiming the Quincy Hospital is being unlawfully operated.

The suit charges that money was illegally paid to the present managers of the hospital, HCA Management Corporation and Hospital Corporation of America.

The lawsuit was filed in accordance with a law which permits any taxable resident of a city to contest whether or not the city is following the municipal finance law.

LaRaia has charged that

HCA, a private contractor, is running the hospital, a public facility, for private profit.

This arrangement is a result of the last two multi-year contracts Mayor Francis McCauley negotiated with HCA, he said.

"HCA Management Corporation is being paid approximately $700,000 this fiscal year to run Quincy Hospital. The contract was signed by the mayor and permitted HCA to make a profit."

"Quincy Hospital should not be run permitting others to make a profit," LaRaia said.

On Tuesday, McCauley said he will reserve specific comments on the suit until after he receives a copy of the lawsuit. He has not been served a "bill of particulars."

The mayor, who has clashed with LaRaia over the hospital in the past, then said, "(LaRaia's) raised a lot of questions about the operation of the hospital. They seem to surface every time he runs for office," referring to LaRaia's bid for mayor this year.

LaRaia defended the timing of his lawsuit stating it was in the works two years ago. His lawyer, Sandor Kowal, said his client asked him to file the suit "two or three weeks ago" but was delayed because of the magnitude of the suit.

As for the suit's cost, LaRaia nor Kowal would disclose any figures. Kowal did say the suit has amassed some 25 hours of paper work.

In addition, LaRaia contends that HCA is running the hospital "into the ground so they can pick it up at a low price."

Because of a projected $4 million deficit this year, the hospital is being forced to layoff some 200 employees. Hospital officials point to delinquent insurance reimbursements and changing insurance regulations as the main reason for the shortfall.

To help bail out the hospital, McCauley has stated that the facility may have to be sold. However, LaRaia contends that selling the hospital to a private person will result in an immediate profit.

The lawsuit also charges that the mayor permitted HCA and the director of the hospital to spend money from accounts without City Council approval.

"I believe that if the council had had an opportunity to review the budgets each year from 1982 to the present, we would not be in a situation of operating deficit."

"I believe that if the mayor had properly controlled the manner in which funds were expended, profits made by HCA would be available now to pay future deficits," LaRaia said.

Furthermore, he has charged that McCauley "usurped the authority to run the hospital from the board of managers." Referring to the mayor, LaRaia said, "he signs the contracts, he determines their terms and he policies the contracts."

"He has eliminated the City Council, the elected representatives of the people, from their role under the Municipal Finance Act which is to review budgets, to check expenditures and to cut costs," he said.

"I have further contested the right of the mayor to sell Quincy Hospital to a private corporation. I wonder whether there really is a crisis or whether it is being manufactured," he added.

LaRaia has also asked the court to order HCA Management Corporation and HCA to repay any money paid to them by the city which was not properly authorized or lawful.

Two Quincy Residents Presented McIntyre Memorial Scholarships

Two Quincy residents were recently presented the James R. McIntyre Scholarship following a scholarship golf tournament held at the Wollaston golf Club in honor of the late Quincy mayor and state senator.

The scholarship, presented the past three years to deserving Quincy residents, was awarded this year to Joanne Connolly and Brian J. Malone.

Connolly, a resident of 16 Angus St., is a graduate of the pharmacy program at Northeastern University where she ranked fifth in a class of 186. She has been accepted into the graduate program at the University of Rhode Island where she will study for her doctorate to become a registered pharmacist.

In 1987 and 1988, Connolly received Northeastern's President's Award. She has been active as a student member of the Mass. Society of Hospital Pharmacists.

Malone, of 245 Elmwood Ave., graduated from Boston College High School where he ranked seventh in his class of 263.

He will attend Worcester Polytechnic Institute and study to become a civil engineer. A volunteer at the Children's Developmental Disabilities Center in Quincy, Malone is employed at Quincy Hospital as a houseworker.

The McIntyre Scholarship Fund was initiated in 1986 to assist deserving young people in their college and post-graduate education. In all, six residents have received the scholarship.

Past recipients are: Kerth Segalla, Salem State College and Rosalie Barry, Anna Maria College, 1987; and James Boudreau, University of Mass. at Amherst and Kathleen Sheehy, Providence College, 1988.

After McIntyre's death, a group of friends decided to form a scholarship fund to honor their friend, colleague and leader. The fund commemorates McIntyre's memory and lifetime achievements.

Besides serving as Quincy's mayor and state senator, McIntyre was a former Quincy city councillor and counsel to the Massachusetts State Senate.

A graduate of Boston College High School, Holy Cross College, Harvard Law School and Boston University, he also served in the U.S. Marine Corps during the Korean conflict.

WEEK OF: September 14

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You're a loyal friend, and you're fussy over the smallest detail. On the flip side, you're not always on target when arranging priorities. Travel is the theme of the coming months, and it blends unusually well with education. New interests may lead to enhanced financial status from early to mid 1990.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

The perfect time to treat yourself to a get-away-from-it-all break. Writing skills are sharp. Neighbors may make a request; take your time arriving at your decision.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

Conditions improve in the domestic area, thanks to a bridging of the generation gap. Educational interests are highlighted. You may be taking that course you've always dreamed about.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

Be warned of an abetted streak that may surface during or just after the weekend; it could cause embarrassing moments at the job. Harmony is restored to the homefront.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

Relatives are in a picky mood and your patience may be taxed to the limit, especially during the weekend. As compensation, you'll likely be enjoying some unexpected travel and a financial bonus.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

Finances require review before you commit yourself to making a major purchase. Overdue correspondence arrives at this time. Good week for experimenting with new cuisines.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

Good week for planning a blueprint of the coming three months. It's not so easy, however, to plan for the short term as the week includes surprise visits and surprise obligations.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

Expectations may be unrealistically great or small. This is the right time to evaluate your goals, especially as they relate to the balance of the year. New friendships may be highlighted.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

Improved financial situation does not mean you should go on a spending binge. Indeed, financial prudence is critical at this time. Misunderstandings with partner are cleared by Tuesday.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Thursday-Saturday favor hunting for gifts for your favorite people. Monday-Wednesday highlight financial planning. Creative interests are accented and may lead to renewed self-confidence.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

Good week for planning or attending a reunion. Review recent financial trends before making your next move. Scorpios rarely forget, and this week your memory saves the day-several times.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

Intellectual interests are spotlighted at this time, while a friend or friends are unusually emotional. If traveling, you may want to seek out detours. Delightful invitation arrives after the weekend.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20

Property matters demand your attention at this time; avoid shortcuts in this area. You have a knack for bringing together friends from different walks of life. Celebration may be on tap.

Raymer Accents Running Game

Quincy Hosts Cambridge In Opener Friday

By TOM SULLIVAN
Last year the Quincy football team got off to a slow start with a 1-4 record over the first half of the season. Two of the losses were by one point.

However, the Presidents had a fine second half, winning four of their five games and finishing off with a big win over North Quincy on Thanksgiving.

Coach Jack Raymer hopes his team will start where it left off a year ago when it opens against Suburban League rival Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday night at 7 at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

With Chris Noble, the top passer in Division 1 last fall (22 touchdown passes), and his favorite receiver, Chris Grant (11 TD receptions), gone, Raymer is establishing a running game this season built around Mark Bogan and sophomore Jason Anderson, who had an outstanding year with the freshmen last year, leading the young Presidents to an 8-1 record and their first win over North Quincy in six years.

"We'll do a lot more running this year but we have two quarterbacks in junior Mike Flavin and sophomore Greg Collins who are capable passers and can do the job when called upon," said Raymer. "There is real competition between the two and both will play a lot."

Joining Bogan and Anderson as running backs are Lou Pagnani, Steve O'Donoghue and Bill Reardon.

Veteran Jim Munroe and Steve McInnis will be playing tight end and Chris Fay, Bill Cantelli and Chris Walker, a sophomore transfer from Hull, will be the wide receivers.

The starting tackles will be Co-Capt. Joe Baker (220) and Tony Madden (260).

At guard will be Co-Capt. Tom Merrill (218) and Mike Tempesta (210). The center will be Rich Lallis.

Also slated to see action on Offense will be Scott Buckmann at center, Pap Neil at tackle, Dave Chapman at tight end and Jason Eleuteri, Bob Crespi and Mark Zaborowski at tailback.

On defense Munroe and Graham Chevry will start end end, backed up by Chapman and Bob Crossman.

Baker, Dave Johnston and Lallis will be at tackle, Tempesta and Buckmann at nose guard, Morrill, Dan Erickson, John Dowling, Dave Chevry and Crespi at linebacker, O'Donoghue, Reardon and Flavin at corner back and Bogan, Pagnani, Chris Lewis and John O'Connor at defensive back.

Raymer was pleased with Quincy's showings in scrimmages against Don Bosco and Marshfield.

"We ran the ball well and the defense did well," Raymer said. "Ironically, although we are stressing our running game, we scored three times against Don Bosco on play action passes. We still have work to do, but the team is in fine condition and I think our line will be a strong point, both offensively and defensively."

The Quincy coach watched Cambridge scrimmage Lynn English last week and was impressed.

"They have an outstanding passer (Bobby Mickle) and, as usual, they have an awful lot of speed," he said. "I always hate to open against them as they always seem to play their best against us to open the season. But, we will be ready and I think we will be all right."

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The Squantum Sailors challenge the West Quincy Elks at 6 p.m. and the Quincy Point Panthers open their season against the Houghs Neck Manets at 7:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium Saturday.

Last week, the Manets put the rest of the league on notice that they will be just as tough as last year, as they rolled over the Sailors, 26-0. In the opening game the North Quincy Apaches throttled the West Quincy Elks, 32-0.

Sean Herron rushed for two touchdowns to pace the Manets who also got a touchdown run by Jeff Craig and a five-yard touchdown pass from Brian McPartlin to Mike Auperlee. McPartlin also rushed for a two-point conversion.

The Sailors were led by Brian Franklin, George Wirtz, Peter Yeomans, Mike Rates, Mike Kowilick, Mike McAdams, and James Butts.

The Apaches got off to a fast start and never looked back. Tony Licciardi scampered for a 15-yard score and Sean Nee broke free for a 44-yard TD in the first quarter. Quarterback Dan Duncan ran for the two-point conversion on Nee's score.

Jason Fennessey ran for a one-yard TD with Jeremy Gott rushing for the conversion.

Nate Gott sacked an Elk ball carrier in the end zone for a two-point safety and then rushed 10 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter. Martin Shields scored the two-point conversion.

Sean Halpin, Andrew Vermette, Dave Carney, Mike Koski, Steve Rayne, and Justin Ackerman all played well for NQ.

Mike Elder, Brendan Brack, Tom Malvesti, Dave D'Olympio, Rich Gorman and John Fraser played solid ball for the Elks.

Continental, Granite In Men's Softball Finals

Continental Cable and Granite Rail meet this week in the finals of the Quincy Men's Softball League Class C playoffs.

Cable ousted regular season champion Point Pub while the Rail topped the Hat Rack in the semifinals.

Cable, the sixth and last playoff team and in the finals for the first time, ousted Putnam Investments before upsetting the Point Pub.

Cable was led by the power hitting of designated hitters Rick Tracey (grand slam and a three run homer) and second baseman Steve Goguen (13 for 18).

Pitcher Tom Scolaro and acting coach Wally Farrell have the team playing well and contributing to the team's success are Dave Angelos, Ron Riechart, Dave Lasorda, Joe DiSant, Bruce Kennenbert, Gary Walsh and Billy Wildridge.

Third baseman Scott Mele singlehandedly put Granite Rail in the finals as he went 4 for 4 with a three run homer as the Rail squeezed by Hat Rack, 11-10, in the deciding game of the semifinals.

John McKay had a fine series as did Mike Conlon, Rick Radzik, Bri Cosby, Mo Morris and Jim Nolan. The injury jinx has again hit the rail losing center fielder Dave Morrocco to knee surgery.

McPhee Likes Defense

North Quincy Opens At Milton Saturday

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy football team opens its season Saturday against oldtime non-league opponent Milton at Milton at 1:30 p.m. and coach Ken McPhee feels the defense is ahead of the offense at the present time.

"The defense has looked good and the offense has been coming along," McPhee said. "We are young on offense and it will take a while to jell, but the boys have been working hard and I think we will be all right."

Going into the opener McPhee received a tough break last week when starting quarterback Jim Bryan developed shoulder problems and he is questionable for Saturday.

"I hope Jimmy will be all right but if he isn't, Rich Brooks will be at quarterback," McPhee said. "And I might use my top wide receiver, Co-Captain Kevin MacDougall, there. Bryan has looked very good and we will miss him if he can't play."

North will start with MacDougall, backed up by Chris Deshler, sophomore Desmond Bellott or Wayne McCulley at wide receiver and the tight ends will be Evan Kiley and Mark Kelleher.

Alex Malasi (220) and Scott Leonard (240) will start at tackle, the guards will be Mike Iacobacci, Scott Kemp and Adam Strought and Matt Swierk and Brian Zimmerman will share the center duties.

Co-capt. Keith Gott and Dan Gilmartin top the running backs and they are joined by Bill Earley and Dave Kiley.

Also due to see action on offense is tackle Kevin Heffernan.

Defensive ends will be Kemp, Mike Doherty, Evan Kiley and Kelleher, Malasi; Leonard and Heffernan will be the tackles, Mike Oliver and Zimmerman nose guards, Iacobacci, Earley, Chris McCallum and Jim Ferrara line backers, MacDougall, Gilmartin, Jason April and Chris Peck corner backs and Bellott, Gott, Gary Rawdon and Deshler defensive backs. Deshler will do the punting and place kicking.

Gilmartin, the only returning defensive starter, saw spot action as a running back last year but will carry much of the load this fall.

"We did a good job against Braintree in a scrimmage and, although we didn't do as well as I hoped for against Xaverian, we didn't do that badly," McPhee said. "Xaverian is an outstanding team with 19 players back from last year."

"In our final scrimmage against Weymouth North, we did a good job and we will be ready for Milton. Our line is anchored by Malasi, Leonard and Iacobacci and will have some excellent wide receivers."

Milton had an off year last fall, winning only one game, but coach Jack Bowes, a former North Quincy assistant, has some fine players back.

Milton has a big team but the kicking and passing game are question marks. Bowes has an outstanding running back in veteran Greg McTigue.

"Jack does a fine job and Milton always gives us trouble," McPhee said. "I expect a tough game."

NORTH QUINCY quarterbacks Mike Sweeney, left, Jim Bryan and Serge Wassilew are ready for the Raiders' opener Saturday afternoon at Milton.

Randy Neil, president of the International Cheerleading Foundation, announces that the varsity football cheerleaders of North Quincy High School have received a bid to compete in the 1989 International Open Cheerleading Championships Dec. 29 - 30 at the Opryland Hotel in Nashville, Tenn.

The North Quincy High School cheerleaders became eligible for this important opportunity by being a national award finalist at a regional cheerleading camp

At the IOCC in Nashville the North Quincy cheerleaders will compete for major awards with other high school cheerleading squads from across the country.

"This is the best squad ever, they worked extremely hard all summer and it paid off," said Head Coach Nancy Peduzzi. "We will need to raise a lot of money and I know we can do it. We have very positive attitudes. Because we are an activity and not a sport our budget is extremely low and we will be doing a large amount of fundraising. Any contributions may be sent to North Quincy High School, (Tennessee) Varsity Cheerleaders, c/o Kathy Foster, 288 Fayette St., Quincy 02170.

More than 275 cheerleading squads will participate in the IOCC which will bring together squads from over 45 states and Canada.

Quincy High Schools Begin Voluntary Plastics Recycling

In a major effort to demonstrate a concern for protection of the environment, the three high schools in Quincy will be the first in this area to undertake a voluntary plastics recycling program.

The program starts in the high school cafeterias next week.

School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci, was instrumental in initiating contacts for the plastics recycling program with Plastics Again of Leominster, a plastics recycling firm. School Committee member Margaret Nigro, associate member Sharon Goodman, other School Committee members, and City Councilor Lawrence Chretien encouraged the development of the program. Dr. Ricci recommended the plastics recycling program to the School Committee and it was readily approved.

Last week, Arthur S. Woodward, Director of Secondary Education, met with the high school administrators, other key persons from the schools, and Karen Hilo of Plastics Again.

At the meeting, the organization of the program was completed and plans for implementation were developed.

Elements of environmental concern and rationale for plastics recycling will be explained to students and faculty. There are aspects of the program that will be included in the instructional program.

There are three point recycling stations to be set up. Each station consists of a rack with two bags and a barrel. Polystyrene food services packaging, trays, cups and utensils will be placed in the receptacles that will be strategically placed in the high school cafeterias. Students will be requested to dispose of remnants of foods, waste paper, milk cartons and drinking straws in barrels for regular removal. Polystyrene serving trays, however, are to be deposited in bags by placing them in a specially designed rack. Attached to the tray rack will be another bag to receive the other polystyrene items such as cups, small dishes, and utensils.

Plastics Again will have the bagged polystyrene picked up twice a week and trucked to the recycling plant in Leominster. At the recycling plant the polystyrene is washed and melted and then formed into pellets. While awaiting pickup, the bagged polystyrene will be stored in metal sheds designed and built at Quincy Vocational-Technical School.

Recycled pellets may be used to produce such items as building materials and trays; but, the Food and Drug Administration prohibits their being used to produce food packaging materials.

On Monday, Sept. 18, the voluntary program gets underway at North Quincy High School. On the following day, Sept. 19, the program begins at Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational-Technical School. Other Quincy schools are expected to follow in the near future.

Karen Hilo of Plastics Again will be on hand to help launch the new polystyrene recycling program in the high schools.

The conference, coordinated by Quincy Police Sgt. Dick Laracy, the department's liquor inspector, is aimed at educating teenagers, parents and public about underage drinking.

Shortly after 11 a.m. there will be an information test followed by a question and answer period.

Laracy will conclude the conference with some closing remarks.

Clapgood To Speak At 1000 S.A. Sept. 20

State rep. Marjorie Clapgood will discuss two problems relating to the elderly Wednesday Sept. 20, at the 1000 to 1:30 meeting of the South Shore Coalition of Workers with the elderly at 1000 Southern Artery Activity Room.

"The Massachusetts Budget Puzzle" and "How Can We Maintain Basic Services for the Elderly?" will be the topics.

Clapgood, Sharon and Stoughton representative since 1984, is a member of the Joint Committee on Health Care and Special Legislative Commissions on Non-Profit Hospital Corporations. She is on the task force for Long Term Care Planning for the Health Planning Council of Greater Boston, and in 1987, she was House Chairman for the Sub-Committee on Medicaid.

Golden Featured Speaker At Democratic Brunch Oct. 15

Senator William Golden (D-Weymouth), a candidate for lieutenant governor, will be the featured speaker at the second annual Quincy Democratic City Committee Brunch on Sunday, Oct. 15 at 10 a.m. at the George F. Bryan Post, Broad St., Quincy.

Four hundred people attended last year's event and heard former Attorney General Francis Bellotti deliver the keynote address. Bellotti, a candidate for governor, received an enthusiastic reception to his speech which focused on why he is a Democrat and what his party represents.

Among those attending the brunch were Congressman Brian Donnelly, State Auditor Joseph DeNucci and virtually all Democratic politicians in Quincy.

This year, many state-wide and local political leaders are expected to attend.

According to Quincy Democratic City Committee Chairman Daniel Raymond, special recognition will be given to former Quincy District Court Magistrate Dennis F. Ryan.

"Mr. Ryan exemplified the ideals of our party back in a time when Quincy was Republican by a large majority. Recognizing the dedication of Democrats such as Ryan and people like him will help keep present-day Democrats from taking our success for granted," Raymond said.

"The purpose of the brunch," Raymond added, "is to reaffirm the fact that the Democratic Party best represents most people in Quincy, throughout Massachusetts, and the country."

"We also expect that people will enjoy themselves like they did at last year's event," he said.

Those interested in attending the brunch should contact Archie Wahlberg at 786-8261. Tickets are $10 each.

Golden, elected to the Senate in 1984, serves as chairman of the Joint Committee on Public Safety, the Senate Special Committee on Long-Range Policy Planning and the Special Commission on Indoor Air Pollution. A member of the Committees on Energy, Natural Resources and Agriculture and Criminal Justice, he has served as Chairman of the Joint Committee on Counties and the Special Commission on Liability for Release of Oil and other Hazardous Materials.

As solicitor for the City of Quincy in 1982, Golden initiated the lawsuit to clean up Boston Harbor and Massachusetts Bay. He is the sponsor of a bill which will control escalating rates in those communities struggling with the costs of building and repairing waste-water and water treatment systems.

A 1970 graduate of Yale University, he received a law degree from Boston University in 1974 and a masters degree in public administration from Harvard University in 1981.

Paul Joubert Named To NU Council Board

Paul G. Joubert of North Quincy, was recently appointed as a director of Northeastern University's National Council.

Joubert is a managing partner at Coopers and Lybrand in Boston.

The National Council consists of alumni who, by their professional accomplishments, bring honor to the University. The council meets annually to advise on university programs and discuss issues relating to higher education.

D. Scott Deware

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK.

Do you look forward to looking in your mailbox each day to see what "goodies" or the opposite await you? Most of us do. The letter from an old friend can cast a radiance over the entire day. At the same time unpaid bills, junk mail, circulars, etc. can cast a pall over the rest of the day.

Whether it is long or short, just a card with a bit of news, or an invitation - a visit from the mailman is a meaningful experience. But how many of us use our talents in writing letters? We all can write a cheerful word, but are we taking the time to do it?

Let's think about letters in a different way. Let's think about us - you and I - as letters. Through our deeds, our gifts, our very being, each of us is writing a living letter... Our enthusiasm can be a letter of contagion; our carelessness a letter of dismay; our thoughtfulness a letter of kindness; our happiness a letter of joy. Yes, you and I are letters and we can be letters on the pages of the human heart!

Hazardous Waste Incinerators Question On Nov. 7 Ballot

A non-binding initiative question pertaining to local siting of hazardous waste incineration facilities will appear on the November Quincy election ballot.

Last week, a the City Council approved a recently submitted petition to place the question before the voters. The ballot question, which reads "Do you favor the construction of a hazardous waste incinerator in the city of Quincy or in any towns abutting Quincy?" is to receive only Quincy, not statewide, voter consideration.

The only proposed facility which the ballot question applies to is Clean Harbors' proposal to site a hazardous waste incinerator in Braintree near the Fore River industrial basin.

A new citizens group calling itself "Quincy United for the Environment" (QUE) is sponsoring the ballot question.

Brian Sindorf, a Quincy resident and co-chairperson of QUE, said, "The question serves a vehicle for Quincy residents to make a collective statement on the matter of a local hazardous waste incineration facility. In the current instance, the real issue being addressed is the Clean Harbors proposal for a facility in Braintree."

John McGlynn, also of Quincy and the other co-chairperson of the group added, "When the election takes place, we believe that a resounding 'no' to what Clean Harbors wants to do will be heard from city residents."

Both Sindorf and McGlynn stated that QUE's sponsorship of the ballot question derives from a concern about the health and safety problems presented by siting a chemical incinerator in a thickly populated area.

Working with political and community leaders, neighborhood associations and concerned residents, QUE intends to campaign on the hazardous waste question between now and the day of the election, Nov. 7.

Among the people who signed the petition creating the ballot question were councilors Stephen McGrath, James Sheets, Patricia Toland, Timothy Cahill, Ted DeCristofaro and Lawrence Chretien as well as council candidates Peter Kolson and Joseph Shea.

2 Suspects Still Sought 2 Plead Innocent To Kidnapping, Beating Milton Youth

By JANE ARENA

Two Quincy men pleaded innocent Tuesday in Quincy District Court to charges of kidnapping and severely beating a 15 year old Milton youth who was tied to a tree in Cunningham Park last month brutally beaten and believed left for dead.

The two are being held on bail for a continuance Sept. 22, according to Quincy District Court clerk.

On Monday police arrested John O'Neill, 21 of 71 Tirrell St., at Hub Mail in Boston where he is employed in the stock room. According to police he also gave the address of 93 Lafayette St. in Randolph.

Charles McCarthy, 22, of 46 Macy St., the other suspect, had been sentenced earlier Monday by a Dedham District Court to a two-year jail term in the Norfolk House of Correction on burglary charges. He also had pending charges from Quincy District Court on operating under the influence and "other charges," according to Asst. Dist. Atty. Mary Anne Hinkle.

McCarthy is being held on $500,000 assurity and $50,000 cash bail. O'Neill is held on $100,000 assurity and $10,000 cash bail.

Two other suspects in the beating, a 16 year old Houghs Neck juvenile and a 21 year old North Quincy man, were still at large as of Tuesday afternoon, said Quincy Police Detective Lt. Neil MacDonald. MacDonald said he expected the juvenile to turn himself in.

The 15 year old victim said he was stopped in Cunningham Park, which borders Quincy and Milton, at about 5:30 p.m. Aug. 18 by two men who apparently wanted directions from him, Atty. Mary Anne Hinkle said.

He was then dragged from his dirt bike and attacked by the men. The boy was tied around a tree with the shoelaces from his boots and was hit and bit in the head area repeatedly and kicked and hit in the legs with tree limbs, Hinkle told Judge Lewis Whitman Tuesday.

She said the victim believed he had seen two other men take his dirt bike from the woods. The bike was later sold to a Quincy man and recovered by police.

The victim was discovered by a park ranger between 6:15 and 6:30 p.m. Hinkle said.

"The Commonwealth believes the boy was left to die," Hinkle said Tuesday.

After a hospital stay of several days, during which time the victim received 16 stitches in his head, he was released and is recovering from injuries, Lt. MacDonald said.

MacDonald said the arrests were made with the help of several witnesses who told police they had seen the suspects before and after the beating Aug. 18.

Witnesses told police they had seen the suspects getting off an MBTA bus in West Quincy. A package store owner also told police that they had bought beer, and others say they saw the men going into the woods at Cunningham Park.

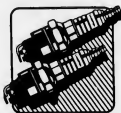

"We have a bunch of good people in Quincy who aren't afraid to help their local police," MacDonald said.

McCarthy and O'Neill were both charged with kidnapping assault with intent to murder, assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (teeth, feet, and tree limbs), and theft of a motor vehicle.

A BRONZE PLAQUE outside the Thomas Crane Public Library signifies the library has been designated a National Historic Landmark by the National Park Service and the U.S. Department of the Interior. A designation ceremony was held Tuesday at the library. The year, 1987, indicates when the library was named a historical landmark.

Crane Library Designated National Historic Landmark

The Thomas Crane Public Library was officially designated a National Historic Landmark during ceremonies Tuesday morning at the library's main branch in Quincy Square.

Several city officials including Mayor Francis McCauley, Sen. Paul Harold, Councillors Patricia Toland and Michael Cheney as well as library personnel and trustees attended the ceremony.

The ceremony featured remarks by Director Warren Watson and Marianne Peak, the superintendent of the Adams National Historic Site.

A bronze plaque signifying the designation has been placed outside the library near the front steps. The ceremony was moved indoors because of inclement weather.

Last year, the library's trustees were informed that the Crane Library has national historic significance in U.S. history. The designation encourages the owners to preserve the structure and also qualifies the library for federal assistance.

The library was designated a National Historic Landmark by the Department of the Interior after careful evaluation by the National Park System Advisory Board.

Designed by Architect Henry Hobson Richardson, the Crane Library represents Richardson's "simplest library plan but his best." Constructed in random ashlar of Milford granite with red Longmeadow sandstone trim, the library was commissioned in 1880 and dedicated in 1882.

On Feb. 20, 1880, Albert Crane of New York offered the town of Quincy a library dedicated to his father, Thomas Crane (1803-1875), a New York dealer in Quincy granite. Though New York was his home, Crane spent many summers in Quincy and continued to visit the town frequently until his death.

Design and landscaping were turned over to the Richardson and Landscape Frederick Law Olmstead. Construction began in December, 1880.

In 1908, an addition, the gift of the Crane family, was made to the rear by Architect William Aiken who had worked in Richardson's office. The wing houses additional stacks in a design matching Richardson's in scale, materials and detailing - very important to continuity, Peak noted.

In 1939, the Albert Crane Memorial Wing was added to the building to the southeast with funds provided in the estate of Albert Crane and augmented by a Works Project Administration grant. The wing, designed to copy the original, nearly doubled the library's size.

The most decorative work, Peak noted, was done by John

Cost Per Ton Down $9 New Rubbish Contract To Save City $470,000

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city has renegotiated its rubbish collection and disposal contract with Browning Ferris Industries which will save Quincy more than $470,000 during calendar year 1990, Mayor Francis McCauley announced Tuesday.

McCauley noted that some $210,000 of the total savings will be realized in fiscal year 1990. However, the mayor said he has no plans for the money at this point.

"It's a savings. (The money) is there if things are tight. We can reach into it," McCauley said.

The mayor said he did not want to earmark the money for any specific cause yet because the city remains in a tight financial state. He noted that the city's free cash account is down to $711,000, with an extra $80,000 in the UDAG fund.

"(Free cash) is very tight. In the course of a fiscal year, we've been accustomed to spending two to two and a half million dollars over budget.

"I have to be very cautious. I have to be very tight on spending."

"History tells me that I'll have to fund some things that I don't have much control over. I'm going to watch it," he added.

Under the terms of the new contract, the city's disposal cost per ton will reduce from $85 to $76 per ton. In addition, the cost of hauling refuse to landfills to Southeastern Massachusetts will be included in the collection cost.

According to Public Works Commissioner David Colton who represented Quincy in the negotiations, the city will save about $11 per ton in disposal and hauling costs.

He pointed out that the disposal rate will drop $9 a ton and the hauling rate will drop $2 per ton. However, Colton noted that the city will now pay a lump sum for the hauling, not by the ton.

The annual cost of collection and hauling will be $1.9 million with disposal at $76 per ton for a total

Shannon Praises Police Dept. At New Station Dedication

Speaking before nearly 400 people at the dedication of the new Quincy Police Station Tuesday, Attorney General James Shannon called the city's department "one of the finest in the Commonwealth."

Shannon, the keynote speaker, made his remarks inside the George F. Bryan VFW Hall. The ceremony was forced inside due to inclement weather.

The ceremony was attended by many state and city officials as well as dozens of law enforcement officers including Sen. Paul Harold, Mayor Francis McCauley, Rep. Michael Morrissey, District Attorney William Delahunt and Chief Francis Finn.

City councillors who attended the ceremony included President Patricia Toland, Timothy Cahill, Charles Phelan, Ted DeCristofaro, Tom Nutley and James Sheets.

The opening marked the culmination of a five-year planning effort. It essentially replaces a facility built that was built in 1925 and has had no major renovations since that time.

The $9 million project, which architecturally incorporates the shell of the original building, includes a total remodeling of the original structure and an addition which more than doubles the size of the facility.

Shannon, who said Quincy police officers are held in the highest esteem by the state's law enforcement community, said, "Today, you finally have the state-of-the-art station this city really deserves."

Among the features of the new station are suicide prevention cells comprised of plexi-glass, computerized

Halt Hazardous Waste Incinerator Urges City Health Commissioner

Quincy Public Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue told the City Council Monday that the proposal for a hazardous waste rotary kiln incinerator in the Fore River basin should be halted and that a study on air quality in the area should be conducted.

Appearing before the council's Environmental Control Committee, Gallahue said, "Quincy has to continue to prove why the incinerator should not be on site."

"I think that's a total reversal of what should have happened. I don't even think an incinerator should be sited in a congested area that has nine sources of emissions," she said.

Clean Harbors, Inc., a

Braintree-based firm, has proposed to operate an incinerator on the Fore River industrial basin.

The area is already home to several major industries, including Proctor and Gamble. In all, there are nine sources of air pollutants in the area.

"Someone has to take that into account," Gallahue said referring to the emissions. "Let's look at the cumulative effect of these emissions and put a stop to it," she added.

Asked whether residents are more at a health risk if the incinerator is allowed to operate, Gallahue replied there is not enough technical research to prove that.

But, she added, "If I feel you have a stress population, you don't add a hazardous waste incinerator to the area. There are too many emissions in the area as it is."

A study released this past summer showed a high incidence of lung cancer among some populations in Houghton Neck and Germantown. The direct cause of this has not been pinpointed but some officials believe the poor air quality caused by some industries has contributed to the incidence.

Quincy Personnel Director David Smith, who sits with Gallahue on the city's Environmental Task Force, said he agrees with the commissioner's statements "110 percent."

"What needs to be done is a total and complete air quality analysis taking into effect all of the major sources of air pollution in the area," he said. Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney said the state has done virtually nothing to help Quincy's cause regarding Clean Harbors. "It's just another slap in the face for the city of Quincy from the state," he said.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro asked Gallahue to look into the cost of hiring a private firm to do an independent air monitoring study.

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets, one of two mayoral candidates, said, "We should do everything humanly possible to delay the (permit granting) process," adding that it the city stands a better chance to defeat the plan with a new state administration coming in next year.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley said "Our future depends on our legislative clout. We're going to have to make an awful lot of noise."

"We've got to raise hell to save our city," he added.

Also at the meeting, the founders of Quincy United for the Environment, a group opposed to the incinerator, appealed for public donations to help their campaign.

Founders Brian Syndorf and John McGlynn, both of Quincy, spearheaded the effort to get a question on the city's November ballot regarding opposition and support for the incinerator.

Residents wishing to contribute to the organization can send a donation to Quincy United for the Environment, 10 Fowler St., Quincy MA 02169.

Cheney and DeCristofaro both presented personal checks to help launch the campaign.

Historic District Expansion Runs Into Opposition

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A proposal to expand the city's historic district was met with more opposition than support at a public hearing Monday at City Hall, prompting a former mayor to suggest a solution to the matter.

Some 30 people expressed their opposition to the proposal while a dozen went on record in favor of the plan set forth by the Quincy Historical Commission.

The plan was developed after an 11-month study by hired preservation consultants.

As proposed, the historic district would expand into three areas:

- Merrymount Rd. and Saville Ave., to the north and south and Southern Artery to the east.
- The President's Hill section of the city.
- Hancock St. at Chestnut and Granite Sts. to School and Elm Sts.

The present district was formed 14 years ago by a city ordinance. It includes the Quincy Center Historic District and The Adams Birthplace Historic District.

Quincy Center buildings already in the district include City Hall, United First Parish Church, the Adams Building, Thomas Crane Public Library, Bethany Church, the Woodward School and the Adams National Historic Site.

In 1975, the City Council voted 8-1 to establish the Quincy Historical Commission and the historic districts. The ordinance was then signed by Mayor Walter Hannon.

An expansion of the present district would require approval by the City Council and the Mayor.

At Monday's hearing, proponents said the plan would preserve Quincy's historical character and architectural integrity while enhancing neighborhoods and boosting property values.

Opponents countered that the proposal would add another level of bureaucracy to city government and encroach on a citizen's right to alter his or home as they wish.

After residents representing both view points appeared before the council, former mayor Arthur Tobin suggested making the entire city a historic district.

Tobin, whose home would be included, if the district were expanded, said the city might be able to fend off intervention by the MWRA and other groups if the entire city were a historic district.

"Maybe we should make the entire city a historic district. If so, maybe we wouldn't have to put up with the sludge (treatment facility)," Tobin told the council.

"If the city of Quincy is historic, let's make the entire city of Quincy a historic district," he added.

Tobin was the lone councillor who voted against establishing the commission 14 years ago.

It appeared that more people were inclined to support expanding the district in Quincy Square and President's Hill but were against enlarging it in the Merrymount Rd.-Saville Ave. area.

Some councillors, such as Michael Cheney, Lawrence Chretien and Timothy Cahill, said they were concerned that expanding the district would prevent residents from acquiring building variances because the proposed change would not meet Quincy Historical District standards.

Chairman Joyce Baker replied, "We've always been able to work things out. It's cosmetics more than anything."

"We have not had a problem up to this point," she said.

According to consultant Patricia Kenyon, only exterior work requiring a building permit would be affected by the district. She also said the district would make sure houses and buildings are compatible with other dominant architectural styles.

Councillors and residents also said the historic district might delay the building permit granting process even more. The Zoning Board of Appeals sometimes meets well before the council, and they would be resolving building permit matters.

Furthermore, Cahill said there is a feeling among some residents that the homeowner is unduly restricted in acquiring a permit while developers are not.

"I don't know if that's justified or not but that's the feeling people have," he said.

Baker replied, "We have never turned anyone down. (The district) is not a hindrance," she said, adding there is a time constraint only because the commission usually meets just once a month.

Cahill did go on record in support of expanding the district from Quincy Center along Hancock St. to Elm and School Sts.

Among the public supporters of the plan is Doris Oberg, a member of the commission and the city's historian.

"There's never been a problem with a homeowner. Time isn't much of a problem because people who decide to change their home don't do it overnight," she said.

One resident said the plan would preserve the city's own integrity while another called it "a wonderful idea."

However, there were more critics present at Monday's meeting.

Kathleen Kiley of Monroe Rd., who also owns a house located in a historic district in Sandwich, said she has had problems adhering to guidelines such as paint color and types of windows.

"I've lived through this once. I really don't want to live through it again," she said.

Kiley also pointed out that historical guidelines could change as personnel on the commission changes.

Another resident said the improved property values would hurt low to middle income home owners by increasing taxes.

"I think we're over-extending ourselves," he said.

Motor License Granted

A Motor II license was granted on Tuesday by the Quincy License Commissioners to Michael DeAngelo, owner of "Only Volvos" at 350 Sea St., with several stipulations.

The license for one year only is limited to six cars at one time, with the added stipulation that there will be no advertising on the cars.

Police Chief Francis Finn noted that in the past the lot on Sea St., a main road, was not a nice looking place.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, who spoke in favor of the granting of the Motor II license, stated that DeAngelo had already agreed to all the stipulations.

"It will not look like a honky-tonk operation," he said. "There will be no advertising. Parking will be at the rear of the lot and not in front. Cars will be shown by appointment only."

HOW SHOULD I BUY INSURANCE

Few people buy insurance voluntarily. On the whole, they must be persuaded that protection against exposure is vital in today's business climate.

The insurance business is very specialized and those who sell it should be well-versed in policies, coverages and restrictions. The individual who sells insurance should not be merely a salesman, but an expert advisor, knowledgeable in his field, and able to discourage as well as recommend, according to the particular case.

At our company, the representatives are trained to assist you in selecting exactly the coverage you need. You will be fully informed as to the details that you will need to know in order to make an informed decision. And you can be assured that we will never sell you more than you need

A Few Questions

You might say there are two big questions as the now two-man mayoral race heads toward the final showdown Nov. 7.

A. Can Jim Sheets continue where he left off in last week's preliminary election when he came on like gangbusters to top the four-man field with plenty to spare?

B. Can Peter O'Connell who won the second nomination impressively

O'CONNELL

in his first bid for public office gas up with the needed momentum to catch and pass Sheets?

If the answer to Question A. is "Yes" then Sheets would certainly appear to be in the driver's seat.

But if the answer to Question B. is also "Yes," stand back folks, we're in for one heck of a finale.

And, it should be a clean fight. Sheets and O'Connell are friendly political rivals with a lot of respect for one another. Friendly enough that Sheet's wife, Joanne, works for the O'Connell Co. and campaigns for her husband.

A preliminary election win is no guarantee of final victory. And, with nearly seven weeks left before the Nov. 7 winner-take-all showdown, anything can happen.

But Sheets' powerful performance in last week's preliminary election certainly puts him in a good, strong position.

Coming out of the preliminary election in the top spot packages him as an attractive candidate. And, it will make it easier for him to raise the needed money for the final campaign.

But, O'Connell is an attractive candidate too, and one who can raise money as he has already shown.

And, considering that in his very first run for office, he defeated the early front-runner, Steve McGrath and former mayor Joseph LaRaia -- both veterans of Quincy's political arena -- you would have to say he is an effective campaigner for a newcomer.

Sheets received 7,749 votes or 35 percent of the vote to O'Connell's 5,903 or 27 percent. McGrath was third with 4,976 or 22 percent and LaRaia lagged behind with 3,121 or 14 percent.

If the election had been held three or four weeks earlier, O'Connell might have topped the field. Polls reportedly showed him in the lead then with McGrath and Sheets fighting it out for the second spot.

But Sheets came on with a rush the final two weeks and soared into first place.

Back in January and February when the mayoral field lined up, Sheets was cast as the darkhorse by some observers and an also-ran by others. A few called him a "sleeper."

Sheets' biggest drawback, some thought, was the fact he was trying to step into the mayor's office from a ward council seat. It couldn't be done, they said.

The last one to do that was Walter Hannon who ran out of Ward 5 in 1971. But he had the blessing and support of James McIntyre, one of the city's most powerful political figures in history.

A mayoral candidate has to have city-wide exposure, it was said. Sheets has been 16 years a Ward 4 councillor. McGrath, a councillor at-large, would have a better shot at the mayor's office, they argued and cast him as the candidate to beat.

But Sheets insisted he could do it. He pointed to his 28 years as a teacher at Quincy Junior College. Many of his former students still lived in Quincy -- throughout the city. He also noted he had run city-wide for the Congressional seat in 1978 and carried Quincy against eventual winner, Brian Donnelly, in the primary election.

There are a few more questions waiting to be answered as the campaign heats up for the big showdown.

Did Sheets peak in the preliminary? Did he do the better job of getting his vote out? And if so, how much more is there out there for him?

SHEETS

His campaign manager, Tom Koch, says he doesn't believe Sheets peaked. That there are still plenty of votes waiting for him next time when maybe 60 percent or more of the voters go to the polls. The preliminary election attracted 46 percent.

"Our strength wasn't confined to Ward 4," Koch says. "We showed strength city-wide and we believe it will be there in November."

It may all come down to a simple matter of preference on the part of voters.

Do they want as their mayor a candidate who has been a part of City Hall for 16 years with a lot of political experience. Or do they want a fresh new face with no political experience but a lot of business and management experience!

ANOTHER BIG FACTOR in the Sheets-O'Connell battle could be who will get most of the McGrath and LaRaia supporters. Between them, they polled over 8,000 votes in the preliminary.

There is already speculation that McGrath might become city solicitor in a Sheets administration.

McGrath might be inclined to go with a fellow city councillor. LaRaia could go either way.

Incidentally, there has been no meeting between O'Connell and LaRaia as reported elsewhere.

SCHOOL COMMITTEEWOMAN Mary Collins was the top vote-getter on last week's ballot, with 9,823. Which is nothing new for her.

When the results were in, someone congratulated her and said: "How do you do it? You really didn't campaign that hard."

"I campaign every day," she said.
"Not just at election time."

If there is a future woman mayor on the present
Quincy political scene, it would probably be her.

But she's not interested in running for mayor. Well, not this year anyway.

FINE

It is nothing unusual because he gets a lot of news releases delivered to him.

But when he opened this envelope, it was no news release.

Inside was a note from a former Quincy resident whom Fontaine knows well. The note said he was happy that Fontaine's son had been nominated because he had heard good things about him. And, he said he would like to help him in the election campaign.

With the note was a crisp $100 bill and five neat $20 bills.

Fontaine, who was flabbergasted, declined to identify the sender other than that "he is active in organizational circles."

INTEREST IN LAST week's mayoral preliminary election reached all the way to the White House.

Ron Kaufman, who was New England coordinator for George Bush's presidential campaign and is now one of his top aides in the White House, twice called The Sun election night for updates on the election.

Kaufman particularly wanted to know how his good friend Jim Sheets was doing.

Kaufman, a former student of Sheets at Quincy Junior College, worked for him in his first run for the Ward 4 seat in 1973.

He was happy to hear that Sheets had the top mayoral spot clinched.

Asked if he had given Sheets any advice in this year's mayoral campaign, Kaufman said:

"Oh, no, Jim doesn't need advice from me.
Remember, he was my teacher and I was his student.
And, he was a good teacher."

OBSERVATION: There is nothing as politically obscene as campaign signs of losing candidates still up after election day.

22 Guards Lost

MDC Says Police Will Man School Crossing Posts

Despite the loss of 22 Metropolitan District Commission school crossing guards next month, the commission guarantees that the posts will be filled and maintained by police personnel, an MDC spokesman said Monday.

"There will absolutely be no reduction in coverage. The MDC police personnel will take the place of the 22 crossing guards being reduced," said Leanne DelVecchio, a spokesman for the MDC.

According to DelVecchio, MDC police personnel will be reassigned from desk clerical duties and lower assignments to the crossing guard posts.

She also said the police personnel will not be subject to emergency responses.

"They will be at these sites. Our first priority is the children and the public at large and that's why we're reorganizing our staff to make up for the loss.

"It's important for (the parents and school children) to know there won't be a reduction in coverage," DelVecchio said.

Because of budget problems, 22 of 44 guards are being reduced. Twenty-one guards will be laid off and another lost through attrition effective Friday, Oct. 13, DelVecchio said.

The MDC's police payroll account has a projected deficit of $959,631 this fiscal year, DelVecchio noted.

To correct the shortfall, the MDC is implementing four cost saving measures.

Laying off 21 guards and reducing one through attrition for a savings of $182,000.

Cutting the subsidiary account for equipment and supplies by $435,000.

Transferring $152,000 from the overtime account.

Losing 30 police personnel through attrition totaling $190,000.

The four measures total $959,000 and should "just about cover" the deficit, DelVecchio noted.

In Quincy, the MDC mans three school crossing posts: On Furnace Brook Parkway at the Bernazzani School, at Furnace Brook and Reardon St., and Quincy Shore Drive and Squanto Rd.

One parent, Betty Swanton of 10 Samoset Ave., said she and other parents are concerned about the MDC's reduction. In the past, the MDC has been "unreliable" at times when filing in for crossing guards, she said.

Swanton, whose 10-year old child attends the Merrymount School and crosses Quincy Shore Drive at Squanto Rd., said "two years ago, our crossing guard was hit by a car while trying to protect a child." Following the accident, the police didn't cover for her one day, she explained.

"We have a history of knowing we can't depend (on the MDC). If it's an MDC road, kids should not be crossing without a guard," Swanton said.

DelVecchio who said there was a misconception about the reductions and fill-in coverage, emphasized there will be a policeman not subject to emergency calls at all crossing posts.

"I want to emphasize that the MDC is reorganizing personnel to make up that difference in coverage so that all crossing paths will be covered.

"We are guaranteeing that we will have a police officer there who is not subject to emergency calls," DelVecchio said.

Dennison Airport Marks 8th Year

Dennison Airport in North Quincy celebrated its eighth anniversary with 10 planes based at the field, five of them used to rookie air travelers on brief spins around Boston Harbor.

"We have really been missionaries for the airlines," said Manager Hal Martin.

"Persons who have never flown before come down here for a short hop and then when they want to make a trip of any distance, they turn to the airlines without the slightest hint of hesitation.

"It is not unusual for us to fly 1,000 persons over a weekend on short hops."

Quincy was ordered to reinstate 32 laborers who had been fired in violation of civil services regulations in May and the city was faced with the possibility of having to pay them $13,440 in back pay.

Durkin Urges School Guards Restored At Crossings

Quincy School Committee Stephen Durkin has written to Metropolitan District Police Commissioner Ilyas Bhatti, as well as to members of Quincy's State Legislative delegation, urging the restoration of MDC school crossing guards which have been cut from the agency's budget.

Quincy uses three MDC School crossing guards, including one on Quincy Shore Drive for children attending the Merrymount School.

Durkin noted in his Sept. 18 letter that an MDC crossing guard was struck by a car on Quincy Shore Drive "a couple of years ago" due to heavy traffic and speeding.

"The problem (of speeding) will only be compounded by eliminating the crossing guard," the letter states.

Although Durkin said that the budget crisis at the state level is facing the cuts state agencies, he suggested that "Paying modest salaries to individuals hired to protect our children does not constitute the sort of wasteful spending that angers taxpayers."

The MDC is reportedly planning to prioritize crossing guard locations restoring some of the crossing guards. Additionally, it has been reported that MDC police officers will cover in locations which are not served by a crossing guard.

"I find these arrangements unacceptable," Durkin said. "The use of regular police officers to man school crossings has proven to be entirely unreliable in the past, and there is no reason to think that it would be any different now."

Durkin strongly urged the MDC to reconsider its plans to eliminate crossing guards in Quincy and throughout the Metropolitan District "so that a tragedy might be averted."

Love In A Brown Bag

Few things can be as intimidating as a brown paper lunch bag. Mothers everywhere carefully contemplate the possible contents of these sacks everyday. Office workers carry them to save money, time or both. Some people carry them because there's no handy "Joe's Dinner" at their jobsite. And, of course, there are always those who carry a diet lunch because they're trying to lose weight.

What foods will supply the nutrients you need and still be tasty and interesting? Are those favorite cookies and candy bars tucked in for a special treat really healthful?

Here are some nutritious alternatives:
Serve sandwiches on whole-grain bread with chicken or tuna salad. While white bread has been fortified with vitamins and minerals, it doesn't contain necessary fiber. Low-fat proteins like chicken and tuna are good choices in a tossed salad made with a variety of vegetables. Include fun finger foods like crisp raw vegetables, stuffed celery, deviled eggs, and mini fruit kabobs made of pieces of fresh fruit skewered on toothpicks. Make zucchini or pumpkin muffins with your favorite recipe, but cut down on the sugar.

For even less sugar, bake Diet Center Apple Spice Cookies:

1 egg, beaten;
2 Tbsp DC Protein Powder;
1 1/2 tsp powdered milk;
1/2 tsp sweetener;
1/4 tsp baking soda;

1/4 tsp cinnamon;
1/4 tsp nutmeg;
1/2 tsp vanilla;
1 apple, grated;
2 Tbsp unprocessed bran.
Combine beaten egg, protein powder, milk, sweetener, baking soda, spices, and vanilla. Beat well. Add grated apple and bran. Drop by teaspoonful onto a cookie sheet sprayed with Pam or similar product. Bake at 350 for 12 to 15 minutes.

You may be surprised to find that you will enjoy these nutritious foods. Many times, it is the way you prepare them that makes all the difference. Foods that look good also taste better, so use your imagination. And, best of all, compared to those sugared snacks that leave you hungry shortly after lunch, the above foods are high in fiber and bulk, having what the Diet Center call "staying power". Because these foods take longer to digest, you'll be satisfied and less tempted to seek the candy machine at break-time.

Whether you're fixing a bag lunch for yourself or your children, be good to yourself and follow these nutritious guidelines.

Crack Addiction Treated With Acupuncture

By DANIEL S. KARP
Licensed Acupuncturist

Crack addiction treated with acupuncture has had some excellent results.

The primary reason for this is due to the fact that acupuncture acts immediately upon the intense craving the addict experiences to have crack.

Patients who I have treated have expressed surprise that their craving for crack was not severe after an initial treatment, and they were able to control their urge for further use of the drug. Each acupuncture treatment created less need for crack, and my patients were able to remain crack free.

Treatment by acupuncture for crack addiction is relatively simple. Sterilized, disposable acupuncture needles are used at several locations on the ear. They remain inserted for approximately 40 minutes, at no discomfort to the patient. This tends to produce a relaxed state in the patient, and it is not unusual to find that the patient dozes during his treatment.

It is important to receive acupuncture treatments on a daily basis for at least a week. The treatment, along with the relaxed state that is created as a by-product, given daily, reinforces the previous day's results, and therefore keeps the patient comfortable, without craving, and drug free; the detoxification process is hastened.

Acupuncture treatment can certainly help the drug addiction; however, it is also important to consider the psychological problems, or the habitual needs.

I have recommended that my patients seek counseling to understand, perhaps, why there was a need or even a desire to use crack, or for that matter, any kind of illegal drug. Along with therapy, a patient should be involved with Narcotics Anonymous, which is, in my opinion, an excellent support group.

I hope this information is helpful to you. If there is anything I can do to assist in the alleviation of crack addiction, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Gruyere is a variation of Swiss cheese with a slightly sweeter flavor due to natural flavoring enzymes. No coloring or bleached milk is used, as may be the case with some Swiss cheeses.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Cutting Children's Cholesterol

Doctors now believe the heavy use of saturated fats in the American diet is a major contributor to heart disease. Fortunately, families and food companies are tuning in to this situation and working to eliminate cholesterol and highly saturated tropical oils from the American diet.

For example, there is no cholesterol, very little saturated fat and no tropical oils in Sunshine's Grubamy Bears and Animal Crackers. For more than a decade Sunshine has been baking exclusively with vegetable shortening, rather than the lower in cost—but higher in cholesterol—animal fats used by many others.

Families should be careful in cooking and shopping. For example:

- Use a rack when broiling, roasting or baking so the fat can drain off.
- Tomato or fruit juice or bouillon can replace basting to keep meat moist.
- Keep on hand snacks that are free of cholesterol and highly saturated fats.
- Look to read labels carefully when shopping. This will help you choose foods with little or no cholesterol and saturated fats for yourself and your family.

Chiropractic Update
by Mark C. Jaehnig D.C.

WHAT IS CHIROPRACTIC?

Chiropractic is that branch of the healing arts that deals with the structure and function of the spine, and specializes in the evaluation and treatment of back and neck pain among other symptoms. Chiropractors feel that the cause of many back and neck problems stems from the misalignment of one or more of the 33 spinal bones (called vertebrae), and the subsequent nerve pressure that may result. A Doctor of Chiropractic may often use an x-ray and extensive diagnostic tests to determine if such a misaligned vertebrae and/or "pinched nerve" exists. These "pinched nerves" may often be the cause of back and neck pain, headaches, or perhaps pain, tingling and/or numbness in an arm or leg. It is the job of the chiropractor to determine if such a problem exists, and to correct it; naturally, without medication or surgery.

The Doctor of Chiropractic uses techniques learned through years of study whereby he/she applies pressure with his/her hands to areas of the spine that are misaligned, in order to restore joint mobility and function and relieve pressure on pain sensitive structures. A chiropractic adjustment provides a safe, painless, drug free, method for reducing the pain and pressure caused by the pinched nerve or misaligned vertebrae.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 440 Hancock Street, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, Pastor, preached on the subject, "This Church We Have".

The hymn "Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory" was sung with the words written by Lillie B. Titus for the dedication of the first building of the church on Sunday, Sept. 20, 1914. The sung benediction that concluded the service was one that Dr. Langevin had written.

Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross

School Dept. Receives Human Services Grant

School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci announces that the School Department has obtained a Comprehensive Health Education and Human Services Grant from the Massachusetts Department of Education.

The amount of the award is $55,370 for the first year. There is a three-year funding cycle to the program. Quincy may apply for year two and three funding not to exceed $150,000. The term of this year's award is July 1, 1989 to June 30, 1990.

In securing the competitive award Quincy was one of only seven communities in the Greater Boston area to be funded. Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, the official contact person, will administer the grant.

The original application was submitted to the Department of Education in May 1989. The state required that each applicant address current programs, long term goals, needs assessment, coordination with school based programs, community linkages, staffing, inservice education, program continuation, and school and community support.

Competing school districts are required to have an active health advisory council. The Quincy council was established in 1987 and is composed of 38 members who represent the community health agencies and schools. Members of the council assisted staff in developing the application.

In his cover letter of the application, Dr. Edmond L. Demski, Chairman of the Council said: "With cooperation of staff, consultants, parents, students and health agencies, the Superintendent has put into motion an outstanding comprehensive long range plan. Key elements are integration of health units in areas of basic skills, home economics, physical education and nursing."

Features of the proposal include a half time health education position for both elementary and high schools. The system currently has a part-time health educator for middle schools. Funds are provided for specialized mental health services, teacher workshops, peer education program and student seminars.

Environmental Fair At Quincy Junior College Saturday

Sludge and toxic waste join clean water and global warming at Quincy Junior College's second annual Environmental Fair Saturday, Sept. 23 from 20-3 p.m. at the college's Saville Hall.

Fair organizers have announced that this year's fair will have two areas of focus. The first will include general environmental issues from recycling and household hazardous waste to the latest on global warming. The second is a special focus this year on the Fore River Basin.

The four major corporations whose activity will most affect the Fore River area - the Mass. Water Resources Authority (MWRRA), Clean Harbors, Boston Edison, and Procter & Gamble -- have all been invited to explain their plans for handling sludge, incinerating toxic wastes, and development of their facilities at this day-long event. Citizens groups who oppose some of the activities of these corporations, including Citizens Organized to Defend the Environment (CODE) and Quincy United for the Environment (QUE) will also be there.

Fair Chairman Leo Kelly explains that while there has been much controversy, it is often hard for the citizen to really understand what the issues, and what the facts, are. "The purpose of this part of the Fair," according to Kelly, "is for people to come, hear what everyone has to say, and make up their own minds." A scale model of the Fore River Basin will be on loan from the city of Quincy and representatives from the different groups and businesses will be on hand to explain their points of view.

Many other environmental issues will also be discussed.

as 50 exhibitors explore a wide range of environmental, health, and related issues. Organizer Don Gratz, the College's Executive Director of Continuing Education, describes the Fair as a chance to learn something while having a good time. "Most people know that there are problems with the environment," says Gratz, "but many don't know the specifics. What are the recycling options and how do they save money? What can you do about hazardous wastes around your house? What is the debate about incineration? What is being done to clean up the harbor? What can the average citizen do to help?"

Gratz lists a variety of agencies and organizations, from the Union of Concerned Scientists and Audubon Society to state and federal agencies, who will be in attendance. But, he warns that the Fair will not just be serious and scientific. There will be activities for children to participate in, a weather station showing how weather is predicted, and music provided by Arc Hive, a group which specializes in music related to the environment. Admission is free.

In addition, Civil Defense Deputy Director Anthony Siciliano will set up a booth. As chairman of the Local Emergency Planning Committee, Siciliano will be available for lectures throughout the day.

College President O. Clayton Johnson says the fair is another educational tool, part of the college's mission to serve the community. "We're talking some controversial issues," says Johnson, "and presenting them in an open and even-handed way, so that people can ask questions and learn. We're also bringing the expertise of some 50 groups together in one place, a really unusual educational resource. I hope people will take advantage of it."

McDuff Donates $400 For Spray System At Animal Shelter

Quincy Animal League President John McDuff donated a $400 check to the City Council Monday which will pay for the cleaning-disinfectant spray system installed at the recently opened animal shelter.

"The system will add to the comfort and sanitation of the animals there," McDuff informed the councillors.

"I believe that the shelter is a monument not only to the determination and involvement of our league, but also the commitment of your administration on behalf of Quincy's animals," McDuff told Mayor Francis McCauley earlier this month.

"We are happy to be of some small help to the shelter and to the city with this donation, and please be assured of our continued interest in the years ahead," McDuff added.

Ground Breaking For Bay Pointe Marina Postponed

Groundbreaking ceremonies scheduled for Wednesday at Bay Pointe Marina, 64 Washington Court, Quincy were postponed.

A new date will be set. Renovations, scheduled for completion next summer, include an all-wood monolithic dock system for 232 boats, 20,000 square foot inside storage building, 50-ton travellift, ship's chandlery and shower and laundry facilities.

Bay Pointe Marina, located off Route 3A, is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Quinoin Industries.

The marina's site is rich in local maritime heritage. The most significant historical data relates to the partnership between Charles C. Hanley of Bourne and Capt. Lorenzo Dow Baker of Wellfleet. Hanley, the operating partner, was notably famous for the construction of catboats, a small sailing craft indigenous to the New England waters, and very much coveted by those interested in the history of wooden sailing craft.

During the partnership, first known as Hanley Construction Co. and ultimately known as Baker Yacht Basin, considerable construction buildings, stone bulkheads, timber wharves and a large marine railway was undertaken in the late 1890s and early 1900s.

1940s concentrating on repair services for large steam vessels. During World War I, they contracted for and delivered 20 submarine chasers, and in the late 1920s built a number of fishing boats unique at the time for their design and high speed.

The site was sold to a realty holding company in 1943 and sold again in 1953 to Bruton Corp., but the Baker family continued operation until 1964 when the elder Baker son passed away and the land was leased to the Bevans family who operated the site as a marina until 1988.

Bay Pointe Marina began operation in November 1988 and renovations are currently underway.

Crane Library Designated National Historical Landmark

LaFarge in the windows. "In the window to the right of the fireplace is a small panel which is perhaps LaFarge's most beautiful work in glass.

"It is at once like a mosaic and like a relief. The flesh of the figures is, for example, of rough surfaced pink quartz.

"The effect is a jewel of Byzantine splendor, quite unlike any glass work of any other period," she said.

Overall, Peak noted that "The Crane Library is outstanding among Richardson's five designs for its overall simplicity and the success with which these architectural elements are combined."

Most of Richardson's libraries were designed to house not only books, but were also community cultural centers, art museums, natural history collections and lecture halls.

"They reflect the late 19th century flowering of popular education in this country paralleled by the Chataqua and other mass cultural movements. They also serve as memorials to men who had helped to build small town America," Peak said.

According to Peak, the Crane Library was evaluated along with many other sites associated with U.S. history. Any site or structure selected as a National Historic Landmark must relate to a theme of U.S. history and must retain enough historic physical character to clearly illustrate a historic person, event, building type or important archeological era.

After the ceremony, Watson presented McCauley with a photo of the Richardson House as a token of appreciation for the mayor's kindness toward the library. Watson noted that the library's budget has increased slightly every year McCauley has been in office.

United First Parish Church To Celebrate 350 Years At Special Service Sunday

This Sunday afternoon at 4 p.m., the congregation of United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents," will hold a special service of celebration to mark the 350th anniversary of its establishment on Sept. 26, 1639.

The Rev. Dr. William F. Schultz, President of the Unitarian Universalist Association, will deliver the main address "Memories of Tomorrow." The Rev. Sheldon W. Bennett, Ph.D., Minister of the church, will also make remarks as to the historical significance of the occasion and offer a prayer. Bryan L. Donovan, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Church, will say words of welcome.

The Rev. Dr. Rhys Williams, will bring greetings from First and Second Church in Boston, which itself was established in 1630 and has historical connection to the Quincy Congregation.

The Rev. James Workman, Minister of First Congregational Church in Braintree, will say the invocation. The Braintree Church had been established in 1707, as the South Church, the daughter church of First Parish, enabling the division of Old Braintree into two precincts, the North Precinct later to become the town of Quincy.

Mayor Francis McCauley will bring greetings on behalf of the City of Quincy.

The church choir, under the direction of Norman Corey, will sing anthems by Buxtehude and Vaughan Williams. The choir will also sing two original works written by church members especially for the occasion - "Guardian of Freedom," a choral introit by John Dowd, and "Within These Walls," a prayer response by Betty Bond.

Corey will also play organ works by Telemann and Hayden. Jane Harrison, Oboe; Patrick Jordan, Viola; and Dean Snogren, Trumpet; will play as guest instrumentalists. Members of the choir of All Souls Unitarian Universalist Church in Braintree, will also be singing in the choir.

Forrest I. Neal and Kay Johnson will be greeters. Ushers will be Richard and Ardis Porter, Bill and Nancy Westland, Richard E. Post, Barbara Wiggins, and James Van Doren. Walter Wrigley will serve as Marshall to lead the procession of invited clergy and participants.

Following the ceremony, there will be a reception in the Parish Hall. The reception is being hosted by members of the United Quincy Alliance, Carolyn Pickel, President.

Then, on Tuesday Evening, Sept. 26, the Church is holding a Reunion Dinner for members and friends of the congregation. Members of the Church will perform an original musical skit, "Over My Dead Body," featuring "historical figures from the nether world." The script and music has been written especially for the event by Betty Bond.

Historic First Parish Church was the life-long home for both Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams. Their tombs stand in a crypt within the church, along with those of their wives, Abigail and Louisa Catherine.

The church is located at 1306 Hancock Street, Quincy Center, opposite the T station. Call 773-1290 for information.

Planning Board To Hold Three Public Hearings Sept. 27

The Quincy Planning Board will hold three public hearings Wednesday, Sept. 27 beginning at 7 p.m. in the second floor conference room, Quincy City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St.

The board will consider proposed amendments to three zoning ordinances.

At 7 p.m., the board will consider an amendment which would prohibit drive-in banks and other retail or consumer service establishments where a motorist does not have to leave his car in Business A.

At 7:15 p.m., the board will

In addition, the committee could rule that more engineering or other studies be required to determine the feasibility of the land.

Lastly, the committee could designate experts to assist them in developing studies to be required by applicants. In that case, the applicant would be required to compensate the experts.

At 7:30 p.m., the board will consider a definitive subdivision plan titled "Victory Road Extension" filed by Boston Harbor Marina Company.

The proposed plan may be examined at the Department of Planning and Development, Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Southern Artery: A New Look, Bright Future

By JANE ARENA

Quincy's Southern Artery has a new, healthy look and what should be a bright future.

Businesses along his main highway have been expanding, remodeling, and improving their locations for the past year.

And it's paying off. While business may be down elsewhere, it's on the upswing here as a result of the work going into the area.

A special promotion "Back To The Artery Week" will begin Monday, Sept. 25 with special discounts and prizes to celebrate the "new" Southern Artery.

Among some of the changes in the area:

- The Bank of New England-South has entirely redone its branch office inside and out and added landscaping and new lighting.

- Quirk Ford has expanded its display lot.

- Roman Gardens Restaurant has totally remodeled inside and out.

- Quincy Minute Car Wash has added about $100,000 in new equipment.

- An old service station has been transformed into a successful Cellular One Phone store.

- McDonald's and Wendy's have both completed exterior work and added seating.

- Bentley's Steak House has expanded and is undergoing extensive remodeling to the dining room.

That's just some of it. How did it all come about?

The recent completion of the new Quincy Police station might be part of the reason. Or it might be a case of one business following another's lead.

But down there on the Artery, they think its mostly because of good old fashioned pride.

"Everybody seems to say negative things about Quincy," says Sylvia Jenkins of Bank of New England. "It's nice to be able to say to people 'hey, we're here, we're putting money into our business. We like Quincy.'"

And most businesses involved agree that the entire area has benefited from the mass improvements. Business has shown a marked improvement in many cases, and the Southern Artery business area simply looks better. That is reason to celebrate, and that's just what the Artery is going to do.

Jenkins is going to do a week-long promotional celebration on Southern Artery and several area business will be participating in the event which starts Monday. Artery business will have special discounts, coupons, prize giveaways and other promotional intesiments to celebrate the new look and pride in Southern Artery.

The bank will have special drawings for savings bonds, balloons and other promotional items.

"It's going to be good for Quincy," Jenkins says. "Quincy should be proud of what it has...Southern Artery is here to stay."

Area businesses agree.

"The Artery is one of the most desirable places for business in Quincy, even in the whole South Shore area," says Danny Quirk, owner of Quirk Ford on Southern Artery.

During the past year Quirk purchased the former Morey Pearl Restaurant and expanded their display lot by 200 feet. Quirk Ford has been on Southern Artery since 1981.

"I have a very good feeling about the Southern Artery," Quirk says. "The Artery seems to be more heavily travelled now than ever...it's just tremendous. I wish there were more land available on the Artery."

Quirk said he is definitely going to be involved in the Back To The Artery celebration week.

The Cellular One Phone Store, 555 Southern Artery will also celebrate "Back To The Artery Week." The store was entirely remodeled from an converted service station and is one of nine franchise retail phone stores. Business-wise the Southern Artery store is rated among the top 3.

Sales Manager Lawrence Rosenblatt attributes this in part to the Southern Artery location.

"Quincy looks like it's trying to have a breakthrough somehow," he says. "As far as Southern Artery goes, it's a good road to do business on. It's not a real congested road and there are enough services so that it should be a one-stop shopping area for people."

For the promotional week, Cellular One will have drawings for a free Z-Lok auto security system and $50 off the price of a car phone. Rosenblatt said.

Quint's Greenhouse, 761 Southern Artery, which has remodeled its exterior this year, will be giving away a flower to customers who come in during the promotional week. Owner Ira Quint said the store may have special window displays to celebrate too.

Area restaurants are also getting in on the celebration.

The Roman Gardens Restaurant, 653 Southern Artery, has redone the entire restaurant, inside and out within the past year, adding a new state-of-the-art kitchen and a pub.

Vice President John Findley says the renovations of his restaurant have helped his business.

"What I'm finding is that people who go out to dinner once or twice a week are now coming here every week. There are a lot of repeat customers."

"All the businesses have been improving," he says. "They're all doing what they can to make the artery look better, the way it should be."

Roman Gardens will offer special discounts and coupons during the promotional week, Findley said.

Bentley's Steak House, 579 Southern Artery, which has undergone renovations in the lounge including a new lighting and sound system, will also offer special discounts or coupons during the celebration.

Owner Brian Leonard says he has a lot to celebrate.

"Quincy is a good place to do business," he says, adding that the Southern Artery location has been especially good for him.

Bentley's is currently undergoing additional renovations to the dining area which Leonard says should be completed within a month and a half.

McDonald's, 473 Southern Artery, opened in 1979 and is about to celebrate its 10th anniversary. The store underwent a lot of upgrading this year, says spokeswoman Ann Connolly, including a newly remodeled lobby, improvements to the drive-through as well as entirely renovated restrooms and kitchen. Construction and renovations are still underway, Connolly says.

"The Southern Artery is certainly an area that's undergoing positive changes," Connolly said, "especially in the business area. We're very glad to be there."

Wendy's, 520 Southern Artery, has added a greenhouse area which in turn expanded the seating by about 25 seats. The store was one of the first in the area to upgrade their business said manager Larry Hannon. Adding that he has noticed other businesses on the Artery upgrading too. The whole atmosphere of the Southern Artery business area has improved, he says.

"We've seen a lot more families and professional people in the area," he says, "and we've seen a lot more support from local businesses and especially the senior citizens."

Hannon said that Wendy's will offer specials for the Back To The Artery Week and added that additional promotional items will be featured in October.

Quincy Minute Car Wash, 459 Southern Artery, will also be included in the celebration, perhaps giving away a free car wash, said owner Paul Holland. The car wash has undergone extensive renovations during the course of the past two years. About $100,000 worth of new equipment has been added. Holland said, most recently a new conveyor.

"All up and down the Artery businesses have improved," he said. "Just about everybody has done something to their place...the whole city of Quincy is on the way up. Quincy is a nice place to live and to do business."

Dunkin' Donuts, 543 Southern Artery, which has added an express service area and expanded the front of the store this year, also sees reason to celebrate.

"Southern Artery, the whole area looks very nice," says manager Octavio Carvalho. "Everybody's upgraded and it makes everything look good. I believe business is picking up."

Sylvia Jenkins, who has worked with Southern Artery businesses in organizing "Back To The Artery Week," is hopeful that other areas of Quincy will take note of what is going on along Southern Artery.

MAYOR FRANCIS MCCAULEY addresses the gathering at the dedication of the new Quincy Police Station Tuesday which was held at the Bryan Post because of inclement weather. McCauley said the new facility is "second to none."

POLICE CHIEF Francis Finn was a featured speaker at Tuesday's dedication of the new Quincy Police Headquarters. Some 400 people attended the ceremony held inside at the VFW Bryan Post because of rain.

ATTORNEY GENERAL James Shannon was the keynote speaker at Tuesday's dedication of the city's new $9 million police station in his address, Shannon, called the Quincy Police Department one of the finest in the state.

communications system and a new radio system.

"This is a police headquarters for today and also for tomorrow," Shannon said. Chief Finn added, "We should now move into the 1990s and beyond."

However, a department is much more than just a facility, the attorney general pointed out. He said dedicated officers are needed to make a department effective and successful.

"The building would be no more than a shell without these dedicated officers. This modern police facility says a lot of how the (Quincy) community values its police department," Shannon said.

Public Works Commissioner David Colton, who along with former commissioner Paul Anderson took control of the project, noted that the facility was built with Quincy taxpayer money only.

"There was no assistance from the state or federal government, Colton explained.

Shannon also said citizens should acknowledge the police department's efforts and successes and realize they have difficult jobs.

"The police will never get all the support they deserve. People expect you to deliver the sun, the moon and the stars and to do it yesterday."

"Yes, today you have a new police station. Just as important, the police have repeatedly shown that in this city, it has the right stuff to get the job done," he said.

Colton praised many people, including councilors and other officials, for contributing to the project.

McCauley acknowledged that the project has had some difficulties regarding flooding and other minor problems. However, he also pointed out that the project was completed within budget.

"Things are in pretty good shape but some other things need to be worked out," McCauley said, who added the new facility is "second to none."

New Rubbish Contract To Save City $470,000

estimated cost for 1990 just over $5 million.

The current agreement called for a $1.3 million collection price, a $14.98 per ton hauling cost and an $85 per ton disposal cost for a total of $5.5 million.

The new contract is for one year with a one-year option.

The city was able to strike a deal with BFI in part because the firm was looking for contract security with Quincy, Colton said.

From BFI's perspective, the firm knew the city could have put the contract out to bid. This was something they wanted to avoid because given the city's financial condition, the city might have been forced to take a low bid to save money, Colton explained. "BFI wants to stay in the city. They're a long time customer and they are giving us excellent service," Colton said.

According to McCauley, the city began its relationship with BFI during the Amelio Della Chiesa administration some 30 years ago. BFI's service to Quincy was interrupted briefly after Mayor Joseph LaRaia took office. He hired a smaller firm to collect Quincy's trash.

In 1975, Mayor Walter Hannon combined the rubbish and collection contract. "It's worked out very well over the years," McCauley said of the setup.

The mayor spoke highly of BFI's service during his administration. In the seven and half years, McCauley said he has received only "four or five" complaints from residents.

"They do an excellent job," the mayor noted, adding the new contract "insures that reliable full-service curbside pick-up provided by BFI for many years will continue."

"It is doubtful that another firm could provide the service to the city as the same level as BFI," he said.

McCauley also commended Colton's negotiating efforts, noting that the new contract "has put a lid on the escalating cost for hauling rubbish."

Two years ago, BFI projected that rubbish collection would cost nearly $100 a ton.

The city's present contract was for three years with the last year an option. The option year was to have commenced Jan. 1, 1990 pending city approval.

Over the last five weeks, Colton and BFI President Joseph Verocchi met weekly to work out the new contract.

Colton decided to open negotiations after reviewing the city's short-term options. Colton had a new contract bid opening tentatively scheduled for Oct. 31, 1989 should negotiations have failed.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Pre-arranged/ pre-financed funerals contracted with licensed funeral directors make economic sense and are increasing every year.

There are many reasons for pre-arranging a funeral. Some people are left alone in this world and want the assurance of a decent funeral and burial; others feel a responsibility to alleviate some of the duties of survivors when death occurs. And in our mobile society today, many have moved to distant places and want the "Home town" funeral director to serve in the event of death. Some wish to set approximate funeral and cost guidelines for survivors. There are almost as many reasons for pre-arranging funerals as there are people requesting them.

We at the Deware Funeral Home encourage those interested in pre-arranging and/or pre-financing to contact us at any time. Please feel free to call us or stop by. We will gladly assist you at no cost or obligation.

A Third Generation Continues Our Traditions.

Quincy has changed a great deal since Sweeney Funeral Home was established in 1917. But, it's nice to know some things will never change. Like the observance of traditional values and customs.

At Sweeney Funeral Homes, older residents are quick to notice the subtle reminders of yesteryear, such as the grey gloves our funeral director still wears. Like the characteristic top hat and tails that our founder, Dennis Sweeney, wore over 30 years ago, they reflect our Tradition. One that has been built on a dignified and instinctive concern for the city's bereaved families for three generations.

Today, our founder's grand-nephew, Dennis S. Sweeney has continued the family's philosophy of maintaining a beautiful, home-like atmosphere.

And like his namesake, who started pre-arrangements in the 1940s, Dennis believes in helping residents to plan for the future. Pre-planning means that this financial decision is not left for a family to decide while they are attempting to cope with a major personal loss. It's a difficult time, a time when family members are least able to make the wisest choice.

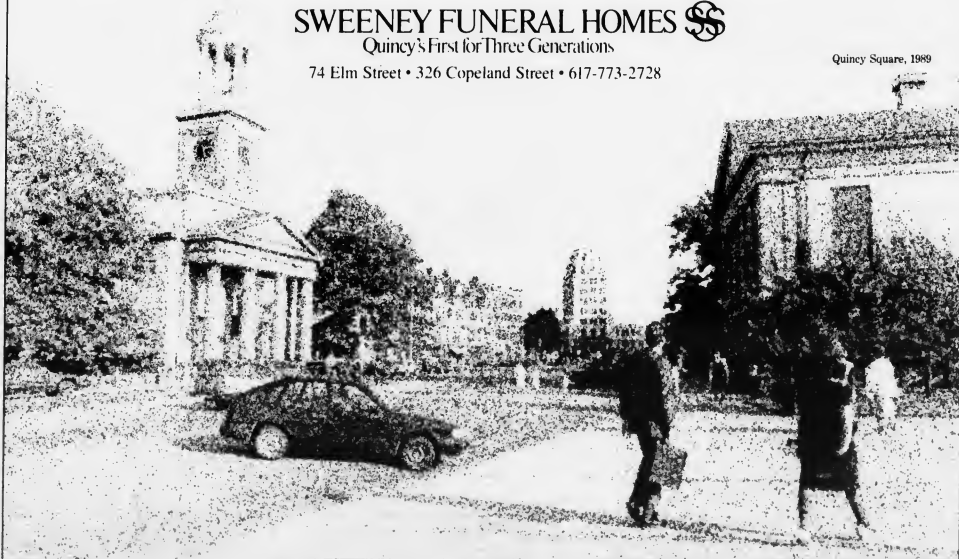

Sweeney Funeral Homes has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years. Call Dennis Sweeney at (617) 773-2728 for a free consultation. There's no time like the present.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer

Don't Become A Crime Victim

Don't allow yourself to become a crime victim. This simple quiz will help you to determine the possibility of your being a victim.

In your home:

- Do you have a wide angle "through the door" viewer so that you can tell who is at your door before you open it?
- Do you use only last name and initial by your door bell, and on your mailbox?
- Do you keep window shades down and blinds closed at night?
- Do you keep your doors locked even when you are at home?
- Do you refuse to open the door to any caller who cannot present proper credentials?
- Do you avoid leaving notes on your door, or newspapers on your porch which advertise that your note home?
- Do you refuse to give your name, number and address to an unknown caller?

• If a stranger should come to your house and ask to see the phone, would you keep the door closed and offer to make the call for him?

• Did you have the locks or cylinders changed when you moved into your new home or apartment?

• Do you have the phone number of the police department on a piece of tape attached to the telephone?

• Do you have deadbolt auxiliary locks on all exterior doors?

• If you receive a disturbing or lewd phone call, do you hang up immediately?

• Do you plan so that you do not need to "hide" a key under the door mat, mail box or flower pot?

In your car:

- Do you keep your windows at least three quarters rolled up and doors locked when driving?
- Do you make sure you have enough gasoline when traveling at night?
- If you have car trouble, do you raise the hood and go back into your car and lock yourself in?
- When you park your car do you put your valuables in the trunk, or out of sight?
- Do you check the rear seat before getting into the car to be sure it is empty?
- Do you check your spare tire from time to time to make sure it is in good condition?

How well did you score?

Every "no" may indicate a vulnerability in your security practices. As you eliminate your "no" answers you improve your chances of not being a victim of crime.

AIDS Conference At ENC Sept. 27

The Quincy AIDS Consortium will conduct a conference for care providers entitled "AIDS - A Caring Response" will be held Wednesday, Sept. 27 at Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy.

Interested members in the fields of counseling, dentistry, education, medicine, nursing, pastoral-care, social services and concerned community members are invited to attend.

The conference, to start at 8 a.m. and conclude at 5 p.m., has three purposes:

- To sensitize the community to both the scope and needs of people with AIDS.

- To support Care Providers as they confront the demands of caring for people impacted by AIDS.

- To support Care Providers as they confront the demands of caring for people impacted by AIDS.

- To develop a network of Care Providers to insure access of services to those impacted by AIDS in the community.

By 1992, there will be more than 365,000 AIDS cases in the U.S. with more than 263,000 of AIDS-related deaths.

An estimated 1.5 million Americans are currently infected.

In Quincy, 15 people have been diagnosed with AIDS. Given that many people pursue treatment in Boston facilities experts suggest that there are at least three times that number of people diagnosed with AIDS.

The Quincy AIDS Consortium consists of 22 service providers who have expressed their commitment to ensure barrier-free access to the full-range of medical, social and mental health services for people on the South Shore whose lives have been affected by the spectrum of H.I.V. infection and AIDS.

A variety of presentations will be offered at the conference. The presenters will offer important and different perspectives on the AIDS crisis and its impact, particularly on care providers.

People with AIDS and their family members will speak at the session. The press has been asked not to cover this portion.

Urges NYNEX To Negotiate In 'Good Faith'

The City Council is urging NYNEX to negotiate "in good faith" with the two unions which are currently striking against the communications firm, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) and the Communication of Workers of America (CWA).

A resolution introduced by Councillors Lawrence Chretien and Patricia Toland Monday asks NYNEX to "negotiate in good faith with the IBEW and the CWA and to offer its workers benefit packages equivalent to those offered by the other regional telephone companies."

Chretien said the strike, which began Aug. 6, is "obviously causing a lot of problems for people in Quincy."

"It's clear something is amiss in regard to the negotiations," he said, adding the council is not taking a stand on the strike.

However, Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, who asked to be included as a co-sponsor, said he supports the workers.

Councillor Stephen McGrath, who has endorsed by the IBEW in his unsuccessful run for mayor, also requested to be a co-sponsor.

Building Permit For Brackett St. Condos Expires

The building permit for the condominium project on Brackett St. and Southern Artery has expired, prompting Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney to ask that the land be rezoned to planned unit development.

Speaking at Monday's City Council meeting, Cheney said he was informed by Building Inspector Matt Mulvey that the project's building permit has expired.

"The city is left with a building that's going to be incomplete," he said. As such, Cheney has decided to seek a zoning change for the land from Residence B to PUD.

Cheney said it is unlikely the contractor will apply for another permit because of the soft condominium market. If finished, each unit would have to be rented out for $2,000 a piece per month to break even, Cheney said.

Presidents Host Waltham Friday Night

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy football team, fresh from a shaky 20-12 victory over Cambridge Rindge and Latin last Friday night, will host Waltham Friday night at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium. Waltham, which edged the Presidents, 14-13, a year ago, looked strong last week in losing to potent Leominster, 18-13.

"This wasn't pretty, but it was a good opening night win for us," said Quincy Coach Jack Raymer. "The defense was excellent and did a great job against their outstanding quarterback (Bob Mickle) who is one of the finest passers around. He really scared me with his long bombs but we contained him well and I was pleased that we held them to 12 points.

"We should have scored a couple of more touchdowns and can't afford to pass up golden opportunities like that against Waltham. But, we have a lot of young players who will improve each week."

Junior Mark Bogan, starting his first varsity game, was virtually a one-man show for Quincy as he did just about everything.

He carried 25 times for 129 yards, scored two touchdowns and a two-point conversion, ran back a kickoff 45 yards and a punt 35 yards, recovered a fumble, punted well, kicked off and did a fine job in the secondary, knocking down Mickle's long bombs.

"Mark was just outstanding and he has a tremendous future," Raymer said. "We couldn't ask him to do any more than he did tonight. And sophomore Gary Collins did a fine job at quarterback and he will do a good job in that spot, he passed well when he had to, including a touchdown pass, and he handled the ball well."

He was four for six for 41 yards.

Raymer lauded Mike Flavin, Jim Munroe, Joe Baker, Graham Chevy, Dave Johnston, Mike Tempesta, Tom Morrell, Steve O'Donoghue, who had a key pass interception; Bill Reardon, Bogan, Lou Pagnani and John O'Connor for their work on defense.

Mickle completed only five of 22 passes but they were good for 154 yards and a touchdown. He had two passes intercepted and was sacked twice.

Bogan got the game off to a fast start as he ran the opening kickoff back all the way from his 10 to the Cambridge 45. He and Pagnani carried to the 16, but Cambridge held and took over on its two-yard line.

O'Donoghue intercepted a Mickle pass and returned it to the Cambridge 17. Four plays later Collins, who completed a screen pass to Bogan on the previous play, threw his first varsity touchdown pass to Munroe, covering 12 yards. Bogan's kick for the extra point was no good.

Mickle soon showed why he is rated one of the league's finest passers when he hit Dave Swinton for 34 yards and two plays later hit Jason Trammell with a touchdown pass covering 52 yards. A pass for the extra point was no good and it was 6-6.

Following the kickoff,

Quincy drove 59 yards for its second score, with Bogan leading the way and Pagnani and Collins also picking up good ground. Bogan scored from the one and also rushed for the two-point conversion to put Quincy ahead, 14-6.

The Presidents had another golden opportunity to score after Bogan ran a punt back 25 yards to Cambridge's 40. However, Cambridge again held and for the second time took over on its two-yard line.

Mickle again led a scoring drive for Cambridge as he hit Swindell for a 34-yard gain and Jerome Furtado scored from the three to move Cambridge to within two points. A rush for the tying points was stopped short.

Bogan recovered a fumbled Cambridge lateral but Quincy couldn't capitalize. The Presidents held and took over on the Cambridge 22 but the visitors recovered a fumble on their 18.

Four passes were incomplete as the Quincy secondary did its part well and with 2:15 left to play Bogan went through the left side for 18 yards and his second touchdown. His kick for extra point was blocked.

Cambridge wasn't quite done and Mickle's pass to Swindle was good for 37 yards to Quincy's 24 but the secondary again tightened up and forced Mickle into four incompletions.

Quincy had a net of 47 yards rushing to 55 for Cambridge and had 13 first downs to 10 for Cambridge.

North Quincy 8, Milton 6

Raiders Look For Offense At Newton N.

No football team has given North Quincy any more trouble through the years than old time rival Milton.

Last year the Raiders eked out an 8-7 decision.

It was the same story last Saturday when North Quincy pulled out an 8-6 victory without scoring a touchdown.

Coach Ken McPhee hopes the offense will pick up Saturday when the Raiders face Newton North at Newton in their Suburban League opener at 1:30 p.m.

Newton defeated Needham 14-0, last week in its opener and last year lost to North Quincy, 20-14.

"The defense was superb," said McPhee following the Milton squeaker. "We held them to two first downs and their only score came when they recovered a fumble deep in our territory."

"Offensively we had some good plays and did what we had to do. Richie Brooks was outstanding at quarterback filling in for the injured Jimmy Bryan (nine for 11 passing for 72 yards) and he ran the team well."

Keith Gott ran very well and set up the first of Chris Deshler's two field goals by carrying four times for 45 yards to Milton's seven. Dave Kiley also ran well.

"Deshler had a fabulous day," McPhee said. "In addition to his two field goals, he had a big pass reception, kicked off and did some outstanding punting, averaging over 40 yards a punt."

Mike Iacobacci and Desmond Bellot, who had a fine kickoff return, had good games on offense.

Defensive coach Earl Metzler had good words for Alex Malasi, Brian Zimmerman, Mike Oliver, Scott Leonard, Scott Kemp and Mike Doherty in the defensive line and Iacobacci, Bellot, Gary Rawdon and Jason April in the secondary. North ran for 107 yards. Milton had only two pass completions in seven tries for only 12 yards. The game was cleanly played without a single 15-yard penalty. North was penalized eight times for 32 yards and Milton had only one five-yard penalty.

Early in the game North pinned Milton back inside the five-yard line and Bill Earley broke through to tackle quarterback Greg McTigue in the end zone for a safety and a 2-0 lead.

In the second quarter Deshler kicked his first field goal, a 29-yarder, to increase the North lead to 5-0 at the half.

Milton took a 6-5 lead in the third quarter when it recovered a fumble on North's 11. It took five plays before Brendan Glynn scored from the one.

Midway in the fourth quarter Gott ran for 12, 17, 11 and five yards and Deshler kicked his second field goal a 25-yarder to give the Raiders their win.

North may have scored a touchdown as time was running out but, rather than take a chance on losing the ball, North just fell on the ball until the final whistle.

—TOM SULLIVAN

Jayvees, Freshmen Make It A Clean Sweep

By PETE ZOIA

The North Quincy football teams enjoyed a clean sweep over Milton over the weekend as the junior varsity won, 16-6, and the freshmen romped, 30-8, following the varsity's 8-6 victory last Saturday.

Coach Kevin Kelly's freshmen came from behind in the first quarter to score 24 unanswered points to win easily.

North scored early on a three-yard run by Erik Delorey but Milton retaliated on a 40-yard run and added the point for an 8-6 lead.

Liam Higgins passed to Pat Shea in the second quarter for 44 yards and the first of Shea's three touchdowns. Eric Kane added the two-point conversion and North led, 14-8. A fine block by Peter Licciardi cleared the way for Kane. Higgins hit Shea again for 24 yards and a score and Nick Mastrogiacommo added the two points as North led, 22-8, at the half.

The third quarter was scoreless but Milton drove to North's 11 but was stopped by Shea's pass interception.

In the fourth quarter Shea came up with another pass interception on Milton's 26 and returned it for his third touchdown. Delorey added the final two points of the game.

Josh Gott ran for nine yards and again for four on the final two plays of the game.

Kelly, pleased with the result, lauded Brian Strout for his two-way play at tackle. Bill Deleogore for his work at the other defensive take spot and Jim O'Connell for his blocking at guard.

The freshmen will host Newton North Friday.

An early break helped the North Jayvees score quickly. Milton was set to punt but the snap from center went over the punter's head and North had the ball on Milton's six. Chris Melchin went through the left side for the score and Chris Murray added the two-point conversion.

Milton scored early in the second quarter on a 45-yard pass play.

North threatened in the third quarter but was stopped on the Milton 12.

A poor punt by Milton gave North the ball on the Milton 34. Melchin and Murray alternated to carry to the six only to have Milton stiffen and take over. The Wildcats punted to their 41 and Murray broke to the left sidelines and raced all the way for the score. He also hadded the final two-point conversion.

North coaches Tom Carter and Peter Christom were pleased. They expected a hard game and got it.

North Girls Off To Fast Start

The North Quincy girls' volleyball team, with only one senior, tri-captain Gina Golden, is off to another good start with a 3-0 record and not losing a game.

Last season, the Raiderettes who won the state championship two years ago, tied Quincy for the Suburban League title but coach Jim Rendle lost his entire starting team.

Incidentally, all the North graduates are starting for their college teams this fall.

North Quincy defeated Brockton, 2-0 (15-10, 15-5) led by tri-capt. Shana Cobban and junior middle hitter Jill Haynes.

In their previous game the Raiderettes topped Newton South, 2-0 (15-10, 15-8) with sophomore setter Brenda Hayduk and junior middle hitter Tristen Mastrogiacom leading the way.

In their opener the North girls defeated Waltham, 2-0 (15-12, 15-9) sparked by tri-capt. Kara Sullivan and freshman starter Heather Rendle, whose older sister, Holly, starred for North the past three seasons and is starting for Colgate this year.

Rounding out the varsity squad are Cheryl Kelly, Tara Guarnieri, Meredith Rossi and Kim Trout.

"This is a young but very skilled squad," Rendle said. "The girls are working very hard and I think we will have another successful season."

North's undefeated junior varsity team is made up of Maria Kalantzis, Tracy Linehan, Melanie Moffett, Jean Manning, Aimee Chin, Amy Wong, Joanne Curreri, Lara Rines and Melinda Roberts.

The Raiderettes will host Boston Latin Friday, will play at Quincy Monday Night at 7 o'clock and will be at Brookline next Wednesday.

three goals and Erin Lydon one. Sarah Francis had four assists and Tara Miles was outstanding in goal with 13 saves.

The North girls had opened their season with a 4-1 win over Revere as Miller, who also played in goal, had two goals and Hughes had three assists. Francis and Lydon

Optimism At North Quincy

North Quincy boys' cross-country coach Dan Cuddy was greeted by a record turnout of 25 and he is optimistic about the team's chances this fall.

The Raiders ran at Waltham yesterday (Wednesday) and will be at Brookline next Tuesday at 4 p.m.

Senior veteran Andy Wohlhab is back along with Brian Glennon and talented newcomers Peter Wildes and John Heaney.

Veteran junior Chris Ballum and transfer Jason Buckley make the squad stronger than a year ago. Junior Joe Matheny, sophomores Ngoc Vu, Sean Vermette, Greg Buck and Marc Jolly should help North improve on last year's 1-5 record.

Others who help are soph

Danny Reilly, Marc Larson, Mike Yee and Shawn Doherty, along with freshmen Steve Ma, Steve Parsley, Sean Chan, Jim Georgaklis and Bill Sit.

Several others are using cross-country to get in shape for winter sports including Andy McPhee, Wayne Sit, Chi Yung and Tim Ross.

"We had a great turnout with a couple of surprises like Jason Buckley, a transfer from Quincy, and seniors Wildes and Heaney," said Cuddy, in his second year as coach. "Last year we lost meets because of a small squad, only five or six runners, and that's obviously changed. Our middle school program is helping up already."

Wollaston Credit Captures Second Softball Title

Wollaston Credit Union captured its second straight South Shore Bankers' League title with a 2-1 victory over Bob's Speed Shop, to take the final series, three games to two.

Wollaston finished the season with an impressive 23-4 record, one of the best records compiled in league history. Led by veterans Dana Martinson, Terry McCormack, Kevin Cahill and Tom Rizzo, the team blended power, speed and defense with younger players like player-coach Paul Cahill, Mark Hubbard, Brian Gibbons, Greg Hines and Bob Tierney.

As with last year's title team, the support of players like Jim McNamara, Steve Turner, Mike Callahan, and Dave Fleming were instrumental.

After capturing the divisional title, Wollaston swept State Street Bank two games to none in the first round of the playoffs and faced Bob's Speed in the finals for the second straight year. Bob's came from behind to defeat Newcomb Farms in a classic series, two games to one. After capturing the first two games, 3-2, and 12-3, Wollaston was looking for a sweep of the championship series. However, Bob's battled back by taking the next two games, 7-5 and 8-5. The two teams faced a fifth and deciding game for the second straight year, and with an overflow crowd gathered at Kincaide field on a hot, muggy night, Wollaston squeezed out a 2-1 victory in a contest that featured the best defense of the series. After taking a 2-0 lead in the third, Wollaston saw Bob's load the bases with none out in the fifth.

A one-out base hit scored a run, but then Dave Fleming stopped a hard grounder at third, stepped on the bag and fired to first for a double play to end the inning.

Bob's threatened again in the seventh, but good defensive play insured the victory and championship. The team is sponsored by the Wollaston Credit Union and bank president Bob Dunphy.

WEEK OF: September 21 BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You love beautiful and luxurious objects--your surroundings are especially important. Indicators of lifestyle improvements are seen late in '89, but 1990 is characterized by extremely hard and rewarding work.

AQUARIUS -- January 21 - February 19
Intuition is sharp but act on lessons learned from experience as well. Information coming your way is intriguing but requires confirmation. Subordinates are unusually stubborn through this week.

PISCES -- February 20 - March 20
Expect more cooperation than you've enjoyed lately. Weekend is superb for throwing a party, so long as you don't exhaust yourself in the process. Romance is accenting its sentimental side.

ARIES -- March 21 - April 20
An important career decision may be facing you at this time; give it appropriate consideration, and take various factors into account. Children are more cooperative. Travel brings surprise rewards.

TAURUS -- April 21 - May 22
Communications are improving and you and partner understand each other's goals and wishes. Be careful about taking on too many obligations. Friend's attitude improves thanks to your good humor.

GEMINI -- May 23 - June 21
Romance accents its lighthearted side and blends well with humor. Offbeat career ideas bring good results, but this is not the week to rest on your laurels. Children are stubborn.

CANCER -- June 22 - July 22
Family gathering has a sentimental side, and reconciliations are more than possible. Excellent week for shopping for or creating gifts. Crafts may include a profit-making angle.

LEO -- July 23 - August 22
A new approach to an old dilemma brings bright results. You always excel as a leader, and this week is certainly no exception. Make an added effort, however, to respond to the needs of your followers.

VIRGO -- August 23 - September 22
Ambitious streak surfaces and you may be making major headway on the jobfront. Sense of humor is more important than ever, especially in the area of personal relationships.

LIBRA -- September 23 - October 22
Educational award may come your way by Wednesday. Weekend is favorable for bargain hunting, but major purchases require careful consideration. Long-distance letter clears up an ancient mystery.

SCORPIO -- October 23 - November 21
Creative writing assignments are rewarding--in more than one way, perhaps. Work on honing communication skills generally. Platonic friendship leads to new interests. In all areas, avoid extremes.

SAGITTARIUS -- November 22 - December 22
Energetic Sagittarius finds that a rest is better than a change; this is a good week for recharging your batteries. Visitors from various corners make for an educational and cheerful period.

CAPRICORN -- December 23 - January 20
Idealistic streak surfaces as you assume a role that helps friends and/or strangers in need. Relative proves a loyal confidant, but be extra careful about revealing too much to coworkers or neighbors.

Turns Down N.J. Offer

Johnson: 'Decision Easy' To Stay In Quincy

Quincy Junior College President Dr. O. Clayton Johnson, who has turned down an offer to become president of a community college in New Jersey, said his decision "was easy" because he wants to stay in Quincy.

"The decision was easy to stay in Quincy. Quincy is easy to say yes to."

"There's always some difficulty when you turn down a $20,000 a year pay increase but now I have an opportunity to professionally use my experience to help someone else," Johnson said Tuesday.

Johnson, who informed trustees at Hudson County Community College last week that he would not take the president's job, has signed on as a part-time consultant.

He has agreed to work one or two days a week as a consultant to the 4,000-student community college while it searches for a new Johnson, who has life tenure at QJC, said family concerns weighed heavily in his decision.

"The family wanted to stay. I think they've been very, very comfortable living in this area and I'm comfortable here," he said.

Johnson, along with his wife, Sharon and two children, Nancy, 12, and Eric, 9, reside in Hanover.

Hudson made the offer Monday, Sept. 11 while Johnson was visiting the college. After considering the offer, he declined and faxed his decision to trustees Tuesday, Sept. 19.

Johnson, who is in his seventh year as QJC president, said he has accumulated more than 50 days of vacation time. He will use some of those days to work as a consultant for Hudson.

president. Johnson will be paid $350 a day and have the authority of an interim president.

As president of QJC, Johnson earns approximately $70,000 a year. The Hudson County Community College president's job starts at about $85,000.

New Land Values To Figure In 1990 Tax Rate

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With a city-wide inspection, measurement and listing program of all real and personal property now complete, assessors are now developing new land values which will be used to set the 1990 tax rate, Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday.

Both McCauley and Elmer (Mike) Pagerlund, chairman of the Board of Assessors, anticipate an increase in valuation but are unsure what the new tax rate will be.

"My own sense is that (the valuation rates) are not increasing as rapidly as in the past. I would anticipate an increase in value but not as much of an increase as in prior years," McCauley said.

Fagerlund, who noted valuation has been on the rise steadily the past several years, said he is "reasonably sure" the valuation will increase significantly.

"The valuation will go up and the tax rate, which is the dividend between the levy and valuation, will decrease proportionally," Fagerlund said.

For example, if the assessment is doubled, the tax rate is cut in half, he pointed out.

Under Massachusetts law, the state Commissioner of Revenue determines every three years whether a municipality's local assessed values represent the full and fair cash valuation for each class of real and personal property subject to taxation and so to certify as a prerequisite to the continued use of a classified tax system.

Two years ago, the city's residential tax rate was $11.44 per $1,000. In 1988, it was $12.22 per $1,000 and for fiscal 1989 it was $12.65 per $1,000.

The new mayor, either James Sheets or Peter O'Connell, will set the new tax rate next year.

Since Quincy was last certified by the Commissioner as assessing property at full and fair cash value as of Jan. 1, 1986, the city's assessments as of Jan. 1, 1989 must satisfy the commissioner's fiscal year 1990 certification standards.

In 1987, Quincy began a city-wide total inspection measurement and listing program of all real and personal property which is now complete. Assessors are developing new land values and replacing all improvements using current reproduction and replacement costs and new depreciation schedules in order to arrive at certified Jan. 1, 1989 valuations to be used for fiscal 1990.

The inspection, measurement and listing program was done by Real Estate Research Consultants, Inc., of Topsfield, Mass. A team of 20 to 25 consultants has inspected every property in Quincy.

Preliminary Tax Bills Going In Mail operating under very tight financial restraints.

Preliminary property tax bills for the first half of 1990 will be mailed to residents on or before Friday, Sept. 29 and will be due Wednesday, Nov. 1, announces City Collector Dana Childs.

The bills are being issued as preliminary bills calculated at one half of the 1989 total because the tax rate for 1990 has not been set due to the regular property revaluation being done by the Assessor's Office.

Taxpayers who have filed for exemptions will be allowed to deduct one half of the exemption.

The bills have been redesigned this year to include a remittance stub and a return envelope. Taxpayers can send their check with the remittance stub or bring their payment to City Hall with the remittance stub and one copy of the bill.

Taxpayers who have their bills paid from an escrow account should forward their remittance stub and the escrow copy of the bill to their bank or mortgage company.

Mayor Francis McCauley urges residents to pay their "bills in a timely manner" so that the city does not have to borrow money from the banks. He said this would be appreciated since the city is

QUINCY REPRESENTATIVE Steve Tobin was among the local officials and residents who rallied against a proposal for a rotary kiln incinerator in the Fore River Industrial Basin. The sign reading "No Toxic Incineration in the Fore River Basin" sent a message to Clean Harbors, Inc., the firm which has proposed the incinerator near the Quincy-Braintree line. Sets Goals

Cohen Welcomes Challenges As QCBPA Executive Director

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Eileen Cohen, the new executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, says she looks forward to the challenges of promoting business in the downtown area.

"I'm very pleased with the appointment. I'm looking forward to meeting the challenges of the job," she said.

"I've never run away from a challenge yet," Cohen, who has owned and operated Sweets 'N Things at 1470 Hancock St., for seven years, is no stranger to the QCBPA scene. During the past five years, she has served on the association's Promotions and Sidewalk Bazaar Committees.

In addition, Cohen has served as co-chairman of the Miss Quincy Bay Beauty Pageant, the highlight of the association's annual Sidewalk Bazaar.

In 1986, her service was recognized when she was presented the QCBPA's "Member of the Year" award.

Cohen's transition from association member to its executive director is natural because she has kept up with downtown business affairs while running her own business.

"I've kept myself active," Cohen explains, noting the various meetings she attends as the association's representative.

"It was easy for me to come into this position because of my seven years owning a business."

Fresh from her appointment, Cohen has set several goals and plans to implement them. A membership drive is among her top priorities.

"I have plans to bring in new members. With more members, the association will have a better say in the future of Quincy Square," she said.

Cohen also noted that more members mean more stores and that means more customers. The end result, of course, is a vibrant downtown shopping area.

"I can always be seen out on the street soliciting new members and talking to present members," she added.

Cohen also plans to meet with representatives from Metropolitan Parking Systems, the firm which operates the city's owned parking lots, to upgrade the lots near downtown Quincy. She would like the QCBPA and Metropolitan to expand the present validation policy which would make shopping in Quincy more appealing to area residents.

According to her reports, QCBPA members are pleased with Metropolitan's performance thus far.

Cohen was officially welcomed into her new position last week during a reception at Raffael's Restaurant in North Quincy. The affair was a tremendous success as approximately 150 area business and professionals attended.

Many non-association members showed their interest by attending along with several city officials.

During the reception, QCBPA President Robert Colman, owner of Colman's Sporting Goods, welcomed and introduced Cohen as the new executive director.

Cohen then spoke on her various association committee involvements and how this active participation lead to her appointment as director.

Sanara Kopelman, formerly of WJDA, entertained the gathering by singing several songs.

Restaurant Owner To Appear Before Board On Ventilation Problems

Before making a decision on a request for an expansion of the cabaret license held by Peter Kelly for Kelly's in The Square, Cottage Ave. Board members will request that he appear before them next week to discuss a problem with the kitchen ventilation system.

by Kelly's attorney, Thomas Largey.

The current cabaret license prohibits dancing in the upstairs part of the restaurant, Laracy said.

City Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue noted the recently discovered problem with the kitchen ventilation system and requested Kelly appear before the board on the matter before a decision is made on the cabaret license.

The board will issue letters to Kelly and Largey requesting his presence at next week's meeting.

Billings St. Lodging House License Granted

By JANE ARENA
The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Atty. Neil Kerstein for a lodging house license for Robert Chenette at 110 Billings St.

The property has been licensed as a boarding house since 1973, Kerstein noted. The two-family house had been made "infamous by the previous owner," Kerstein told the board. The former owner, Robert McManus, had not paid the mortgage on the property and it was subsequently foreclosed, it was noted.

Chenette has since renovated and repaired the house, Kerstein said. "My client has taken a sow's ear and turned it into a silk purse," Kerstein told the board.

Chenette, who owns other lodging houses outside of Quincy, has an "Impeccable reputation," Kerstein said.

Inspectors from the Health, Fire and Building departments have viewed the property, the board noted and have found no problems.

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley has also met with Chenette and viewed the property and has issued several restrictions which have been incorporated into the license, the board noted.

Councillor Nutley's restrictions are:

- That no outside dumpster be used and that the existing enclosed trash storage shed by the only permanently utilized trash storage area.
- That a resident or resident manager be in charge and available on the premises.

• That no contract with any agencies to house the homeless or a half-way house be entered prior to a conference with the Ward Councillor and community hearings arranged and held by the Ward Councillor.

• That the parking area be utilized by tenants only and not contracted for parking by others.

• That no repairs of trucks or automobiles be conducted on the property.

• And that all other conditions and restrictions stipulated by the Board of License Commissioners be observed and adhered to.

Chenette told the board he will comply to the restrictions.

Cottage Ave. Restaurant License Being Sought

The License Board Tuesday placed on file a request from Serafino Fabiano for a common victualer license for 13 Cottage Ave., formerly Creative Flowers.

The board advised Fabiano to have professional plans drawn up and submitted to the Health, Fire and Building departments before spending any money on renovations or repairs.

Fabiano told the board that he plans to open a small restaurant featuring barbecue meals for lunch and dinner.

He has been in business before in Waltham.

Before the board can consider the request, Fabiano must also have a letter from City Traffic Engineer David Kinnecom stating parking in the area will be sufficient because a restaurant would constitute a change of use at the site.

Fabiano said he would meet with the necessary people and would submit plans to the board at a later date. He will also meet with the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

MORE THAN 200 residents from Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth, many carrying signs, protested Clean Harbor's proposal for hazardous waste rotary kiln incinerator in the Fore River industrial basin. The protest rally was held outside the firm's main gate on Quincy Ave. near the Quincy-Braintree line.

Over 200 Attend Rally Protestors Call Clean Harbors Report 'Fiction'

More than 200 citizens from Weymouth, Braintree and Quincy presented Clean Harbors, Inc. with a "Special Award for Fiction" Sunday at a rally at the company's front gate in east Braintree.

The "award" was given in response to the release of Clean Harbors' preliminary project impact report (P.P.I.R.) last month on the effects of the company's proposed 90-million pound per year hazardous waste incinerator which is to be built in the midst of the heavily populated tri-town area.

An estimated 20,000 people live within one mile of the proposed site.

Dozens of protestors, calling the PPIR "Fiction," heaped with copies of the 6,000-page document into a pile outside the company's gate. The state is preparing to rule on the adequacy of the report.

Incinerator critics charge that key parts of the report's transportation, medical and air-pollution projects were never properly reviewed because the state could not afford to pay for consultants.

David Jenkins, spokesman for Citizens Organized to Defend the Environment (CODE), said "The self-serving nature of their analysis in the report is striking. They are trying to convince the communities that it acceptable to put a hazardous waste incinerator in an area that already has unacceptable rates for lung cancer."

Jenkins, noting the cancer rate is 79 percent higher than expected in some census tracts around the site, added the air pollution levels already exceed acceptable state standards.

Braintree Selectman Frank Toland said, "The people of the Fore River basin are here today to tell C.H.I. that they are not buying into the company's blatantly false analysis of the effects of this incinerator on our health and safety."

Organizers of the protest have announced plans for a rally to show how united the communities are against Clean Harbors' proposal.

The rally, called "Hands Across the Bridge," will take place Sunday, Oct. 8 at 1:30 p.m. on the Fore River Bridge in North Weymouth.

Chamber Roundtable Discussion Oct. 4

A "roundtable" discussion group sponsored by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce Committee for Small Business will meet for dinner Wednesday, Oct. 4, at La Casa Bianca, Canton, a 6:30 to 8 p.m. dinner meeting.

This is a 10-12 member-owner/CEO group from non-competing industries which will meet monthly for nine months to see and offer practical solutions to business problems and improve the quality of business decisions. There is a $75 annual fee.

- Saturday, Nov. 4, City Wide Flu Clinic, 1120 Hancock St., 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

This year's flu shot contains the strains A/Taiwan, A/Shanghai and B/Yamagata to provide immunity against the types of flu which have been circulating the past year and thought to be most likely to occur in the U.S. this winter.

Because influenza vaccine contains only non-infectious viruses it cannot cause influenza.

Annual vaccination against influenza is recommended for:

- Adults and children with long-term heart or lung problems.

- Residents of nursing homes and other chronic care facilities.

- Health people over 65 years.

- People of any age who during the past year have regularly seen a doctor or have been admitted to a hospital for treatment for kidney disease, cystic fibrosis, anemia (low blood) or severe asthma.

- People who have a type of cancer or immunological disorder (or use certain type medicines) that lowers the body's normal resistance to infections after checking with their physician.

- Children and teenagers (six months to 18 years) on long-term treatment with aspirin who, if they catch the flu, may be at risk of getting Reye Syndrome.

- Health care workers or other providing care to high risk persons.

- Anyone who wishes to reduce his/her chances of catching the flu.

Persons who would not be given the flu shot include those with an allergy to eggs or egg products that causes dangerous reactions if they eat eggs.

- Anyone who has ever been paralyzed with Guillain-Barre Syndrome, as well as women who might be or are pregnant, should seek advice from their doctor about special risks that might exist in their cases.

Persons who are ill and have a fever should delay vaccination until the fever and other temporary symptoms have gone.

Flu vaccine will only be given to Quincy residents 18 years and older. All others are advised to check with their family physicians.

Shut-ins should call the Quincy Health Department, Nursing Department, at 773-1380, ext. 238 to arrange for a house visit by the Public Health Nurse.

Downtown And Promotions

John Graham who owns and edits a newsletter aimed at the business community editorially frowns on downtown Quincy in the latest issue.

Graham, who operates several Wollaston based enterprises, zeroes in critically on two long-time summer fun traditions, the annual Sidewalk Bazaar and the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant.

He acknowledges that "a lot of hard work goes into these two events ... by talented and dedicated people who volunteer their services ..."

He asks: "What image do these events portray of the City of Quincy?"

And, answers the question: "Rather than presenting the best of Quincy, we seem to experience only a drab three days."

He cites what he calls "the stacks and racks of the let's get rid of it merchandise that's found on Hancock Street each July." (During the Sidewalk Bazaar.)

And he reduces the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant to "the yearly parade of pulchritude."

Let's stop there for the moment.

Graham, like anyone else, is entitled to his opinions but he seems to have wandered a little off track.

The Sidewalk Bazaar and pageant hardly seem like three drab days considering the number of people they bring to the downtown area at what otherwise would be a very quiet time for retail businesses.

That's what they are: retail promotions. They don't reflect Quincy's image today—or tomorrow—and were never intended to do so.

It's just a three-day summer change of pace for those who come downtown to hear the music, enjoy the entertainment, see the pageant and have the fun of shopping and browsing in the middle of closed off Hancock St.

And it's a godsend for the merchants in what otherwise would be the quietest retail week of the summer. It gives them the opportunity to clear merchandise at marked down prices and at the same time to sell some new goods.

There have been some good buys down through the years.

The bazaar also provides the opportunity for churches and other non-profit organizations to put up booths and sell hot dogs and hamburgers or chances on prizes to raise funds for their worthy causes.

Of all South South street fairs and sidewalk bazaars, Quincy's has been by far the most successful with outside business areas making certain they schedule their own so as not to have to compete with Quincy's.

Graham says there have been "conflicting reports" as to whether the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant is actually a beauty contest. He says "someone always steps forward to talk about the talent."

Don't know where those "conflicting reports" come from. The pageant is a beauty contest and has never been promoted as a talent show.

There just isn't sufficient physical space at the site of the pageant (Quincy Center Plaza and before that in front of the Bank of New England South) for contestants to dance, twirl a baton or play a piano concerto.

Graham then goes on to say:

"Frankly, enough is enough. The time for the yearly parade of pulchritude has passed, whether the bald heads are willing to admit it or not."

Bald heads? Is he likening the pageant to the Old Howard and its famed bald headed row?

There have been many lovely, wholesome young ladies down through the years who have competed and shared in thousands and thousands of dollars in prizes donated by members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. And there have been scholarships presented to the winner by Quincy Junior College.

The QCBPA sponsors the sidewalk bazaar, pageant and the Christmas parade and festival as promotions to bring the people to downtown Quincy. And they bring a lot of people downtown.

The pageant has been a fun experience not only for the young women competing but for their families and friends who attend and who hardly qualify for the bald headed row.

Graham says that those who work to put the bazaar and pageant together could better spend their energy and talent helping to bring new business to Quincy.

Well, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association has been trying to do just that. The association has made efforts to help owners of new and renovated buildings to find tenants. And encourages outside business to come to Quincy.

The QCBPA has also worked with the city in solving parking and other problems in the downtown area.

Maybe more can be done. More can always be done.

A favorite pastime these days seems to be taking downtown Quincy's pulse and temperature but no one seems to come up with the right cure-all prescription that the business community and city can afford or which can be carried out without demolishing half the downtown area.

Long range planning is fine. There certainly should be some. But long-range planning takes time to plan and more time to implement.

Meanwhile, without promotions, what do the retailers in downtown Quincy do to survive? They still have to pay their rent and their help and to purchase merchandise. And they have to be able to eat.

You can't let them starve or close their doors while some committee with lofty goals is making plans for the Quincy of tomorrow.

Tomorrow is important. No argument there. Downtown can be improved. It can be better.

But, today is important too, especially for the little guy and others whose livelihoods — and lives — are staked out on Hancock St.

Let's not forget them.

The Sidewalk Bazaar, the Miss Quincy Bay Pageant, the Christmas Parade and other promotions are life-saving important to them.

Think of tomorrow. But let's not forget today.

WHAT EVERY EMPLOYER AND EMPLOYEE SHOULD KNOW

Years ago state legislatures realized that in many cases an employer might suffer such heavy losses as a result of accident to his employees that his financial stability could be threatened. Legislators, therefore, provided a system permitting insurance companies to carry the risk of the employer in consideration of a premium.

Through the years this has evolved into an insurance policy which all insurance companies issue, standard throughout the nation, which is known as the Standard Workmen's Compensation and Employer's Liability Policy. The policy covers losses resulting from personal injury or death of an employee, and the company is obligated to pay benefits as stated under the law. Every business owner should carry workmen's compensation for the protection of himself or herself and employees.

At Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. our insurance professionals are happy to discuss the many protection options available today. Please give us a call at 471-8200 or stop by our office at 1050 Hancock Street in Quincy.

"If all else fails, try hitting him back."

Quincy Mother's Cooperative A Lot More Than Baby-Sitting

By JANE ARENA

In 1974, Judy Chase, then of Quincy, formed a local babysitting cooperative for young mothers.

The concept was rather like babysitting swapping. One mother would volunteer to watch the children of the other mothers in the group while they were free to shop or just to relax for a few hours. That mother, in turn, earned two or three hours of baby-sitting services for her own children so that she could relax.

Judy Chase has since moved out of state, but her co-op idea remained, and a group of Quincy mothers have modified and expanded it.

"Today the Quincy Mother's Cooperative (QMC) offers a lot more than shopping time and baby-sitting, for mothers and youngsters alike. And, this year it's expanding again.

At last count there were 33 mothers in the co-op, but three coordinators, Kathi Wood and Diane Pankow, Parent Workshop Coordinators, and Barbara Flemming, Treasurer and Children's Activities Coordinator, have a lot of new ideas for the coming months which they hope will increase the membership even more.

One of the basic services offered by the QMC is the playgroup, three or four separate groups set up according to the child's age. While the child has an opportunity to interact and learn with others in his own age group, the mothers get a similar opportunity. Mothers with children similar in age have the chance to exchange ideas and share experience.

This year though, coordinators are hoping to give the playgroup a new twist, one which recalls the original baby-sitting co-op, but with added advantages.

Rather than one mother simply keeping an eye on the children of the group, she leads them in specially-planned crafts and activities, more like daycare than a baby-sitter.

"This is ideal for children who have not yet entered kindergarten or pre-school," says Kathi. "It gives them a chance to really focus on things they often don't do on their own or in their playgroups. It's productive for them and this way they have guidance."

Another attractive feature of the QMC is a periodic "Mothers Night Out" which gives all the mothers a chance to get together, away from the kids, in a social setting, for dinner or entertainment. It's not only the children who form friendships in the Co-op. But what the coordinators are most excited about for the coming season is a new workshop series for parents.

The workshops will be held at various locations in the city about once a month and will offer parenting education and lectures by trained professionals. Among the topics to be covered are "Developing Reading Skills: Helping Your Child Get Ready to Read," "How to Raise Kids You'll Like (And They'll Like YOU)," and "Your Child's Self Esteem."

The first workshop, on "Keeping Your Child Safe From Strangers," will be held at the Super Stop & Shop on Southern Artery on Sept. 14 at 7:30 p.m. and will be conducted by a Quincy Police Safety Officer.

For a nominal donation, the workshops are open to the public. A complete schedule of the series is available at several locations in the city, including The Quincy Sun Office, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Sq.

"Our goal," says Barbara, "is to become a resource in the Quincy area."

"Once you're south of Boston," Diane agrees, "there's really nothing for parents in this area... we want to offer the kind of things which are available in Newton on a weekly basis."

Despite the name, the Quincy Mothers Co-op is not restricted to Quincy residents, members come from other area towns as well. Neither is the Co-op strictly for mothers. The group says they'd like to see fathers become involved, especially in the evening workshops.

"These things are for parents," Diane says.

The typical member is a first-time mother with a child over 18 months of age. Kathi explains. New members are usually attracted by the playgroups as a way to help their children make friends and to meet new friends themselves.

"That's how I became involved," Barbara says.

However, there is no age limit (for either child or parent) and there are activities suitable for pre-schoolers of all ages.

The Quincy Mothers Co-op will continue to expand in the future. Coordinators are brimming with ideas which they feel certain will become realities as membership increases.

The group would like, for example, to develop a full resource lending library for its members, with a collection of books, brochures and video tapes to make the job of parenting a little easier.

Other regular activities and features include field trips and special trips for children, monthly newsletters for parents and fun-filled holiday parties (with an extra-special party in the works for next Christmas).

What began as a humble baby-sitting co-op, has, over the years, developed into a serious and resourceful organization for the South Shore. Thanks to the efforts of a group of mothers who've found that the art of parenting benefits from cooperation.

For further information on joining the Quincy Mothers Co-op, or on any of the services they offer, call 472-7737 (M-F 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.) or 773-4622.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Della Chiesa Assails QTA

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa charged that the Quincy Taxpayers Association had become a "political organization" by endorsing candidates for the Plan E City Council.

"In the current issue of 'Tips on Taxes,' the monthly publication of the association, the organization has in substance done nothing less than endorse a slate of candidates," he said.

"Seven candidates are mentioned in a favorable light and no mention is made of the other 14 candidates seeking election to the City Council."

Della Chiesa was not one of those mentioned.

YACHT YARD GOES PRIVATE

Edward D. Whiting, president and general manager of the Quincy Adams Yacht yard, announced that the company will return to building pleasure craft after 15 years of primarily government work.

Whiting said the yard had contracts to build a 68-foot diesel twin-screw power boat and an 85-foot auxiliary schooner and was negotiating to build two more luxury yachts.

Value of the four contracts would be $750,000.

CIVIL DEFENSE DEFICIENT

Major Franklin G. Woodward, Air Force coordinator for Massachusetts, told a Rotary luncheon that Quincy lacks air raid wardens and does not have enough volunteers for its Ground Observer Corps.

"If we are to preserve the American way of life, each one of us must find some place in the civil defense setup of our community," he said.

STUDY CITES CITY WORKS

A study by the U.S. Census Bureau showed that Quincy had more municipal employees than most other cities in the over 10,000 population class.

The census figures showed that Quincy had 1,848 city workers, or 21.3 for every 1,000 population, compared to the average of 12.9 for a thousand other American big cities.

Fabrizio Urges McCauley Not To Approve Summit Bond

Thomas Fabrizio, a candidate for Ward 4 councillor has strongly urged Mayor Francis X. McCauley not to approve the Quincy Housing Authority bond issue for the Summit View Development Project in West Quincy.

In a letter to McCauley, Fabrizio stated, "As mayor, you have the right not to approve the bond, and I trust you will do the right thing for the people of West Quincy."

Fabrizio noted that residents in the area have been strongly opposed to the development project.

"Residents are concerned about environmental concerns and density problems causing increased traffic, sewerage and draining problems. Affordable housing is an important goal for our city, but protecting our neighborhood comes first," he said.

The Quincy Housing Authority voted Sept. 5 to approve the bond issue to begin development on the 900-unit project at the top of Quarry St. in West Quincy.

In the summer, Fabrizio vowed to launch a petition drive to place a question on the ballot this November to allow the people to decide the bond issue.

The QHA, however, delayed their decision to vote on the board until Sept. 5 after the referendum question deadline.

State law mandates that each piece of residential and business property be inspected every six years.

The consultants' work is monitored by the Quincy Board of Assessors and subject to state certification, Fabrizio noted.

The procedure for recertification by the state has been accelerated under new Department of Revenue policies whereby the process is reviewed step by step making possible any necessary adjustments during the progress of work rather than massive time consuming work and delay at the end of the project.

In this way, the February 1990 deadline for the completion of the program can be met ensuring the issuance of timely FY 1990 bills at the end of March, 1990.

It is expected that taxpayers may ascertain their new assessments on or about April 1, 1990 when such valuations will be on public display at the Assessor's Office at Quincy City Hall and at the Thomas Crane Public Library during regular business hours.

Johnson Decides To Stay At QJC

School Supt. Robert Ricci has requested a ruling from City Solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie on whether Johnson is legally allowed to earn money from another state while using his vacation days. He will also rule on whether Johnson needs the school's committee's approval to do consulting.

Mayor Francis McCauley has reserved comment until further review.

Facility Plan Public Meeting Oct. 26

The city of Quincy will hold a public meeting on an update to the facility plan for West Quincy and related environmental studies Thursday, Oct. 26 at 7 p.m. in North Quincy High School auditorium, 316 Hancock St.

The city is preparing an update to the facility plan for West Quincy and related environmental studies which will alleviate the sewage discharge into Furnace Brook and prevent the flow of that sewage to Wollaston Beach and Quincy Shore.

The meeting will present alternatives being studied before final selection is made.

Public comment and involvement is encouraged.

'Peripheral Vision' Topic At United First Parish Church

This Sunday, Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, Minister, will deliver the sermon "Peripheral Vision" during the 10:30 a.m. service at United First Parish Church (Unitarian) "Church of the Presidents."

Norman Corey, Music Director, will play organ works by Schubert, Reger, Bruckner and Mendelssohn. Cynthia Casante, Soprano, will be guest soloist. Tom Hurlbeaus and Richard Post will serve as ushers and Brenda Powers will be the greeter. Hostesses for the social hour will be Celia Blight and Betty Bond.

Visitors are welcome to the worship service and are invited to attend the Social Hour in the Parish Hall following services.

This year is the 350th Anniversary of the establishment of historic United First Parish Church. A leader in liberal religion since its establishment in 1639, "Church of the Presidents" was the life-long home for both presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams. Their tombs stand today in a crypt within the church, along with those of their wives Abigail and Louisa Catherine. The church is located at 1306 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, opposite City Hall. Call 773-1290 for information.

Bethany To Observe 'Neighbors In Need Sunday'

The outreach concern "Neighbors in Need" will be the focus of worship and action Sunday, at Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., Quincy Center.

There will be two worship services, 9 a.m. in the chapel, and at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

"Neighbors in Need" is an all-church emphasis and offering of the United Church of Christ which supports special ministries throughout the country, including aid to victims of sexual abuse and violence, ministry with the handicapped, programs with American Indians, combating homelessness, and ministry to those afflicted with AIDS. Those attending worship Sunday are also requested to bring a food-offering for the Pantry Shelf of the Protestant Social Service Bureau. The food will be distributed to persons and families in the community according to need.

These two sharing-offerings seem especially appropriate since this will also be World Wide Communion Sunday, a 24-hour period during which Christians all over the globe will be observing the Lord's Supper, receiving the Bread of the Communion while giving bread to others.

The Rev. J. William

Arnold, senior minister, will preach the sermon titled, "Do You Love Yourself?"

Lay scripture readers will be Marion Lockwood in the chapel, and Lisa Andre in the sanctuary. The Associate Minister, Elizabeth Upton, will be the liturgist. Deacons serving the Communion will be Robert Lockwood at the early service, and Bruce Byorkman, Nancy Cosgrove, Wendell Cosgrove, Jane McLain and Nicholas Spear at the late service.

During the 10 a.m. service, the Chancel Choir, under the direction of organist Charles J. Blue Sr., will sing Mozart's "Laudate Dominum Omnes Gentis" based on Psalm 117. Carol Massey will be the soprano soloist and Edmund Aluisky will perform the clarinet obligato.

The 10 a.m. service will be broadcast "live" direct from Bethany's sanctuary over radio station WJDA.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes from pre-school through 9th grade. Child care is also provided for babies in the nursery and for toddlers.

At 11 a.m. there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor. Individuals and families from the area are invited to the worship and fellowship programs and to enroll children in the Sunday School.

At noon, free chartered buses will leave from Bethany for an Apple Picking Picnic to Doe Orchards in Harvard. All ages are welcome, but children must be accompanied by an adult.

World Communion Sunday At Covenant Congregational

Rev. Kirk Johnson, co-pastor with Rev. Kathleen Graves-Johnson, will preach a sermon about Communion at the 10:45 a.m. worship service at Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts.

The Deaconate will serve Communion and take an offering for the Benevolent Fund. The Choir, will be directed and accompanied on the organ by Richard Smith, Minister of Music.

Sunday School, with classes for ages nursery through adult, will begin at 9:30 a.m. During the worship hour, a nursery for children age five and under is available. The attendant will be Nancy Johnson. For children up to age 12, there is junior church.

On Sunday, Oct. 1 at 4 p.m. there will be a reception in honor of the co-pastors to which city officials, members of the clergy from the city as well as members of other Covenant Churches of the First District are invited. Neighbors from adjacent Hospital and Presidents Hill are also invited to welcome the new co-pastors. Refreshments will be served in the church hall.

Coming events include the Men's Fall Institute at Pilgrim Pines, N.H. Oct. 6-8 and another Senior Adult Luncheon on Oct. 12.

For more information about any of the church's activities, call the office at 479-5728.

'The Way Up' To Celebrate 25th Anniversary Sunday

On Sunday, Oct. 1, "The Way Up" will celebrate its 25th anniversary with a special service of Thanksgiving at the First Church of Squantum, a reception after the service and a display of "Way Up" memorabilia. The service will begin at 3 p.m.

Highlight of the occasion will be the reunion of former participants, members, volunteers, parents, contributors and members of the Board of Directors.

"The Way Up" is a special youth ministry for teen-aged girls and boys, which is based at the First Church of Squantum and sponsored by a number of churches on the South Shore to provide chaplaincy services to young people referred for social services by the Quincy Juvenile Court, those in various youth institutions in the area and teen-agers in the community presently unrelated to any other church.

The social services offered include counselling, home visits, discussion groups, tutoring, advocacy, trips and camping experiences, recreation, opportunities to engage in art work or puppetry, employment and opportunities to give service to the community.

For teen-agers who are interested, Bible study groups and teen-age worship services are also offered, both in the Quincy area and in two youth institutions in Brockton to which young people from this area are sent by the juvenile court. Those institutions are the Brockton YMCA Shelter Care Unit and the Brockton YMCA Diagnostic Assessment Unit.

In any case, all of the activities of "The Way Up" are voluntary and open to teen-aged girls and boys regardless of their religious tradition and regardless of whether or not they choose to participate in the religious programs of "The Way Up".

The founder and pastor of "The Way Up" since its inception has been the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, an American Baptist minister and the pastor of First Church of Squantum. He is assisted in the work by a number of parents and adult volunteers. One group of women, for example, supervise the teen-agers in catering dinners at area churches to raise money for teen employment and camps.

Until 1981, the group was called "The Way." The name was changed that year to avoid any confusion of the Quincy-based group with "The Way International" which is based in Ohio and with which the Quincy group has no connection.

"The Reunion Committee of 'The Way Up' is chaired by Mrs. Jean Ann Phinney, formerly a school principal in Quincy and recently retired. Scott DeWare, the director of the DeWare Funeral Home in Wollaston, is heading up the financial drive related to the celebration. The Chairman of the Board of Directors of "The Way Up" is Robert Gowdy.

During the past few months, the Reunion Committee has been attempting to contact as many former participants in the program as possible in order to invite them to the celebration. Since they have not been able to find the current names and addresses of every former participant and/or their parents, the Reunion Committee wants it to be known that all such persons are cordially invited anyway. The event is open to the public without charge.

Hour after the service was hosted by Pat Sorensen and Doris Longmire.

This week the Sunday morning service will be held at 10:30 a.m. Sunday School meets at the same time.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We like this quotation by Arnold H. Glasow, "Let us be slower to condemn, quicker to forgive. If we know the other fellow's troubles, we might hesitate to criticize. We might admire his courage for carrying on."

No one is perfect. We all make mistakes. With human nature as it is, hardly anyone can truthfully say he or she likes to be criticized. Even when it is asked for, harsh criticism is unwanted. When criticism is unasked for, and especially when it is diluted with the word - constructive - criticism tends mostly to offend. It lessens human dignity. It is resented. Sometimes it causes people to refuse added or future responsibility. Constructive? Not when it so often causes alienation among people...

A wise, old Sioux Indian once prayed, "Help me never to judge another until I have walked two weeks in his moccasins."

Peace Cranes At United First Parish

Marion Cramer, member of Educators for Social Responsibility, will present the "1,000 Folder Cranes—Messengers for Peace" project to the combined church school classes at United First Parish, Quincy Center, Sunday, October 1 at 10:30 a.m.

Cramer has worked on the E.S.R. nationwide project to Cramer, as part of the worldwide "Never Again" campaign, will tell the story of Sadako, a Japanese girl who died from the effects of the bombing in Japan, and distribute origami paper cranes made by children in Japan. The cranes are made by Japanese children every year to decorate the statue of Sadako in Hiroshima Peace Park.

"Receiving these beautiful gifts from the Japanese children in a gentle but powerful message," says Cramer.

An important part of the presentation is to share letters from children in Japan. Cramer provides a list of addresses of those who have sent the cranes, so the children can develop pen-pal relationships.

ANNIVERSARY PARTICIPANTS — The Rev. Dr. William F. Schulz, president of the Unitarian Universalist Association, Rev. Sheldon Bennett, Ph.D., and Mayor Francis McCauley, shown after Sunday's Service of Celebration to honor 350th Anniversary of the United First Parish Church (Unitarian).

Over 200 Attend Special Services 'Church Of The Presidents' Celebrates 350th Anniversary

By JANE ARENA

Over 200 members and guests gathered Sunday at the United First Parish Church (Unitarian) "Church of the Presidents," in Quincy Center for a Service of Celebration in honor of the 350th Anniversary of its founding.

Several guest speakers participated in the service, including Bryan Donovan, Chairman of the Church Board of Governors and 350th Anniversary Committee Chairman; Rev. James Workman of the First Congregational Church in Braintree; Rev. Dr. William Schulz, President of the Unitarian Universalist Association, Natalie Gulbrandsen, Moderator of the U.U.A. and Rev. Dr. Rhys Williams, minister of the First and Second Church in Boston.

Rev. Dr. Sheldon Bennett, minister of United First Parish Church, delivered anniversary remarks, and Rev. Dr. Schulz gave a sermon entitled "Memories of Tomorrow."

The service was also attended by several City officials including Mayor Francis McCauley who brought greetings on behalf of the City of Quincy. Several proclamations and greetings were also received from elected officials and legislative bodies.

A special letter of greeting from President George Bush was read during the service. The President's letter, received in July of this year, said:

"I am pleased to send greetings to everyone gathered in Quincy to celebrate the 350th anniversary of United First Parish Church.

Beginning with the first colonial settlements in New England, American life has been sustained by a vision of liberty that has its foundation in religious faith and a commitment to justice for all. Since 1639, the United First Parish Church has helped shape the ideals of the people of Quincy, including some of our greatest patriots—John Hancock, John Adams and John Quincy Adams.

As a native of Norfolk County, I share your pride in the history and achievements of the United First Parish Church and I commend you all for carrying on its 350 year tradition of faith and service to your community.

Barbara joins me in congratulating you on this milestone anniversary. We wish you an enjoyable celebration and every success in the future. God bless you."

Other greetings and proclamations were received from Governor Michael Dukakis, Senator Edward Kennedy, Senator John Kerry, State Senator Paul Harold, Congressman Brian Donnelly, State Rep. Robert Cerasoli, the Quincy City Council, the Quincy School Committee and the Braintree Board of Selectmen.

The United First Parish Church was founded by eight men Sept. 26, 1639 in what was then called Braintree. For 50 years the church was known simply as "Ye Church of Braintree." "Old Braintree," was then divided into Quincy, Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook.

Prior to the 1639 founding, a congregation gathered in 1636 with Rev. John Wheelwright. At that time, what is now called Quincy was known as Mought Wollaston and was part of Boston. This congregation was actually a branch of the Boston Church which is known today as the First and Second Church in Boston.

Called "The Church of Presidents," two presidents, John Adams and John Quincy Adams were life-long members of the United First Parish Church. Both former presidents and their wives are entombed in a crypt in the church lower level.

Patriot John Hancock was baptised in this church by his father, Rev. John Hancock (who served as minister from 1726 to 1744).

The present stone edifice, built of granite from the Adams estate, is the fourth edifice of the church and is known as "The Stone Temple." The previous three edifices were wooden meeting house structures. This edifice was completed in 1828.

During the Service of Celebration Sunday, Rev. Dr. Bennett remarked on the historic past of First Parish Church as well as the church's present and future:

"Today we celebrate a great anniversary. It is a great day both for this church and for the City of Quincy, as our history and the city's history are so closely intertwined...As we celebrate the founding of this church, we also celebrate its remarkable history and the memory of distinguished sons and daughters over the centuries, including patriots, civic leaders, two presidents and first ladies and hundreds upon hundreds of ordinary men and women striving to build a more just and compassionate world...Today we meet to honor a noble heritage. We also meet as a loving, worshipping community of faith—to celebrate our fellowship, to renew our hospitality, and to offer our common vision of a more just, a more beautiful, and a more peaceful world."

Participating in the 350th Anniversary Service of Celebration were:

Greeters: Kay Johnson and Forrest I. Neal, Jr.; Marshals: James Van Doren and Walter Wrigley; Ushers: Ardis Porter, Richard Porter, Richard E. Survey Shows FHA, VA Home Loans Help Entry-Level Buyers

The importance of home loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) or guaranteed by the Department of Veterans Administration (DVA) as financing tools for first-time buyers was underscored in a recent survey by the National Association of Realtors.

The association's spring 1989 mortgage survey, "The Home Financing Transaction," found more than two-thirds of the home buyers using the two government mortgage programs were entry-level buyers. In contrast, more than 70 percent of the borrowers using conventional financing were repeat buyers. Approximately 2,000 Realtors nationwide were surveyed for the report, which covered the financing of closed transactions.

NAR President Ira Gribbin said the spring survey, conducted during a period of rising interest rates, shows how FHA and DVA home financing help fill the housing affordability gap for first-time buyers trying to buy during relatively unfavorable conditions.

In keeping with NAR's previous mortgage finance survey, a year-end report covering activity in 1988, the spring study showed that borrowers of FHA-insured and DVA-guaranteed loans purchased less expensive homes, made a lower down payment, had lower incomes and were younger than borrowers using privately-insured, conventional financing.

"Generally, FHA and DVA offer the most viable route to homeownership for the first-time buyer, particularly when rates are headed up," Gribbin said. "Without these programs, many renters on a tight budget simply could not make buying work out." The more lenient underwriting guidelines and lower down payment requirements of the two programs make them more affordable than most privately-insured conventional financing.

The report showed that last spring, FHA borrowers paid an average sales price of $66,200 for their homes, with a loan of $62,200. DVA borrowers paid an average of $71,900, with a loan of $68,700.

The median income of FHA buyers was $37,900; for DVA buyers, it was $36,000. The median age of FHA buyer was 30 years; DVA buyers, 31.

The average sales price for homes purchased with a fixed-rate, 30-year conventional loan was $139,100, the average loan amount was $100,000. Buyers using fixed-rate, 15-year, conventional mortgages paid a slightly lower average sales price for their homes. Borrowers using one-year, adjustable-rate mortgages paid an average of $152,600 for their homes, financing $121,200. The median income of borrowers with fixed-rate, 30 year mortgages was $50,400; for borrowers of one-year adjustable-rate mortgages, the median income was $60,000. The median age of conventional borrowers was 36 years for fixed-rate, 30-year loans; and 35 years for borrowers of one-year ARMs.

Previously-owned, single-family homes dominated the purchases by all categories of buyers last spring, but they were favored most by FHA borrowers. Ninety-two percent of the FHA borrowers purchased existing homes, and 94 percent of the homes they bought were detached, single-family homes.

The majority of the homes purchased during the spring were located in the suburbs of major metropolitan areas. Rural locations were more popular with conventional borrowers than those using the government mortgage programs. According to the study, "this preference may reflect the ability of buyers using conventional financing to purchase larger, more expensive homes on larger lots of land than buyers using FHA or DVA financing."

"The numbers continue to show that FHA and DVA generally serve different niches of the home buying market than private mortgage insurers," said NAR Chief Economist John A. Tuccillo.

NAR supports legislation to adjust the mortgage insurance ceiling on FHA-insured loans, to more adequately reflect conditions in high-cost markets, where entry-level buyers are finding the largest barriers to homeownership. The association supports raising the limit to 95 percent of the area median price. The current limit, $101,250, has effectively barred use of the program by people trying to buy in high-cost areas.

Presidents Seek Offense At Weymouth S.

You can't score when you don't have the ball as Quincy's football team found out last Friday night when Waltham controlled the ball for three of the four quarters to topple the Presidents, 19-0, at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Coach Jack Raymer hopes the offense will improve Friday night when Quincy faces Weymouth South in a 7 p.m. game at Weymouth's Legion Field.

Weymouth South, which defeated Quincy, 27-6, last season in a 0-2, losing to Dedham, 20-6, and to Marshfield, 28-21.

"I'm very disappointed," said Raymer. "I thought this was our year to get them, but our offense just didn't jell and Waltham, a very good team, was able to control the ball most of the game. Our defense was on the field for an awfully long time. We have a lot of young players who are still making mistakes. We watched the game films and the kids know what they did wrong. They will work on these mistakes and, hopefully, they won't make them against Weymouth South."

Raymer had good words for junior Mike Flavin, who went all the way at quarterback after sophomore Gary Collins had played there in the opener against Cambridge. He handled the ball well but was under constant pressure passing. He was four of 12 for 54 yards.

Quincy had only 79 yards on the ground and 62 of these were gained by Mark Bogan, who again ran well. Waltham had 148 yards rushing and 51 passing, including one for a touchdown.

Waltham had 13 first downs to six for Quincy.

"Joe Baker had another excellent game both ways as did Tom Morrell," said Raymer. "Lou Pagnani, Bogan, Steve O'Donoghue and Jim Munroe were outstanding on defense as was Bill Reardon, and sophomore Chris Walker did well at end, making a couple of fine catches. I expect good things from him."

The Presidents controlled the ball for only the second quarter when they drove to the Waltham 12 yard line in 13 plays, including a 21-pass from Flavin to Munroe, but the Hawks held and took over on their 19.

Waltham took the opening kickoff and drove 66 yards in six plays with John O'Brien scoring on a 28-yard run. Rick Riley kicked the extra point.

Later in the first quarter Waltham got the ball on Quincy's 27 after a punt by Bogan. A penalty set the Hawks back to the 42 from where they marched to their second TD. Kevin Ryan hitting O'Brien for a 24-yard score with 56 seconds left in the quarter. Riley's kick for the conversion was no good.

In the third quarter Waltham drove 61 yards in 11 plays and Mike Pfrift scored from the two. Waltham went for two points but Leo Cotto was stopped short.

Raiders Seek Turnaround At Brookline

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy football team got its offense in gear last Saturday at Newton North and Coach Ken McPhee hopes to avoid the mistakes that cost the Raiders a 22-16 defeat when they face Brookline Friday afternoon at 2:30 p.m. at Northeastern's Parsons Field.

"We really moved the ball well all day after sputtering against Milton, but we killed ourselves with costly mistakes and penalties," said McPhee. "We got inside their 20 five times but mistakes and penalties prevented us from cashing in. The defense did a good job and offensively I thought we looked good."

Two long Newton passes, one for 60 yards, the other for 54, in the third quarter enabled the Tigers to open up a 22-2 lead after being ahead by only an 8-2 score at the half.

Keith Gott paced the North Quincy attack with 78 yards on 14 carries. Dave Kiley ran 11 times for 50 yards and Jimmy Raines carried twice for 13 and 15 yards.

Quarterback Rich Brooks, who ran the team well, completed seven 21 passes for 94 yards. North rushed for 175 yards.

Newton had only 50 yards rushing but Brandon Hehir was six for 15 for 184 yards and two scores. North Quincy had 14 first downs to five for Newton.

"Sophomore Desmond Bellot, who is developing into a fine pass receiver, played an excellent game," McPhee said.

On defense Brian Zimmerman, Gary Rawdon, Mike Iacobacci, Scott Leonard and Scott Kemp were outstanding.

One Raider touchdown was nullified by a penalty and other penalties halted promising drives.

Newton drove 69 yards after receiving the opening kickoff and Hehir scored from the four. He passed to Rick Leger for the two-point conversion.

Early in the second quarter Newton was the victim of a safety when the pass from center sailed over the punter's head and was recovered the Tigers in the end zone.

In the third quarter Hehir hit David Quinn for a 60-yard touchdown.

The Tigers made it 22-2 when he hit Quinn for a 54-yard touchdown.

North Quincy made a fine comeback in the final quarter with two touchdowns. Bill Earley climaxed a good drive by scoring from the one and Brooks passed to Bellot for the two-point conversion.

A promising North drive was halted by a pass interception, but the Raiders got the ball back and Brooks scored from the three late in the game. A pass for the conversion was no good.

A bright spot for North was the continued fine punting of Chris Deshler, who has punted extremely well in both games.

"He is a tremendous punter and he kicked like a pro against a stiff wind at Newton," McPhee said. "He is one of the finest punters I have had."

The Raiders will be bolstered for the Brookline game with the return of three starters who were suspended for the first two games.

Brookline, which ripped the Raiders, 29-0, last season, is 1-1, having lost its opener to Wellesley, 14-0, and last week defeating Medford, 7-0.

Deadline for this week's contest is Friday, Sept. 29.

Quincy Sun Car Care Guide

Simplifying task of shopping for an automobile

New or used, buying a car is a major expense. In fact, for Americans, it ranks second only to purchasing a home. The good news is that a used car could be your wisest investment, if you are aware of today's range of buying options.

When considering a car purchase, consider all the sellers at your service. You can make your purchase from a private seller or a car rental company, in addition to the traditional car dealer.

Most people don't identify car rental companies as a source for cars, yet each year many of these companies sell thousands of current model cars to consumers and replace them with newer models.

"Shop around for the best seller," advises William Welty, corporate vice president of National Car Rental. "Consider each offer, including type of warranty or guarantee, plus financing options and the availability of the car's maintenance records for your review."

He points out that most rental companies keep each car's complete maintenance history on file, so you can see exactly what you are buying. This can help eliminate a lot of the risk involved when buying a used car. And, on the whole, most rental cars receive better scheduled maintenance than the average car.

In addition, National's cars can be serviced by a large network of facilities throughout the U.S. during the lifetime of the warranty.

"Frequently, private sellers do not offer a warranty," says Welty, "whereas National offers a free 12 month or 12,000 mile Limited Powertrain Warranty, a variety of optional service contracts, as well as a 'Buy Back Guarantee' to ensure an even exchange or money back on purchases made within 30 days or 1,000 miles."

National's retail autos are typically one year old and have low mileage; only the best hand-picked fleet cars are sold retail. Typically, prices from large car rental companies are lower than from car dealers, and popular fully-equipped models are available at competitive prices.

While some people object to buying a used rental car because the cars have had a number of different drivers, auto mechanics maintain that the number of drivers makes no difference. The key factor to a car's overall condition is maintenance.

And most renters are business people who usually are concerned with safe driving habits, and don't treat rental cars any differently than they do their personal vehicles.

Welty encourages shoppers to inspect a used car carefully, following these checkpoints:

- If you can't bring a mechanic with you, ask a friend with some knowledge of cars to accompany you. Have your mechanic or friend stand outside the car to let you know if the brake, flasher, signal backup, and running, head and tail lights work.

- Walk around the car to check for peeling paint—a sign that the car may be rusty underneath. Check the wheel tailgate or trunk area and under the hood for rusting, too. Severe rust spots may lead to expensive repairs.

- Test drive on different road surfaces at high/low speeds. If the engine doesn't turn over in a few seconds, knocks or runs roughly, the car may need higher octane fuel or expensive repairs.

- Lift the hood and check the condition of belts, hoses and battery. Cracks or leaks may mean decline of the car's overall condition.

- Be alert to any unusual sounds, vibrations or odors. The transmission should shift smoothly through all the gears, and a manual clutch should not vibrate or grab. A shaky wheel could result from front-end alignment or suspension problems.

- Stand back to see if the car is level and conforms to its natural line. Test shock absorbers by pushing the car down on each corner and letting it bounce. Good shock absorbers only bounce once.

Additional inspection checkpoints, and further information to prepare you for fail-safe shopping, can be found in a free brochure, "Used Cars—Where to Shop, How to Buy."

To receive your copy, write to: Used Cars—Where to Shop, How to Buy, P.O. Box 1013, Maple Plain, MN 55348.

ELIMINATING CAR-BUYING RISK—Only the best hand-picked fleet cars are sold retail at National Car Rental's Sales Division around the country. The cars are typically one year old, have low mileage and come with a "Buy Back Guarantee."

Are your brakes shuddering? It's wise to get them checked as soon as possible

A tip-off that you may need brake service is when you feel the pedal pulsating or moving up and down under your foot. Instead of smooth, even braking, your car will shudder to a stop.

While this condition may be due to loose wheel bearings or brake parts, the most common cause is warped brake rotors or drums that are out of round. Assuming the drums or rotors are still safe for further use, the problem usually is easily corrected.

The accepted cure, generally, is to have a brake service shop remove the distortion by machining the parts on a brake lathe.

If the condition has gone on too long, however, you may need new parts—a case for taking corrective measures as soon as the condition becomes apparent.

What causes warping of drums or rotors? Heat is the most common cause, says Car Care Council. Extended periods of heavy braking, such as might be encountered on a long down grade with a travel trailer in tow, can cause extremely high brake temperatures. This heat, in addition to damaging brake shoes and/or pads, can distort drums and rotors.

Motorists should make note of changes in braking action and, as soon as possible after abnormalities are noticed, have a qualified technician inspect the system, says the Council.

When the brakes are serviced, be sure to inspect pads and linings and replace as needed. Have wheel bearings repacked. It's a convenient time to have this work done and, if an overheating condition had existed, the bearings may require repacking with fresh grease.

For an informative pamphlet on "How to Keep Your Brakes From Letting You Down," send 25¢ and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: BRAKES, Car Care Council, 600 Renaissance Center, Detroit, MI 48243.

PREVENT COOLING SYSTEM PROBLEMS

When was the last time you checked your cooling system? If you can't remember, you're overdue. Prevention is the best plan to avoid cooling system problems, says Car Care Council.

RECOGNIZING SIGNS OF BRAKE WEAR

Fading, squeaking, pulling or grinding are signs of brake wear. If these symptoms are ignored, you're headed for trouble. Car Care Council recommends giving your car's brakes an annual once

WEEK OF: September 28

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Harmony is essential to your wellbeing, and you go all out to attain it. Romance also is important, as are beautiful objects. Sometimes it is difficult for you to make decisions. An added effort to be more decisive can yield major career dividends by the middle of 1990.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

Your recent negative attitude begins to disappear as an upbeat trend begins. Partner is more accepting of circumstances. Financial news is brighter than initially expected.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

Rumors circulating are just that, and they should not influence your decisions. Indeed, remaining objective can help you gain an edge at work. Take advantage of friend's rare display of generosity.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

Information becoming available at this time can be used to your advantage. Financial news-brighter may arrive during weekend. Travel plans are subject to last minute revisions.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

A change in plan may prove a blessing in disguise. You're receiving mixed messages from a loved one, but try not to press the issue. News of a celebration may arrive by Wednesday.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

Partner is showing signs of a changing attitude, becoming less intense, more spontaneous. Your famous gift of gab helps you attain a prestigious post. Be warned of flatterers.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

Health reviews-for yourself and loved ones, including pets-should be taken seriously. Partner is less formal. Friend is more supportive of your offbeat ideas.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

Good week for experimenting in various artistic media and for enrolling in a new area of study. Travel plans may backfire, but try not to be discouraged. Praise arrives from unexpected source.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

Behind-the-scenes happenings may lead to your advancement. It's important to perform at optimum level. Travel arrangements require clarification. It may be easier not to delegate tasks.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Group efforts are highlighted at this time, although there may be a dispute over leadership. You may be enjoying a new role on the homefront. Long-ago friend may contact you.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

Good week for exchanging views on controversial topics, as you and partner are less emotional, more rational. Business and pleasure mix unusually well, so long as you remember priorities.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

This is not the week to rely on favors. Thursday-Friday highlight visits to favorite old haunts. The weekend's spotlight is on health and fitness activities. Monday-Wednesday are for financial planning.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20

Make an added effort to obtain information you need to complete a major project. Intuition is not as sharp as you believe, so avoid taking risks. Romance accents its good-humored side.

Tourney Continues

Burke, Ryan Tennis Singles Winners

After a week-long delay caused by the effects of Hurricane Hugo, championship action in the 19th annual Quincy tennis tournament sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department and the Granite Bank began once again with action at the Voc-Tech courts.

After some make-up matches Sunday, tournament director John Franceschini was able to schedule the first of 10 championship matches Monday night.

In Monday night's finals the list of champions began with a great men's 50 and over single's match, which saw long time steady player George Burke win his first title by defeating first time finalist Bill Egan, 6-0, 6-3. This match was highlighted by excellent serving by Burke, who did not lose his serve to Egan throughout the match.

The Men's B consolation singles final saw two newcomers to the finals also. This match put veteran Joe Shea against an upcoming star, Steve Kientzle. In the end, the big serve, and very quick feet of Kientzle proved to be too much for Shea, and Steve won 6-2, 6-1.

The third final of the night matched long time rivals Leonard Ciavarro and Joe Ryan in the Men's 35 and over championship. Ryan won his sixth consecutive men's 35 title in two hours and ten minutes, defeating Ciavarro 7-5, 4-6, 6-4.

Four of the best young tennis players on the South Shore took their match to court, one for the men's double final on Monday.

Defending champion Oscar Jara and David Bouley went up against a strong team of Tom Savoie and Patrick Finnegan. After two hard fought sets, Jara and Bouley retained their title winning, 6-1, 6-4.

The last final played on Monday was the mixed doubles final for the William F. Ryan Cup. Defending champions Tom Bossard and Bernie DePietro knew they would have to play their best tennis to defeat a strong mixed team of Hildy Gillis and Joe Ryan. The big serves of Tom and Bernie became the deciding factor as they went on to defend their title, 6-3, 6-4.

Weather permitting, finals continue this week at the Quincy Voc-tech courts. Other scores, not reported from previous play:

Macvornish Don Bosco Freshman

Richard Macvornish, 11 Trevor St., Squantum, is enrolled in the freshmen class at Don Bosco Technical High School in Boston.

Recycling Conference At NQHS Oct. 14

A conference on recycling for the South Shore will be held Saturday, Oct. 14, at the North Quincy High School from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The conference is sponsored by several organizations including the South Shore Coalition, Massachusetts Audubon Society, Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group, Clean Water Action, Quincy Junior College, the State Department of Environmental Protection, and the City of Quincy.

The conference is intended for a wide audience ranging from municipal officials to interested citizens and students living on the South Shore (Quincy, Braintree, Milton, Cohasset, Duxbury, Hanover, Hingham, Hull, Marshfield, Norwell, Rockland, Scituate and Weymouth).

Featured speakers at the conference will be nationally recognized environmental scientist Dr. Barry Commoner and Daniel Greenbaum, Commissioner of the State Department of Environmental Protection.

Six workshops will be held on such topics as implementing programs for communities and businesses.

Ward 3 City Councillor Larry Chretien, one of the organizers, said, "People realize that recycling is a necessary approach to managing solid waste. The purpose of the conference is to get more information out to the average citizen and to others as to what must be done to tap the potential of recycling."

Jean Cristensen of the South Shore Coalition added, "This conference has something for everyone, from children right on up to concerned municipal officials and businessmen. Child care is available and there will be a number of exhibits by private recycling vendors."

For more information about the conference, call Chretien at 773-1380, Ext. 341, or Jean Cristensen at 659-4909.

Neighbors Complain About 'Eyesore Fence'

The License Board Tuesday took under advisement a hearing concerning neighbors' complaints about the poor condition of large fence surrounding Dollar Saver of Quincy, 321 Quincy Shore Dr.

Neighbors say the fence, which abuts residential property, is in "deplorable condition" and is an "eyesore" in the neighborhood. They also told the board the problem has continued for years.

The property was purchased one year ago by Gerson Levin. According to the board, Levin had, at the time, promised to repair or replace because the washware of neighbors' concerns.

Although they acknowledge that Levin has had parts of the fence painted and pickets replaced, neighbors say it is not enough. They told the board the fence, part metal and part wood, is uneven in construction and style and needs replacing.

Representing the neighbors, Dorothy Gallagher, who told the board her property is directly next door to the Dollar Saver parking lot, said the situation is "ridiculous."

"We want to be good neighbors," she said. "(Mr. Levin) started out being a fine neighbor when he told us he would replace the fence, but he hasn't done that."

Atty. Paul Costello, representing Levin, said fixing the "huge" fence would cost his client "in excess of $10,000," and said Levin was unaware of the cost at the time he said he would replace it. He also maintained the problems with the fence did not develop over the past year since Levin has owned it.

Board Chairman John Gillis said the cost was not at issue. He also noted that Levin was aware of the problem when he bought the property.

"He made a promise to this board," Gillis said. "When he bought the property he said he would rectify the condition... He made a promise and he must abide by it. The neighbors expect it," Gillis said.

Levin maintained he has "not shirked his responsibility." He said he has contacted several companies for price estimates on the job.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey will inspect the fence this week to determine whether all of it must be replaced or just parts of it. He will report back to the Board next Tuesday.

Mulvey noted he could only inspect the fence in terms of structural quality and said that fence viewers from the city Building Department could later determine whether the fence should be entirely replaced for the sake of appearance in the neighborhood.

The matter will come back before the board at next Tuesday's meeting.

Houghs Neck Auto Repair Shop License Approved

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Edward L. Campbell of Babcock St., to open a two-bay general auto repair shop at 10 Charles St., providing that the garage be painted, that lighting be installed, and that no vehicles are stored at the site.

Campbell assured the board that all the stipulations would be adhered to. He said he also plans to clean up the lot on the property and install a gate to keep kids from using the site as a hangout.

Ward Councillor Michael Cheney had written a letter to the board in support of the request.

Campbell said he had spoken with Cheney and that the councillor was in favor of the site being cleaned up. Campbell told the board that the building is an "eyesore" now because kids use it as a nighttime hangout. There is graffiti on the building, broken bottles in the lot, and the lights are broken, he said.

Campbell said he plans to install new lighting, with caging so that the lights cannot be smashed, and that he intends to discourage kids from hanging out at the building.

The board noted that there is no problem with the zoning of the building and that the site had long been used as an auto repair shop and/or an out board motor repair shop.

Campbell told the board that he will specialize electrical and computer repair work and he plans to operate from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

He also took the board's suggestion to speak to someone at the nearby Houghs Neck Congregational Church to make sure there were no objections.

Council Overrides Veto On Hiring Preference Ordinance

By an 8-1 margin, the City Council Mayor Francis X. McCauley's veto of an ordinance which will give Quincy residents hiring preference on a three to one ratio for city supported construction projects.

The overruling marks the first time a mayor's veto has been overridden in Quincy since the council overrode Mayor Joseph LaRaia's veto regarding the manning structure at the Quincy Police Department some 12 years ago, said City Clerk John Gillis.

McCauley twice vetoed the hiring preference order, calling it "Un-American" and "overly" restrictive to employees as well as overly intrusive by the city." The major also cautioned that the order is unenforceable and could set a dangerous precedent by prompting other communities to establish similar laws.

City Solicitor Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie has said the ordinance violates the privileges and immunities clause of the U.S. Constitution.

Only Councillor Timothy Cahill, who concurred with the major on his earlier vetoes, voted against the override. Cahill voted against the order both times it appeared before the council. However, the other councillors, namely sponsors Michael Cheney, Patricia

To land and Stephen McGrath, contend the order will give residents a fair share of development benefits by being hired on a three to one ratio.

The ordinance applies only to city-supported projects costing more than $250,000. Developers will also have to pay the prevailing wage on Quincy construction projects.

In addition, minorities and women will receive additional hiring preference as provided by federal, state and municipal laws.

Responding the mayor's contention that the bill is illegal, McGrath, who is also an attorney, said, "It's a perfectly legitimate ordinance."

Hearing Oct. 12 On MBTA Parking Hike

In response to the MBTA's announcement last week that it would be raising the rates for all MBTA parking lots to $3, in some cases an increase of 200 percent, Senator Paul Harold Friday filed a bill to halt the action.

The bill would have rolled the rates back to the original prices, he said, and would also establish "a mechanism for public hearings to give people some notice."

"People have to have some time for adjustment," he said.

The MBTA has since responded by saying it would delay the rate hikes until Oct. 30 and will also hold public hearings on the matter in Boston, Revere and Quincy next week.

The hearing in Quincy will be held Thursday, Oct. 12 from 6 to 8 p.m. in the Council Chambers of City Hall.

According to MBTA spokesman Jim Ball, the T's action of postponing the rate increases and scheduling public hearings was in response to Sen. Harold's bill and to "a number of other things," including customer complaints.

Quincy has four MBTA parking lots which would be impacted by the daily rate increase as follows: North Quincy would increase from $1 to $3; Quincy Adams from $1.50 to $3; Quincy Center from $1.50 to $3 and Wollaston station from $1 to $3.

"For two stations that is an increase of 200 percent,"

Steadman Quincy Bar Guest

Judge Robert Stadman, Chief Justice of the Massachusetts Superior Court, will be the guest of speaker at the Quincy Bar Association's next meeting, Monday, Oct. 23 at Mr. Kelly's Restaurant, Summer St., Quincy.

The program will start at 6 p.m. with a cash bar from 6 to Save Gas and Money ...

Shop Locally

Harold said.

"This has an impact on the commuter. For the average person it means an additional $40 per month," he explains, adding that the rate increase would also have an adverse affect on residential streets surrounding the stations.

"The number of cars parking on residential streets (rather than in the lots) could increase by the thousands if the rates increase by 200 percent," he said. "And as far as Quincy Center is concerned, the all day parking lots we have for retail business is $2 per day. If every other lot was $3 a day this would further increase the flooding into these lots ... we're trying to provide (this) parking for people shopping or going to a dentist appointment in Quincy Center."

Harold said that an increase in parking rates may also result in more people driving into Boston because in some cases, it may even become cheaper alternative than parking at an MBTA lot.

This, he said would defeat the whole idea behind the commuter service, which is to keep as many cars as possible out of Boston.

Harold said that he hopes to use the additional leeway before the rates are set to increase on Oct. 30 to its fullest advantage.

"During that time we hope to make our case for the excessiveness of the raise and for the consideration of our residential areas and also downtown Quincy," he said.

7 p.m. and dinner to follow.

Food Drive For Hurricane Hugo Victims 'Going Well'

Volunteers and Quincy Army National Guardsmen were busy collecting non-perishable food and other supplies Tuesday and Wednesday to be shipped to victims of Hurricane Hugo in Charleston, South Carolina by Friday.

According to Mayor Francis McCauley who initiated the food drive last week at the request of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, the drive was going well.

"The critical time for food is now. We want to collect it and get it out of here by Friday. We made the appeal to residents and we thank those people who have responded."

"Whatever we get, we will accept. We've had a good response," McCauley said.

Last week, McCauley with the help of volunteers, clergy, school administrators as well as the city's police officers, firefighters and National Guardsmen, launched the food drive to help residents in Charleston, South Carolina. The area was devastated by Hurricane Hugo about two weeks ago. The storm caused several billion dollars in damage and left 75,000 people homeless.

According to a spokesman for Charleston Mayor Joe Riley, "Many of these people were poor before the storm hit, and are even poorer now. Many have nothing left at all."

"The eye of Hugo went right over Charleston," McCauley noted, adding that the city has been fortunate to escape serious storms.

Helping to coordinate the city's effort were Tony Siciliano, deputy director of the Quincy Civil Defense, and the city's personnel director, David Smith.

Several hundred pounds of canned and non-perishable food were expected to be collected Wednesday from the city's schools and eight fire stations. After pickup, the goods were to be transferred to the National Guard Armory on the corner of Hancock St. and Furnace Brook Parkway.

There, they will be prepared for shipment scheduled for Thursday or Friday. McCauley said air travel arrangements have been made at no cost to the city.

"We hope to ship it out of here Thursday, no later than Friday," the mayor said.

In addition, several National Guard trucks from Quincy were to wait outside the gates at Sullivan Stadium before Tuesday's Rolling Stones concert. With the help of Boston radio stations, concert goers were informed that canned food donations were being accepted before the sold-out show.

Besides the food, two chainsaws were donated to help residents and business owners clear their property. Siciliano said there was enough wood on the ground to build Charleston "five times over."

About 15,000 trees were knocked to the ground from the storm's 100-plus m.p.h. winds.

One chainsaw was donated by the O'Connell Management Co. of Quincy and another by Curry Hardware in West Quincy.

Financial donations are also being accepted. Checks can be made payable to "Charleston Disaster Relief Fund," City Hall, 800 Broad St., Charleston, S.C. 29401. Phone number is (803) 720-3838.

QUINCY FOOD ASSISTANCE drive coordinators, from left, Captain Thomas Sellers of the 126th Signal Battalion, Army National Guard in Quincy; Fire Chief Paul O'Connell and Civil Defense Deputy Director Anthony Siciliano stand with dozens of canned and other non-perishable food collected during the recent city-wide drive. The aid, to help victims of Hurricane Hugo in Charleston, South Carolina, is scheduled to be shipped by Friday.

LaRaia's 'Last Hurrah'?

Was this year's mayoral campaign Joe LaRaia's "Last Hurrah?"

Some political observers think it was. He won't be back to run again, they're convinced.

But ask the man himself and he replies:

"I don't have any plans at this point. But you never say no in this business. And I just don't close the door on anything."

He says right now he's concentrating on his real estate firm and hasn't had much time to think about future politics or even last month's preliminary election.

"I haven't had time to absorb it," he says regarding the preliminary election.

He says he doesn't feel the results -- his finish out of the money -- was proportionate to the amount of time and effort he put into the campaign.

He says he hasn't yet put a handle on how and why he slid to fourth spot this year when only two years ago he came within less than 500 votes of unseating Mayor Francis McCauley.

Is he going to support either James Sheets or Peter O'Connell in the final showdown?

"I have no plans at this time to do so," he says.

Would he later?

"I don't know. I'm going to watch the campaign closely. I might come out in support of one of the candidates if I come to the conclusion I thought one might be better for the city of Quincy."

Has he been approached by either Sheets or O'Connell for his support?

"I don't want to get into that."

LaRaia

SHEETS

O'CONNELL

Has he had any meeting with either of them?

"I really don't want to comment on anything like that."

Although Sheets topped O'Connell by 1846 votes in the preliminary election, (35% to 27%) LaRaia thinks it's still a good horseshoe.

"Both have tons of money to spend and get their message out and there's plenty of time in which to do it. It can go down to the wire. It's still a good race."

Incidentally, an appreciation dinner and reception for LaRaia is scheduled for Wednesday, Oct. 18 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

LaRaia says he has no animosity and isn't picking any sour grapes, but he notes: "I don't envy the next mayor. With the limitation on money and unless there is some kind of a financial bailout things are going to be tough for the new mayor."

He's going to have to make some tough decisions every day of the week. It's going to be a nightmare. The office really isn't worth all that."

LaRaia says he knows what the office can be like.

"I've been there before. It isn't easy."

LaRaia, who has been both mayor and city councillor in a career spanning three decades says he has never really personally benefited from public office.

He says he doesn't look on his service in elective office a political career.

"I have had an interest in city matters," he says. "And I have had an interest in non-political activities."

He points to the South Shore Cultural Commission he has headed up the past seven years as one of the non-political activities.

As the final mayoral campaign winds up again without him or Steve McGrath as candidates, how neutral is he as far as Sheets and O'Connell are concerned.

"Right now," he says, "I don't know which one I will vote for on election day."

But again, that's right now. And, tomorrow is tomorrow.

Concerned Quincy Citizens Form Political Action Organization

A group of Quincy citizens have formed a political action organization to lobby for better schools and to encourage and support candidates for public office who are committed to supporting public education.

A Statement of Organization was filed with the City Clerk's office in accordance with campaign finance laws and a Board of Directors has been established.

According to a prepared statement, the organization, named Quincy Citizens for Quality Education (QCQE), was formed to generate greater support for public education and to promote excellence in education in Quincy's school system. QCQE is composed of active parents, teachers and other Quincy citizens who care very deeply about public education and who recognize the importance of education to our children's future.

"QCQE is gravely concerned that various budget-cutting measures during the last decades have seriously threatened the quality of educational programs here in Quincy. Additionally, it is clear that decreased school enrollment has contributed to diminished support for our schools, with school parents now representing only a small segment of our community," the QCQE statement read.

"It is the goal of QCQE to garner support for our schools through the political activism of school parents and other education advocates. We hope to include senior citizens, business people and other citizens in our organization."

"QCQE believes that good schools benefit everyone in the community. They enhance property values. They help to provide a trained work force for local businesses."

"Most importantly, an excellent school system promises a bright future for our children and our city," the organization stated.

The QCQE conducted a membership drive Monday,

A QUINCY FAMILY of four were among the concerned citizens who participated in Monday's march on City Hall to promote quality education in the city. The sign reads, "Education should be a priority -- Support Our Kids." The march coincided with a membership drive for the newly formed education political action organization called, "Quincy Citizens for Quality Education."

MA YORAL CANDIDATE Peter O'Connell and Quincy School Committee Vice Chairperson Mary Collins were among the 150 parents, teachers, students and city officials who participated in an education rally outside City Hall Monday which was designated "A Day of Conscience for Public Education." The rally coincided with a membership drive for "Quincy Citizens for Quality Education," a newly formed education political action organization.

Two preliminary races were almost too close to call with Leo J. Hannon Jr. finishing four votes ahead of Francis X. McCauley in the Ward 1 Council race and three within a whisker of each other in Ward 3.

John F. Koepler had 449 votes, Leo F. Burke had 439 and Fred A. Sisti 395 in the Ward 3 contest where it was believed that Sisti would ask for a recount.

Finishing fourth and out of contention in Ward 1 was young lawyer Arthur H. Tobin, who had promised in his campaign that he would lead the fight in the Council to keep the MTA out of Quincy.

An appeal for help from the Connecticut State Police touched off a New Englandwide search for "Dame," who was thought to have been found by a Hartford Courant reporter in Farmington.

A woman in the Connecticut city said that the dog that walked up to her home "looked like a bag of bones. But he was friendly with the kids and he answers to the description."

Public Education Topic For Quincy LWV Oct. 17

With the issue of public education in the forefront of national concerns recently, the opening lecture of the Quincy League of Women Voters' Mary C. Gossard Lecture Series is right on target.

The League will sponsor a lecture by Dr. Sherry H. Penney, newly installed Chancellor of the University of Massachusetts at Boston, to be held Tuesday, Oct. 17 at 7:30 p.m. at the United First Parish Church, Quincy Square. Dr. Penney's topic will be "New Initiatives in Public Education."

Following the lecture a four member respondent panel will comment on Dr. Penney's remarks. The members of this panel are: Peter Griswold, of the Citywide Parents Advisory Council; Harold Reynolds, Commissioner of Education for the State of Mass.; Dr. Robert Ricci, Superintendent of Quincy Public Schools and Thomas Walsh, President of the Quincy Education Association.

Mary C. Gossard, a long time Quincy League member and past president, and wife of Dr. Paul Gossard, Supt. of the Quincy Public Schools from 1944-1963, left a bequest in her will to the Quincy League of Women Voters. She died in 1987 at the age of 88.

The League had decided to use her bequest to establish a lecture series in her name which would focus on important public concerns. Because Mrs. Gossard was a firm believer in a strong public education system, the opening lecture is very appropriate, said League member Mary Quinn.

The League hopes the lecture will serve as a catalyst for a renewed concern in Quincy public education, Quinn said, and stressed the importance for community attendance.

"We really want everyone to come," she said, "especially those who don't currently have children in the school system...because public education should be important to everyone in the community."

"The real point is to build a constituency for education in Quincy," said Alicia Coletti, a League member and Assistant Director of Personnel for the Quincy Public Schools.

Invitations to the lecture have been sent to a cross section of citizens, Quinn explains, including business people, and local politicians and community leaders. The candidates for School Committee and Mayor have also been invited, Quinn said, as have Quincy state legislators. But anyone with interest is encouraged to attend.

"We need to get the message out to other people," Coletti said, "not only to parents, but to young professionals who have no kids, and to senior citizens."

Among the issues to be discussed during the lecture, will be the impact of the state fiscal crisis on public education and the national concern about the inadequate academic preparation American students are receiving in contrast with Japan and West Germany.

Quinn explains that the League had secured Dr. Penney for the lecture last spring.

"And that was lucky too," she adds, "because now she's been inundated with requests to speak."

Since the President's recent remarks on the importance of public education in America, Quinn says, the topic has become very popular. The League hopes it will prove to be so in Quincy as well.

Quinn said that all Quincy residents should have a special interest in Dr. Penney's lecture because UMASS Boston is the number one choice among Quincy high school graduates who continue their education. Statistics show that over 20 percent of recent graduating classes from Quincy High School and North Quincy High School have entered UMASS Boston.

But, more importantly, she adds, the lecture should be of importance to Quincy citizens because the issue of public education is "an issue that concerns everyone."

Proceeds will go to the

Bridal Fashion Show At Quincy Nursing Home

The residents of the Quincy Nursing Home, McGrath Highway, were treated to a special bridal fashion show last week presented by the nursing home's Activity Department.

Bridal gowns dating back to the 1930s were modeled by staff members.

Stephen Kaesman and Arthur Miller, both residents of the Quincy Nursing Home, escorted the models down the aisle. Both escorts wore black tuxedos donated by Tux Time in Braintree.

Other donations included floral arrangements from Quincy Florist, and a two-tier wedding cake donated by Lori Ann's Bakery of Quincy. A "reception" followed the fashion show, and the event ended with the traditional throwing of the garter and the bouquet.

Models included Beth Walsh, Carol Townsend, Linda Touri, and Eloise Kelly, as well as other staff members.

Activity Director Laurie Clark said that every staff member at the Quincy Nursing Home contributed to the success of the show.

She also thanked Children's Theatre, Mary Anne Chamberlain and Kathleen Queenan for additional help.

following the church service, coffee is served downstairs in the fellowship hall.

Coming events include the wedding of Susan Jacobs and Peter Goodale Saturday, Oct. 7 and the Naomi Society meeting Monday, Oct. 16.

Homecoming Weekend Follows Theme At First Baptist Church

The First Baptist Church of Wollaston Homecoming Weekend provided parishioners the opportunity to learn about the church theme, "Traveling in Faith Powered By Prayer."

The theme, devised by the church's Coordinating Council last May, will be stressed throughout the year.

"This theme expresses the idea that God's people walk in a particular path. Distinctive from others in this world, we walk the road of faith. At the heart of faith is the practice of prayer, which sustains, nurtures, and powers faith. Prayer is our best bridge to God," said the Rev. Dr. Richard Malmquist, pastor of the church.

"Recognizing that each person's faith journey is unique, we have come up with a smorgasbord of different opportunities to help one another travel in faith. Homecoming Weekend was one of those opportunities," Dr. Malmquist said.

Homecoming Weekend consisted of the Youth group participating in an American Baptist Churches, U.S.A. sponsored youth rally at Tremont Temple in Boston Friday. On Saturday, Men's and Women's breakfasts were held, prepared by Richard Wilkins and Nancy R. Weston. A "Top O' The Hill Gang" event for younger adults of the congregation took place Saturday evening with a "traveling" game and dessert. At Church School on Sunday, winners of the church logo coloring contest were announced. They are as follows: Richard DeRusha, Christine Waters, Lauren Bowen, Amity Manning, Justin Whitman, Sean Spinosa and Linda Wilkins.

A Church School Open House enabled parents to visit classes with their children and for newcomers of all ages to visit the classes.

At the Sunday Communion worship the Traveling in Faith Powered By Prayer banner was hung, and parishioners made their commitments to participate in the year-long series of events. Such events include a series of Forums on contemporary issues on the fourth Sunday evening of each month, special fund raising events, participation in local mission projects at the church's low-cost housing project, Fr. Bill's Place and the Protestant Social Service Bureau, new prayer groups, youth ministry programs, and an All-Church Retreat to be held in the Family Center at Grotonwood, a church camp located in Groton, Mass. In addition, members committed themselves to the ongoing ministries of Christian Education, Music, Circles of Caring and Fellowship groups.

For more information about events and activities at the church, call the church office at 472-0824.

'Love Heals' Sermon Topic At Bethany Congregational

Elizabeth M. Upton, graduate of Harvard Divinity School and the new Interim Associate Minister of Bethany Congregational Church, will preach the sermon and conduct the worship at both services Sunday, Oct. 8. She will be assisted by Jean Ann Phinney.

Bethany Church is located at the corner of Coddington and Spear Sts., in Quincy Center. There are two services each Sunday, at 9 a.m. in the chapel and at 10 a.m. in the sanctuary.

Ms. Upton's sermon title is "Love Heals" based on the text from the Gospel of Luke 24:13-35. The lay scripture readers will be Robert L.

Lockwood in the chapel and Joanne French in the sanctuary.

The Chancel Choir, under the direction of organist Charles J. Blue, Sr., will sing as the anthem Gunnar Wennerberg's "Lord of Hosts, to Thee We Raise," and as the offertory, "Lord Christ, Reveal Thy Holy Face" by Bach.

The 10 a.m. service will be broadcast live direct from Bethany's sanctuary over radio station WJDA, 1300 kc.

Sunday School will be in session from 10 to 11 a.m. with classes from pre-school through 9th grade. Child care is also provided for babies in the nursery and for toddlers.

At 11 a.m. there will be a fellowship hour in the Allen Parlor. Individuals and families from the community are welcome and invited to the worship and fellowship, and to enroll children in the Sunday School.

A retreat is being held this Columbus Day weekend, Oct. 7, 8 and 9 at the Craigville Conference Center on Cape Cod. The theme is "Faith is a Verb" and there are 14 Bethany members and friends participating. Joan and Bill Arnold are serving as the retreat leaders.

Dupre, Lord and Ridout.

Philip Curtis and Richard Post will usher. Louise Hall will be greeter.

script, will perform as Abigail Adams. Sponsored in part by the Quincy Arts Lottery Council, there is no charge for admission.

There is a church school for children and youth, and child care is provided.

The church is located at 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center, opposite City Hall. Call 773-1290 for information.

Smoking Cessation Program At Hospital

Quincy Hospital will once again offer its Smoking Cessation Program, beginning with a free, introductory session Wednesday, Oct. 11, at 7:30 in the hospital's cafeteria.

The Smoking Cessation

Program teaches behavior modification along with relaxation techniques. Participants learn to avoid the "cues" that make them want to smoke, find substitutes for smoking without anxiety or weight gain, and learn how to "reprogram" behavior to eliminate the need to smoke.

The class will meet at the same time and location on the following dates: Oct. 11, 16, 17, 18, 19 and 24. For registration information, call 773-6100, ext. 2072.

Quincy Community Action Seeks Daycare Teachers

Quincy Community Action is seeking individuals who are interested in becoming daycare teachers to participate in a free training program offered in conjunction with Quincy Junior College.

The nine-month program will train 23 people to become qualified teachers for daycare centers. There is a severe shortage of teachers for daycare centers in the greater Boston area so graduates of the program are expected to be in high demand.

Classes in early education will be offered by Quincy Junior College which will also coordinate field placements at local daycare centers for each participant. Trainees will therefore receive both academic and hands-on training and will be licensable by the Office for Children.

Quincy Community Action will offer supportive services for the program participants in order to assure their successful completion of the training. These services will include support discussions, workshops on relative topics as well as emergency food assistance, etc.

The program is funded by three organizations: The Office for Children, Bay State Skills and The Department of Education. There is no cost to program participants; textbooks and supplies are included as well as a possible transportation subsidy.

Participants may also be eligible to apply for a work/study grant which would enable them to receive a cash stipend for the time that they spend in their field placements.

The program will run nine months, Monday through Friday with hours approximately 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

To be eligible for the program, individuals must be one of the following: low-income, unemployed, underemployed, receiving public assistance, or in a "dead-end" job. Classes will begin in early October and there is still space available.

Those interested should contact Karen Kohlbrener at Southwest Community Center, 471-0796, as soon as possible.

Fire Prevention Expo Oct. 13

A Fire Prevention Exposition will be held Friday

Telephone:

Oct. 13 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Quincy Fire Headquarters, 40 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell has invited representatives from various fire protection equipment companies to participate in educating the public on fire prevention and fire safety.

The exposition is being held in conjunction with the National Fire Prevention Week Oct. 8-14. This year's theme is "Big Fires Start Small--Keep Matches and Lighters in the Right Hands."

The theme reflects the paramount importance of firesafety and firesafety education for young children.

The public is invited to attend the fire exposition which will include door prizes.

The Quincy Fire Department is working with the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) to increase public awareness during fire prevention week.

"In 1988, 6,215 people died in fire in the United States and nearly 80 percent of those deaths occurred in home fires," O'Connell said.

"If we're going to see a reduction in the devastating loss of life and property from fires in this generation, we're all going to have to work together to make this community more firesafe," he said.

O'Connell is urging residents to observe fire protection week and to attend the fire prevention exposition.

$646,375 For Streets, Control Computer For Parking Lots

Two capital outlay appropriations totaling $646,375 were unanimously passed by the City Council Monday.

The council approved an appropriation of $601,375 for the city's street resurfacing project currently underway and another $45,000 for a new revenue control computer system for the operator of the city's parking areas, Metropolitan Parking Systems, Inc.

The new system will include:

- A stand-alone revenue computer with a display terminal and ticket reader at each existing exit booth.

- A central micro-computer with software which is tied in to each exit booth terminal.

The money was originally earmarked for two additional exit booths opposite Cliveden St. in the Ross Parking garage. However, Metropolitan has been able to handle rush hour exiting traffic by setting up an extra "express exit" lane.

With this arrangement, the firm believes the additional booths can be postponed indefinitely.

Metropolitan also requested the change because the present computer system has become overloaded and subject to frequent temporary breakdowns when electrical voltage fluctuates.

The new system will also provide Metropolitan and the city with improved audit control and financial records.

The money for the street resurfacing has been added to $400,000 previously appropriated through federal funding.

Some 66 full and partial streets are on the resurfacing list. They are:

SYC Manager Change Approved

After some discussion, the License Board Tuesday granted the request from the Squantum Yacht Club for a change of manager from Charles Smith to Paul Hines.

Hines, who told the board he has no experience in the operation of a barroom, was elected rather than selected to the position of manager, he said.

He told the board that, while he will be in charge of the day-to-day operation of the club, Robert Doyle will be in charge of the barroom and will also hire bartenders.

The board cautioned Hines that if anything goes wrong in the bar, including the possibility of a civil law suit, it will be the club manager who is ultimately responsible.

Board Chairman John Gillis said he sees nothing wrong with the request providing that Hines understood his personal responsibility.

Police Chief Francis Finn asked that the matter of personal responsibility of the manager be placed on the record of the meeting.

The board also suggested that Hines speak "at length" with City Liquor Inspector Sgt., Richard Laracy regarding city alcohol regulations.

Gallahue Speaks On Incinerator

M. Jane Gallahue, Health Commissioner of Quincy, will speak at the Wednesday, Oct. 4, meeting of the Quincy Citizens Association at 8 p.m. at the Montclair Men's Club, Holbrook Rd., Montclair.

Gallahue will give her views on the hazards of the Rotary Kiln Hazardous Waste Incinerator for which Clean Harbors is seeking a permit on the East Braintree side of Fore River.

Gallahue will discuss why she strongly opposes Clean Harbors' proposal for the waste incinerator in close proximity to Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth. She has made a study of the Clean Harbors' report alleging that their incinerator will not cause serious air pollution causing lung disorders, cancer of various kinds, reproductive problems and neurobehavioral disorders, and will relate her conclusions.

a newcomer to the South Shore. Some time ago while shopping for a house I went to a South Shore town hall for a street directory.

"When I told the clerk what I wanted, she hesitated and asked if I was a citizen. I said yes, and asked it mattered.

"She ignored my question and eventually sold me the book.

"But right behind me was a woman who also wanted a street directory," said I am.

"The clerk didn't ask whether or not she was a citizen. Why not? I don't know.

"But I do know that the woman had fair skin and did not speak English with an accent."

According to Lam, "Quincy has shown that it is a different kind of city. Instead of treating newcomers as strangers or foreigners, you asked yourselves what had to be done to make newcomers part of the community."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Men certainly like to talk in our present day it seems that we are being constantly inundated with words, some very meaningful, some pure 'hog wash'; some truthful, some false...

We all know that many famous politicians, many famous leaders have a certain 'knack' with words. They know how to use the right word - at the right time - in the right place - to say what they mean and mean what they say!

Lincoln is quoted as saying after he lost the senatorial election to Douglas: "It is a slip and not a fall." His words proved true. Instead of saying: "We owe a lot to the R.A.F.", Churchill said: "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

We all have heard the expression: "Don't count your chickens until they're hatched." But would you know what was meant if you heard: "Do not enumerate your poultry prior to successful termination of the process of incubation?"

Yes, in our troubled world today, we have to use our ears very wisely when we hear words that can or cannot help solve our present day problems...

'Hands Across The Bridge Rally' Against Clean Harbors Sunday

Residents from Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree will conduct a "Hands Across The Bridge Rally," Sunday, Oct. 8 at 1:30 p.m. on the Fore River Bridge to show the three communities are united in their staunch opposition to Clean Harbors, Inc.'s (CHI) proposed 90-million pound per year hazardous waste incinerator.

The proposed site is surrounded by heavily populated neighborhoods of the three communities. The site is approximately 300 yards upstream from the bridge, and 700 feet from the nearest neighborhood.

Approximately 20,000 people live within a one-mile radius of the site.

The rally announcement coincides with a call from the Braintree Local Assessment Committee for Inspector General Joseph Barresi to investigate state incinerator siting procedures. Critics of the state's siting procedure charge the process is tainted because CHI has hired several former state officials to "grease the skids" for the company as it goes through the siting process.

Critics also charge they cannot do the work necessary to protect the interests of the communities because the budget for the Local Assessment Committees, for the three communities, has been cut from $1.2 million to $114,000 due to the state's budget woes. They note they do not have funds for technical consultants, and the Braintree Local Assessment Committee had to close their office because they could not pay the rent.

David Jenkins, a member of Citizens Organized to Defend the Environment (CODE), said, "It's unbelievable. We read in the paper (Boston Herald, Oct. 1) that CHI has poured five million dollars into the process and hired many well connected former state officials, yet the folks in Braintree don't even get enough money from the state to pay their rent."

Frank Toland of the East Braintree Civic Association said, "People are also very concerned about a recent state health study that indicated that the surrounding neighborhoods suffered from elevations of lung cancer rates already."

He noted that Karen Boyle, a Braintree High School student won first prize at this year's state Science Fair held at M.I.T. for a health study correlating pre-natal and post-natal problems with proximity to the Fore River basin.

Brian Sindorf, spokesman for Quincy United for the Environment (QUE) said CHI was pushing "a proposal totally driven by greed and with callous disregard for the health effects on the local citizenry."

Jenkins noted that a similar rally on the bridge last year drew 1,500 demonstrators. This year's rally "will show how united and strongly committed the communities are in fighting this proposal," he said.

'Deplorable' Fence Must Be Replaced

The License Board Tuesday gave Gerson Levin, owner of Dollar Saver of Quincy, 321 Quincy Shore Drive, until April 1, 1990 to replace the entire fence surrounding his property.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey, along with Board Chairman John Gillis and Fire Chief Paul O'Connell, viewed the fence last week and determined that the entire fence must be replaced.

The issue was raised last week when several neighbors were before the board demanding that something be done about the "deplorable condition" of the fence which abuts residents' property.

Gillis fought for a 60-day limit for the construction of a new fence, so that it would be in place before the board renews the license in December.

"This is the one time when this board has a little bit of power," Gillis said. "After January when the license is already renewed, we don't have that power anymore."

Atty. Paul Costello,

representing Levin, called the 60-day limit "unfair," noting that the land must be surveyed and the neighbors must be consulted with concerning possible damage to landscaping during the construction of the fence. He said it would take time to secure agreements from the neighbors. He asked for a deadline of June 1st.

Costello, also noted that a new fence is estimated to cost $10,000 and said it is unfair for Levin to have to come up with "a significant amount of money" in that time frame for an "unanticipated expense."

Neighbors present at the hearing told the board that the expense was not "unanticipated" but was promised to them when Levin bought the property last year. According to the board's records, Levin had promised to replace and or repair the fence when he first received his license.

"He came in telling us what a great neighbor he was going to be," Gillis said. "When you make a promise you've got to adhere to it, and that's the ballgame."

Police Chief Francis Finn disagreed with the 60-day time limit, saying it may take longer to survey the land and install it properly.

"We have an obligation to you," Finn told attending residents, "but we also have an obligation to be fair (to Levin), and in my opinion it's not fair to give him only 60 days."

While the board agreed that a deadline of June 1 is too much time, a compromise of April 1, 1990 was reached.

The board said that Levin and his attorney must consult the area residents concerning the style of the fence.

Price Drop, Lower Mortgage Rates Raise Housing Affordability Index

A drop in the median home price, combined with lower closing mortgage rates, boosted a measurement of housing affordability in August to the highest level since April, according to the National Association of Realtors.

NAR's Housing Affordability Index, which tracks monthly changes in home buying ability, measured 102.2 in August, up from 97.7 in July. At 102.2, the index shows that a family earning the national median income of $32,992 for August had 102.2 percent of the income needed to qualify for conventional financing covering 80 percent of a home priced at $94,900, the median existing-home price for that month.

Half the families in the United States earn more than the median income and half earn less. Likewise, half the existing single-family homes sell for more than the median price and half sell for less.

When the index is 100.0, the median family income equals exactly the amount needed to qualify to purchase a median-price home, using conventional financing and making a 20 percent down payment.

Because the median income in August exceeded the qualifying income, a family earning the $32,992 median income could purchase a home priced at $96,900, $2,000 higher than the median price for that month.

NAR President Ira Gribbin noted that while the higher index reflects an easing of overall buying condition, it masks the difficulty first-time buyers face in high-cost markets. "In expensive areas, home prices are so out of sync with incomes that renters with no equity are pushed out of the buying market," he said.

Although improvements in housing affordability were recorded from July to August in each of the regions, conditions in the Northeast and West remained relatively severe. As in July, when NAR first released regional housing affordability data, the least favorable conditions in August were recorded for the those two regions.

In the Northeast, a family earning the median income of $37,026 had 72.5 percent of the income needed to buy a home priced at $148,400, the Northeast price for August. The monthly mortgage payment in the Northeast was $1,064. In July, the index for the Northeast was 70.8.

In the West, a family earning the median income of $35,084 had 75.0 percent of the income needed to buy a home priced at $139,400, the median-home price for the West in August. There, the monthly mortgage payment was $973. In July, the index for the West was 69.3.

The Midwest, which has some of the least expensive housing in the nation, recorded an index of 134.4. A family in the Midwest earning the median income of $33,275 had 134.4 percent of the income needed to purchase a home priced at $72,300, the Midwest median price for August. The monthly principal and interest payment on a mortgage in the Midwest was $516. In July, the index for the Midwest was 129.3.

The South was the region in which housing affordability conditions most closely matched those recorded for the nation. There, a family earning the median income of $30,327 had 101.3 percent of the income needed to buy an $87,400 home, the median price for the South in August. The monthly mortgage payment in the South was $623. The July index for this region was 98.9.

NAR Chief Economist John A. Tuccillo noted that regional housing affordability is defined by differences in home prices, not incomes or interest rates. For instance, the median family income in the Midwest was less than $4,000 lower than that for the Northeast. However, the monthly mortgage payment for the Northeast was about twice as high as that for the Midwest.

NAR recorded an increase in the national affordability index in August because both the median existing-home price and the mortgage interest rate used to calculate the index fell from July to August. The rate is a composite of closing rates offered for both fixed-rate mortgages and adjustable-rate mortgages for existing homes as reported by the Office of Thrift Supervision.

The median price fell from $96,700 to $94,000. Tuccillo said the lower median for August reflected more purchases that month of less-expensive homes.

The interest rate dropped from 10.39 percent to 10.11 percent. A 116 increase in the national median income, from $32,876 in July to $32,992 in August also helped raise the index.

The changes in the national median home price, mortgage rate, and median income between July and August resulted in a $29 decrease in the monthly mortgage payment, which dropped from $701 in July to $672 in August.

Under July's affordability conditions, a family earning $20,000 would have sufficient income to qualify for a $58,800 home using a $47,000 loan. A family earning $30,000 would qualify for an $88,100 home with a $70,500 loan. A family earning $40,000 would have sufficient income to qualify for a $117,500 home with a $94,000 loan; and a family with a $50,000 income would qualify for a $146,900 home using a $117,500 loan.

When calculated with the Office of Thrift Supervision's effective fixed-rate mortgage interest rate of 9.56 percent for August, the Housing Affordability Index was 100.7. When calculated with the effective adjustable-rate mortgage interest rate of 9.56 percent for August, the index was 107.1.

Tuccillo said although overall housing affordability conditions are expected to improve, wide regional disparities will continue. "Many entry-level buyers trying to use conventional financing to buy in high-cost areas are going to stay priced out," he said.

Carousel To Be Located There Tidemill Plaza Gets Council Approval

The famous Houghs Neck carousel is staying in Quincy. By an 8-1 vote by the City Council Monday, the permit for the Tidemill Plaza development on Southern Artery, which will include a home for the carousel, was approved.

Most councillors agreed the project, which will also consist of a 54,310 square foot retail building and a 38,000 square foot commercial building, will be an asset to Quincy.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, who has advised and guided the groups involved in the project for about a year, said he was "extremely excited" the carousel was staying in Quincy.

He noted the historic treasure, owned by the DeAngelis family of Houghs Neck, is having it refurbished through a grant. Once restorations are complete, the carousel will be worth approximately $1 million.

"It's a great project for Quincy," Cheney said, noting it will provide residents of all ages a recreational outlet in the heart of the city.

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets said the project will "give something back to the city."

"It should serve as a model to what's done in the city in the future," he said.

Only Councillor Timothy Cahill, who expressed concerns about the project's impact on traffic, voted against the permit. He stressed his support for the project and keeping the carousel in Quincy, but still questioned whether traffic improvements would be made in the area as proposed.

"I am not an obstructionist. I never have been but I do have some reservations concerning traffic," Cahill said.

The development will be located on the former site of Duane's Salvage Yard on Southern Artery. Quincy Group Realty Trust will own the project while Tidemill Realty Trust will develop it.

The development is expected to generate some $279,000 in new real estate revenue per year while providing 225 full and part-time jobs and 160 to 200 construction jobs.

According to the permit application, the plan calls for:

A single story 54,310 square foot single user retail building with parking under.

Two and one-half story

ARTIST'S RENDERING of the proposed Tidemill Plaza on Southern Artery which was approved by the City Council Monday night. The development, to take about two years to complete, will include the famous Houghs Neck carousel owned by the DeAngelis family.

retail building containing a total of 38,000 square feet comprised of several stores.

Besides the carousel, the buildings will house a Super Purity Supreme and the Quincy Nautical Museum.

The carousel and museum building will cost an estimated $400,000.

In addition, there will be: Public waterfront amenities such as swan boats and rehabilitation of the existing pier at a cost of $45,000.

Some 480 parking spaces of which 120 will be under one building and 90 under the other building. Twenty-seven spaces will be allocated for recreational use for the carousel and public walkway while the remaining 243 spaces are surface parking.

There is also a condition which commits the developer to participate in the Quincy Affordable Housing Partnership Program or direct housing programs of equal value and the sewer rehabilitation program by a contribution of one percent of the building permit value for each program. Payment should be made payable in full prior to occupancy.

The project also calls for some traffic and public improvements.

One traffic improvement estimated at $150,000 would implement recommendations made in the city's traffic 2000 study. They include signalization, repainting and limiting access on Southern Artery near the site.

Another improvement, estimated at $325,000, calls for the intersection at Field St. and Southern Artery to be reconstructed to form a more perpendicular intersection. This option also includes two signalized intersections, painting and resurfacing.

In order to implement the traffic improvements, Quirk Ford must agree to it. Because the owner of the car dealership has not agreed to the improvements yet, Cahill said he could not support the proposal.

"I would not have had as much as a problem if we had Mr. Quirk's agreement," Cahill said.

According to a condition of the permit, the building housing the carousel will be available for lease to the DeAngelis family for $1 per year for a maximum of 25 years. Other such terms and conditions of the lease are subject to the agreement and approval of the developer, the Ward 1 councillor and the DeAngelis family.

The swan boats or similar boating activities will be available to the public.

In addition, the developer will construct a marina consisting of up to 85 slips.

The project will probably be completed within two years.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer

What To Do If ...

If you are experiencing a crime, you are going to have to use your own best judgement in handling the situation. Our general advice to victims covering most circumstances is:

- Don't attempt to resist or to attack
- Try to avoid being injured
- DON'T pull a deadly weapon on your attacker.
- If you return to your residence and suspect someone is inside, DON'T go in! Go to a neighbor's home and call the police.
- If you are in bed and a burglar enters your residence, stay as quiet as possible and call the police at the first opportunity after you think the burglar is gone.
- It is extremely unlikely that you will be confronted by a burglar in your home or apartment. If you are, don't attempt to corner him. Many amateur burglars will flee under the circumstances if left an escape route. You may be able to get out yourself but don't try it if it means rushing the intruder, or if he has a weapon.
- If the intruder does not leave, keep as cool as possible under the circumstances. Sit down, which will reduce the chance of being shoved, etc. The burglar probably is nervous because of your presence. Try not to escalate the situation or provoke him into injuring you.
- Observe the burglar closely and try to remember the description, including age, height, weight, color and length of hair, skin color, clothing, jewelry worn. This information will be vital to the police in catching this person.
- When the burglar leaves, try to observe (without following closely) the type and color of the vehicle and what direction it heads. See if you can read and remember even part of the license plate number.
- Call 911 immediately. While you are waiting, write down all you can remember. Unreported crime is a serious problem for several reasons, one of which is that by not reporting, you are assuring the ultimate success of the crime and the probability that the criminal will attempt another crime soon on someone else.

Brookline 21, North Quincy 16 Raiders Host Weymouth South Friday Night

The North Quincy football team's offense collapsed during the first half last week at Brookline and, despite a fine comeback in the last quarter, the Raiders lost, 21-16, dropping its record to 1-2. Ken McPhee's Raiders will play their first home game of the year Friday night, hosting Weymouth South at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Weymouth (0-3) has lost to Dedham, Marshfield and Quincy and last season squeezed by North Quincy, 13-12.

The first half at Brookline was a nightmare as North failed to get a first down or complete a pass as Brookline took a 14-0 lead. The Indians made it 21-0 before the Raiders scored their 16 points in the final quarter.

"We could do nothing in the first half," said a disappointed McPhee. "We just couldn't move the ball. Dave Kiley ran well and Jimmy Bryan did some good passing in the last quarter."

Gilmartin	1	2	0	8
Brooks	1	0	0	6
Earley	1	0	0	6

Bellot	0	2	0	2

McPhee had praise for Scott Kemp and Mike Doherty on defense and for his wide receivers, Kevin MacDougall, sophomore Desmond Bellot and Chris Deshler.

Bryan was 10 for 26 passing for 115 yards. North ran for only 64 yards, 58 of them by Kiley on eight carries.

Brookline ran for 97 yards and added 84 through the air. Brookline had 11 first downs to seven for North.

Mike Iacobacci blocked a punt for North which set up a good drive but, with fourth and inches on the Brookline 12, Brookline held. This was North's only threat in the first half.

One Brookline touchdown was set up when North fumbled a punt.

Brookline took the lead in the first quarter on a 10-yard run by Corey Whitfield. Langston Cawthorne kicked the extra point.

In the second quarter Cawthorne hit Shani King with a 29-yard scoring pass and Cawthorne again added the point.

After a scoreless third quarter, Brookline made it 21-0 on Cawthorne's 11-yard run and this time Sammy Yuen kicked the extra point.

With less than six minutes left in the game Bryan got hot and hit MacDougall with a 19-yard scoring pass and passed to Dan Gilmartin for the two-point conversion.

Minutes later Gilmartin scored from the one and Bryan passed to MacDougall for the two points.

Manets Roll Over Apaches Panthers, Sailors 0-0

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The Houghs Neck Manets blanked the North Quincy Apaches, 20-0, in an early season showdown to claim sole possession of first place in the Quincy Youth Football League. In other action Saturday night, the Quincy Point Panthers and Squantum Sailors played to a 0-0 standstill.

Last Wednesday, the West Quincy Elks edged the Panthers, 6-0, and the Apaches routed the Sailors, 38-14. The games had been postponed from Saturday because of rain.

The Manets and Apaches were locked in a defensive struggle until the Manets capitalized on a North Quincy turnover late in the first half. On fourth down Manet running back Shawn Herron picked up his own fumble and scored to put Houghs Neck in front for good.

Herron added another TD in the second half and Harold Mortel caught a touchdown pass to cap the win.

This week marks the final evening doubleheader of the season at Veterans Memorial Stadium. The Manets (2-0) and Elks (1-1) square off at 6 p.m. and the Panthers (0-1-1) and Apaches (2-1) lock horns at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. The Sailors (0-2-1) are idle.

Quincy Freshmen Roll

The Quincy freshman football team, under new coach Bob Keuther, is off to a fine start with a 2-0 record.

Last week the young Presidents rolled over Weymouth South 36-6.

Dave Bogan and Noel DiBona combined to rush for 200 yards as Quincy exploded for 22 unanswered ed points in the third quarter.

Leading, 8-6, at halftime, Quincy scored on runs of 70, 30 and six yards. Sean McArdle, Jeff Cassetta and Mike Siteman helped the defense in another strong effort, allowing only two first downs and creating four turnovers.

Earlier Quincy defeated Waltham, 18-6, as it didn't allow a first down. Quarterback Rob Kane passed for one touchdown and scored one himself to lead the attack.

Quincy is idle this week and next week will face undefeated Newton North.

Calabro EAC Div. 3 Rookie Of The Week

Freshman defensive and Frank Calabro of Quincy, a former three-sports athlete at Quincy High, has already made a name for himself on the UMass/Boston varsity football team.

Calabro was named

ECAC Div. 3 Rookie of the Week for his strong performance against Southeastern Mass.

He had seven tackles, including three crucial sacks in the fourth quarter as the Beacons won, 13-0.

"Frank is an intense player who has a lot of raw talent," said coach Jim Kent.

Calabro is the first UMass/Boston football player to receive ECAC Rookie of the week honors.

North Defeats Quincy In First Night Soccer

In the first night soccer game ever last week the North Quincy boys' team defeated Quincy, 4-1, in a well-played game.

Senior midfielder Aiman Janinen scored three goals for the Raiders (4-3) and Mike Giese scored the other. John Chou, Derek Mooter, Tom Johnson and Giese had assists.

North had strong games from Matt Flynn, Pat O'Donoghue and Dave Cawthorne.

Tom Meng had Quincy's goal. Goalie Brian Quigley had a strong game for the Presidents with 25 saves and Peter Lespasio and Dean Morris played well.

The Raiders lost a tough 2-1 decision to Weymouth South as South scored the winner with only four minutes left.

North's goal came on a Johnson penalty kick midway through the second half that tied the score. North had strong games from Cawthorne, Chou, Mark Nitschke and Janinen.

North also lost to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 4-0, despite excellent games from Nitschke, Cawthorne and Mike Giese.

The North Jayvees lost, 2-0, with Garvin Chan, Aiden

O'Donoghue and Chris Olsen playing well.

Presidents Eye Third Win At Peabody

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy football team turned in its finest two-way performance last week when it defeated Weymouth South 13-0, and Coach Jack Raymer hopes for a repeat performance Friday night when it plays at Peabody at 7 p.m.

Peabody (1-2), which has defeated Somerville and lost to Salem and Everett, pulled out a 13-12 decision over the Presidents a year ago.

"The boys executed well in every way at Weymouth and we ran well in contrast to the week before," said a happy Raymer, whose team improved to 2-1. "I don't think we've played this well off the line of scrimmage since I've been here."

Quincy ran for 242 yards with Mark Bogan, who scored all 13 points, rushing 27 times for 146 yards, his second 100-plus game of the season. Lou Pagnani ran 11 times for 61 yards, sophomore Jason Anderson four times for 21 yards and sophomore quarterback Gary Collins twice for 15 yards. Collins passed only six times, hitting on two for 28 yards.

"The offensive line was just outstanding and we should have a couple or more touchdowns," Raymer said. "Jim Munroe, Steve McInnis, Joe Baker, Tony Madden, Tom Morrell, Mike Tempesta and Rich Lallis all did a tremendous job."

The defense was also outstanding throughout the game and held Weymouth to a total of 55 yards.

Raymer had good words for Morrell, who had nine unassisted tackles and two assists; Munroe, Baker, Graham Chevry, Anderson, Dave Johnston, Mike Flagin, Steve O'Donoghue, Bill Reardon, Bogan, Pagnani and Chris Fay for their defensive performances.

"We drove to their 25 but were stopped and a penalty killed us when we reached their five," Raymer said. "Penalties hurt us, but I'm just delighted with our overall play."

Quincy took the opening kickoff and drove 80 yards in 11 plays with Bogan, who gained 45 yards on the drive, scoring from the four. He also kicked the extra point.

Although the Presidents dominated the game all the way, they didn't score again until the fourth quarter when Bogan capped another good drive by scoring from the five, his fourth touchdown of the season.

"Anderson is going to be an outstanding player and is looking better every game," Raymer said. "He is hampered by an injury right now, but I look for great things from him in the future."

JASON ANDERSON, left, Mark Bogan and Lou Pagnani had a big night last week in leading Quincy's football team to a win over Weymouth South.

TIE BREAKER GAME Giants at Eagles

• Girls Volleyball

Quincy, North Girls Travel Victory Path

The Quincy girl's volleyball team, seeking its second straight state championship and fourth in eight years, still rules the roost in the Suburban League and improved to 8-0 Monday with a 2-0 win over Newton South.

The North Quincy girls, who won the state crown two years ago and tied Quincy for the league title last year, defeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 2-1, Monday to improve to 6-2.

Quincy will play at Newton North Friday and will host Boston Latin next Wednesday at 3:30.

North will be at Waltham Friday and will be home to Newton South next Wednesday.

Last week senior Randi Gaura had four service aces and scored 16 points in two games as Quincy defeated Waltham, 2-0 (15-5, 15-1). Christine Barrett and Lori Novak also played well for the First Ladies.

Brookline, expected to be Quincy's biggest threat, topped North Quincy (2-0 (15-11, 15-13) despite the spiking of Kara Sullivan and the setting of Shanna Cobban.

The Quincy gym was rocking last week when Quincy and North girls, both unbeaten at the time, met for the first time this year.

The veteran First Ladies defeated the young Raiderettes, 2-0 (15-13, 15-7) in an exciting, well-played match.

The Quincy girls are favored by most to win the state title again this year, which would be their fourth in eight years. North won the state crown two years ago and tied Quincy last season for the Suburban League championship.

"This was an excellent match and I am very pleased with my girls' performance," Rendle said. "We proved we can play with the best. Quincy, I feel, is the best in the state and I think it will win the state championship again. We have a very young and inexperienced team which is improving all the time and I think we will do well the rest of the year."

North led in the first game, 13-8, but Quincy's Lauri Novak came up with three crucial aces and Quincy went on to win the last seven points for the win.

Chris Barrett, Melanie Sullivan, Jennifer Richmond and Novak were outstanding for the First Ladies.

For North Quincy Co-Capt. Kara Sullivan hit well, freshman Regina Murphy played well as did Jill Haynes and Shana Cobban was all over the floor and turned in an outstanding effort.

North had defeated Boston Latin, 2-0 (16-14, 15-10) in its previous match with Sullivan and Murphy leading the way.

Earlier the Raiderettes had defeated Newton North, 2-0 (15-9, 15-3) as Sullivan and Cobban combined for 16 service points.

The Quincy girls defeated Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 2-0, last Friday and in their previous game topped veteran Brookline, rated as Quincy's biggest obstacle, 2-0 (15-3, 15-6).

Sullivan and Barrett combined for 12 kills to spark the First Ladies. Barrett also had four service aces and Richmond and Randi Gaura sparkled on defense.

• Cross Country

North Girls Off To Good Start

The North Quincy girls' cross country team, with a veteran lineup, is off to a good start with wins over Waltham and Brookline.

The North girls will have their first home meet today (Thursday) when they host Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 3:30 at Pageant Field.

Following a 38-43 victory over Waltham, the North girls last week defeated Brookline, 25-33.

Sherrin Quintiliani was North first finisher at Brookline through the scenic Larz Anderson Estates, finishing third. Ilana Cobban was fourth, Suzanne Lewis fifth, Janet Corrigan sixth, Joanne Moriarty seventh and Danielle Lewis eighth.

Coach Jeff Hennessy's Raiderettes are led by senior tri-captain Sherrin Quintiliani, senior veteran and league all-star and tri-captains Joanne Moriarty and Janet Corrigan. Quintiliani won four of six dual meets last year and placed third in the all-star meet despite getting lost. She placed 24th in Div. 1 of the Eastern Mass meet and was a Patriot Ledger all-scholastic.

A pleasant surprise is senior exchange student Mary Tafalla from Venezuela, who brings some experience in track and field with her.

Juniors Danielle Lewis and Amanda Young are also looking to go good in workouts. Both have winter and spring track experience.

Adrienne Mercier and Rachel Marshall had an injury-interrupted fall season a year ago and are much improved this year.

Cindy Walsh, a rapidly improving sophomore, is using cross-country to prepare for winter track and shows great promise.

The freshmen are paced by Ilana Cobban and Suzanne Lewis, both of whom show promise and will run with the varsity. Other freshmen are Karen Leary, Kerry Evans, Kim Chu, Cindy Wong and Jennifer Brams.

Last year's team was 3-1-2 in the tough Suburban League, losing only to league champion Newton North and tying Waltham and Cambridge.

"We'll be lucky to be .500 in the league," said Hennessy. "Anyone could beat anyone else at any time and we have the misfortune of having to run our away meets on the difficult Newton, Waltham and Brookline courses. However, we will be ready and how our rookies improve will dictate the season."

In North's win over the hilly Brandeis University course it was tied with Waltham after the first five runners from each team scored, but North's Tafalla beat the sixth finisher for the Hawks to give North the win.

Over half of the North squad got lost on the course but got a big break when one of Waltham's talented runners collapsed yards from the finish line and failed to finish.

As usual, Quintiliani, just returning after missing over six months of training due to a stress fracture and rehabilitation, finished second to Waltham's Liz Hazel. The big surprise was freshman Suzanne Lewis finishing fourth and frosh Ilana Cobban seventh. Seniors Corrigan and Moriarty got lost, losing valuable time and position. Corrigan was sixth, Danielle Lewis ninth and Tafalla 10th. Moriarty was a disappointed 14th.

The North Quincy boys' cross country team, with the largest squad ever, already has as many wins as it had all last year after defeating Waltham, 24-35, and last week losing at Brookline, 24-31.

Brookline's depth and experience were too much for North last week.

North's Jason Buckley was the individual winner, covering the 2.5-mile course in an excellent 13:47.

However, Brookline took the next three placed. North's Chris Ballum was fifth. Andy Wohlrab sixth and Peter Wildes 10th.

The winover Waltham was the first over a Suburban League team except Quincy since 1983.

Buckley was North's first finisher in second place, Wohlrab was fourth, Ballum fifth, Greg Buck sixth, John Heaney seventh, Ngoc Vo ninth and Danny Reilly 10th.

Several of the Raiders got lost on the confusing Waltham course and if not for this, the score would have been more decisive.

"We have a much improved squad over a year ago," said a delighted coach Dan Cuddy. "Many of the boys have never run cross country before. John Heaney, a senior with no experience, bears watching. He did very well and continues to improve in workouts."

The Shooters Club Quincy's Newest Sports Venture

The South Shore's newest sports venture has opened Saturday, in the Quincy Fair Mall, 593 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The Shooters Club featured 19 pool tables and an area for dart boards. Owners Jim Pansullo and Kevin Ryan, Quincy residents, forecast that pocket billiards will be the social sport of the 1990's. Pool and Billiard Magazine says the typical player is male, middle-age with 43 percent earning $40,000 plus.

The Shooters Club will be open from 11 a.m. until 12:30 a.m. seven days a week, with special rates for senior citizens. Players must be 18 years old unless accompanied by an adult. They will also feature special low practice rates. All participants are expected to be properly dressed.

Pansullo and Ryan stress that this is not a pool hall in the traditional sense, but rather an upper-class fun place for people of every age.

Peter O'Connell is on the right track to get 15,000 cars off our streets.

Peter O'Connell supports the return of the South Shore Commuter Rail line to Boston, because it'll pull up to 15,000 cars a day off Hancock Street, Quincy Shore Drive, and other congested Quincy streets.

But Peter's a hard-nosed businessman.

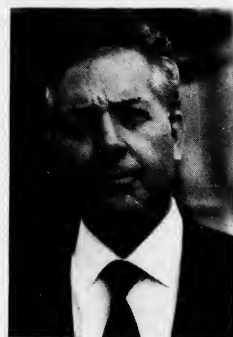

So rather than just let the state hand us a line, he's fighting to get Quincy something in return: two new stations to serve Quincy commuters, fight traffic, and create new jobs.

That's the kind of tough, innovative thinking Quincy needs at the top.

Meanwhile, instead of offering a plan of his own,

Peter's opponent Councilor Jim Sheets just says "no" to commuter rail.

Peter O'Connell knows that with that kind of head-in-the-sand approach...Quincy will just keep getting railroaded.

McCauley Takes Issue With Ad

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Responding to a recent newspaper advertisement placed for mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell, Mayor Francis McCauley called the ad "negative and erroneous" which hurts the city and the people in his administration.

The ad, which appeared in last Friday's and Saturday's editions of the Patriot Ledger, was aimed at O'Connell's opponent, Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets.

The ad asked, "Where was Councillor Sheets while the tide went out?" It then contends that beaches have become polluted, school drop out rates have soared and the city's schools have crumbled while Sheets has been a councillor for 16 years.

The ad also suggests that Sheets has not been a leader during his time on the council.

It states that O'Connell "has the skills" to stand up to the MWRA, rebuild schools and give Quincy police the tools they need to combat drugs.

On Tuesday, McCauley refuted some of O'Connell's accusations "to set the record straight" on a number of issues raised by the ad. The mayor, who said he is not endorsing either candidate publicly or privately, said he wanted to respond because that type of advertising hurts the city.

McCauley said he was prompted to respond to an O'Connell ad once before prior to the preliminary election. However, he decided against it because he wanted to stay out of the election.

However, after reading last week's ad, McCauley said he decided to respond because he said it paints an inaccurate picture of the work accomplished by his administration.

"I can take my licks ... but this type of advertising demeans the effort of my department heads and other city employees. I think this type of advertising hurts the city generally."

"Personally, I'm very comfortable with my eight years in office," said McCauley who will step down in January.

In response, O'Connell said he welcomed the mayor's comments and added "I think they are helpful." He conceded that some of the wording on his ad may have been incorrect but stood by his claim that the city needs

City Awarded $280,000 For Waterfront Improvements

The City of Quincy will receive a $280,000 Coastal Zone Improvement Management Grant for the purpose of improving the coastal sections of Houghs Neck, Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney announces.

During the past three and a half years, Cheney has worked with the city's Planning Department on two separate coastal zone management grant programs.

The first grant was received two years ago and has been used to make waterfront improvements in the Houghs Neck section of Quincy. The second grant was recently awarded for the amount of $280,000.

Cheney noted the second grant will be used to complete the waterfront park improvements at the foot of Great Hill. The renovation plans include construction of a new basketball court, additional work to the public landing area, a jogging path around the Veterans Memorial Field and Brill Field as well as additional recreational amenities.

Once completed, the total money spent on the project will be $564,083.

None of the funds used to complete the revitalization will be city funds, Cheney pointed out. All funding to

'She Touched So Many People'

Kasha Loses Her Fight With Cancer

By JANE ARENA

Back in February The Quincy Sun ran a story about a little dog which generated a big reaction.

Many will remember Kasha, the nine year old Cockapoo-cross who, facing fatal and painful cancer, gave her love to so many people. Kasha succumbed to her illness last week and was put to sleep.

She was loved by many: by her owners, the Lukask family of Beach St., by her "employers" Rita and Helen McKeeman of Flowers by Helen on Billings Rd. North Quincy, and by the many patients at the Long Island Hospital who looked forward to Kasha's monthly visits.

After the story ran last February, many more people came to love this remarkable dog.

Kasha was expected to die much sooner, Rita McKeeman says, but she hung on.

Perhaps because she had made so many new friends.

Kasha began receiving a lot of visitors at the flower shop after the story ran. People wanted to meet this dog who had so stubbornly acquired herself a fulltime "job" by returning early every morning to the flower shop after she first appeared on the door step in 1985.

People were curious about the dog who, so like a human, would go home to her family every night after "work," as though it were the most natural thing in the world for a dog to do.

Every night, Rita McKeeman says, Kasha would insist on going home, just as every morning she would show up at the shop.

Even when she was too ill to travel, Rita and Helen McKeeman would pick her up in the morning (Kasha would be waiting in the driveway)

New $60-Million Health Care Facility To Be Dedicated Saturday

Nearly a decade of intensive planning and more than three years of construction will culminate Saturday, Oct. 14. When Quincy Hospital dedicates its new, highly advanced, 234-bed health care facility.

More than 500 invited guests are expected to attend the dedication festivities, slated to begin at 11 a.m., under a large tent adjacent to the new, six-story patient-care tower that forms the heart of the hospital's massive modernization project. Built by Carlson Contracting Co. of Cohasset, the tower, an adjoining patient and support services building, and a one-story mental health center to be completed in November will replace about two-thirds of the aging, existing structures at the hospital.

The new facilities feature all-private patient rooms, a comprehensive emergency and walk-in medical center, and extensive areas for ancillary and support services—all enhanced by today's most advanced health care technology.

The new emergency care area incorporates the most contemporary concepts in design and planning for emergency services. The center is approximately four times the size of the hospital's current emergency department. It will offer a full range of traditional emergency services for critically ill and injured patients, as well as prompt, high-quality ambulatory care for people with minor health problems.

Demolition of three buildings in current use at the rear of the hospital complex—the Medical/Surgical Building, Hunting Building, and Ward A—is scheduled to begin as soon as the new facilities are fully occupied. Ancillary services such as pharmacy, laboratory, and rehabilitation services and medical records departments have already moved into new quarters. Inpatient treatment floors and additional ancillary areas will be occupied beginning the week of Oct. 15. The new emergency and walk-in center is expected to be fully operational in about one month.

Mayor Francis McCauley will deliver the keynote address at the dedication ceremony, which will also feature remarks by representatives of the Quincy City Council, local clergy, and the hospital's Board of Managers and administrative, medical, and nursing staffs. Hospital Director Mark J. Mundy will serve as master of ceremonies for the event.

The formal dedication program will be capped by a ribbon-cutting and balloon-release ceremony at the main entrance to the new patient tower. Following that, several hundred visitors have been asked to join in special guided tours of selected areas in the new facilities, including a patient-care unit, comprehensive rehabilitation and laboratory services areas, and a state-of-the-art intensive care unit, featuring all-new, highly sophisticated monitoring equipment for tracking the vital signs of critically ill patients.

Tours of the new Quincy Hospital facilities will be available only to invited guests on Oct. 14. Public tours of the new buildings will commence later in the month. Community groups and others interested in more information about hospital tours are encouraged to contact the Quincy Hospital Public Relations Department at 773-6100 ext. 4016.

Clapprood Speaker At Quincy Hospital Dinner Celebration

State Rep. Marjorie A. Clapprood (D-Sharon) will deliver the keynote address at a special celebration dinner marking the opening of Quincy Hospital's new, $60 million health care facilities Friday evening, Oct. 13.

Clapprood is a leading advocate of health care concerns on Beacon Hill and a contender for the 1990 Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor of Massachusetts. She is expected to discuss the present health care fiscal crisis in Massachusetts at the Quincy Hospital event, while calling attention to the hospital's efforts to build toward a healthier future for the South Shore communities it serves.

Mayor Francis McCauley and Hospital Director Mark Mundy will also offer brief remarks at the dinner. The gathering is expected to draw more than 150 invited guests from a broad spectrum of local government and business leaders, community activists, physicians, and hospital benefactors. Representatives of the contracting and architectural firms and federal agencies involved in the three-year building project will also attend.

The evening's festivities will begin at 6:30 p.m. with a reception in the Education Center, just off the first floor lobby of the six-story patient care tower that forms the core of the new facilities. Dinner will follow at 7:30 p.m. in the hospital's dining area.

Clapprood will speak at approximately 8:30 p.m.

Fair Housing Committee Meeting Oct. 18

The agenda for the meeting:

- An update on preparations for Martin Luther King Day celebration;

sponsored film series;

Protesting Hazardous Waste Incinerator

DEMONSTRATORS IN DISGUISE—Brian Douglas, 16, left and Joey Williams, 11, both from Quincy Point, show their distaste for a proposed sludge treatment plant and hazardous waste incinerator during Sunday's "Hands Across the Bridge" protest at the Fore River Bridge. The protesters are trying to block a proposed hazardous waste incinerator by Clean Harbors, Inc., from being located in the Fore River industrial basin near the Quincy-Braintree line.

SIGNS WITH MESSAGES such as "Incinerating Toxic Waste is Not the Solution" and "Clean Harborsbustors" were shown to passing motorists on the Fore River Bridge Sunday during the "Hands Across the Bridge" rally. Some 2,000 residents of Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth protested Clean Harbors, Inc., proposal for a hazardous waste incinerator in the Fore River industrial basin.

'Critical Factors'

O'Connell Calls For Review On Waste Incinerator Impact

Mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell has asked the executive secretary of the Hazardous Waste Facility Site Safety Council and the secretary of Environmental Affairs to review two "critical factors" regarding a proposed rotary kiln hazardous waste incinerator by Clean Harbors, Inc., in the Fore River basin adjacent to Quincy.

In a letter dated Oct. 10 to Joan Gardner, executive secretary of the Hazardous Waste Facility Site Safety Council, and Environmental Affairs Secretary John DeVillars, O'Connell said the factors have not been addressed by the firm's preliminary project impact report (PPIR). O'Connell said the factors "require a determination that the PPIR is not adequate and is therefore unacceptable."

The factors are:

Clean Harbors has failed to account for the total quantity of air-borne pollutants to be released into the Fore River Basin area.

The firm has failed to take into account the most recent health study of the state Department of Public Health which shows a higher incidence of lung cancer in the communities which directly abut the proposed incinerator.

O'Connell points out there are at least six sources of air pollution in existence or proposed in the basin: Proctor and Gamble manufacturing plant, MWRA's temporary and permanent sludge treatment plants; Clean Harbors' pathologic waste incinerator, Boston Edison Edgar generator station, Braintree Electric Light Company power station and the City of Petroleum storage area.

"The placement of these sources of pollution in a confined area is most detrimental when it is realized that, one, the concentration is placed in a basin area and two, the area immediately surrounding the sources of pollution are residential," O'Connell said.

"There is no buffer either natural or man made between the sources of pollution and the residents, young and old of the City of Quincy and the Towns of Weymouth and Braintree," he said, adding that the combined effect of all the emissions in certain weather conditions "will most certainly create a health hazard for those residents and employees in the Fore River basin area."

Referring to the state cancer study, O'Connell said "It is critical that the results of this study be adopted into the PPIR. Failure to do so will require a finding that the PPIR is inadequate."

Other concerns that should be reviewed according to O'Connell are:

Failure to adequately address the difficulties relating to the resurrection of the spur track into the Clean Harbors site from the Fore River railroad.

Failure to adequately account for the recent stock purchase by Alan McKim of the stock of Legeis Resources, Inc., and the right of Clean Harbors to purchase same.

Failure to Clean Harbors, Inc. (parent) to guarantee the performance of CHI. The PPIR states that the firm will negotiate with Braintree with respect to whether the parent, Clean Harbors, Inc., will guarantee the potential liability of its subsidiary.

Cut Consultants Before State Employees, Cerasoli Says

The present administration is willing to sacrifice regular state employees while adding to a multi-billion dollar consultant contract account and shielding newly hired consultant employees from public scrutiny, according to Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli, D-Quincy, chairman of the House Committee on Post Audit and Oversight.

"The administration is laying off employees while hiring thousands of consultant employees who are able to function outside of the state ethics and public bidding laws," said Cerasoli during a recent Post Audit Committee meeting.

Known as "07s" in state budgetary language, Cerasoli said these particular consultant contracts, covering hospital and nursing home care, clinical costs and laboratory supplies, are part of an over-all FY '88 $3.5 billion account that includes medicare payments. "This multi-billion dollar figure represents 25 percent of the entire state budget," said Cerasoli. "It is surpassed in size only by local aid which in fiscal 1988 came to $3.9 billion or 27.6 percent of the state's total expenditures."

Cerasoli stated a preliminary report by the Committee's audit investigators indicated the '07 account continues to climb with early fiscal '89 figures reaching $3.9 billion, an increase of $400 million. "The irony of this situation," noted the Post Audit chairman, "...is that the administration is willing to lay off regular state employees and yet permits thousands of new positions through '07 funding, whose organizations appear to be heavy in management salaries. This is unconscionable!"

Post Audit Bureau Director Richard Tobin reported the Commonwealth has been spending more money on '07s than on the entire payroll of regular state employees which, in FY'88 was $2.4 billion or 17 percent of the budget. A major difference in the accounts, added Tobin, is the lack of accountability as to numbers, productivity and controls over consultants. He said one '07 contract has spiraled in ten years from $10,000 to $11 million in providing psychiatric service for the State Correctional system.

Rep. Marie J. Parente, D-Milford, who requested the Post Audit Committee investigate the '07 account, told members that, "Regular state employees are disappearing but new faces keep appearing." Following a vote by the Committee to conduct an audit probe and hold oversight hearings concerning "07", Parente commented, "I'm sure your (Post Audit's) work and findings will help reduce the state budget safely and sanely, and more effectively than anything else I've heard."

City Clerk John Gillis is forecasting a 50-to-53 percent voter turnout for the Nov. 7 city election.

That would be slightly larger than two years ago when the Francis McCauley-Joseph LaRaia duel attracted 50.16 percent of the registered voters.

But it pales when compared with the Amelio Della Chiesa-James McIntyre battle of 1959 that brought a whopping 75.5 percent of registered voters to the polls.

That apparently was the biggie in the city's history or at least since such records were kept.

DELLA CHIESA

MCINTYRE

It pitted incumbent Della Chiesa, one of the city's all-time popular mayors against a 29-year-old challenger destined to become one of the city's all-time political powerhouses.

Della Chiesa defeated the young city council president by 2,117 votes, 17,650 to 15,533.

McIntyre would eventually become Della Chiesa's successor when the latter retired in 1965. McIntyre crushed Joseph LaRaia for the open seat by a margin of 14,321 votes -- 22,034 to 7,713 that year.

That 1965 election brought out a good vote, too: 65 percent.

So why only a 50-to-53 percent voter prediction this year as Quincy elects a new mayor -- either Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets or Quincy businessman Peter O'Connell.

For one thing, according to Gillis, this year's matchup doesn't have the voter magic appeal of the Della Chiesa-McIntyre fight or the McIntyre-LaRaia hook-up. Or the Walter Hannon-LaRaia bloody battle of 1975 which brought out 71.3 percent of the vote and which LaRaia eventually won on a recount by a scant 483 margin.

Those were colorful fights with a lot of emotion and feelings on the part of the candidates and the voters.

Sheets and O'Connell this year haven't lit any emotional fires under the average voter. Maybe because neither is an incumbent with a challenger trying to unseat him.

But Gillis thinks there's more to a voter turnout than Sunbeams

By Henry Bosworth

Della Chiesa, McIntyre Champs

"You've got to have some good City Council fights to really get the voters excited," he says. "Especially good ward races."

This year four incumbent ward councillors have free rides to re-election. Ted DiCristofaro (Ward 2), Larry Chretien (Ward 3) Charles Phelan (Ward 5) and Thomas Nutley (Ward 6) have no opposition. All they have to do on election day is show up at their local polling place and cast one vote for themselves.

There were no preliminary ward fights this year and there are only two ward contests in the final election: Tom Fabrizio and Joseph Shea in Ward 4 and Peter Kolson and Marcia Olinto in Ward 1. Both of those seats are wide open.

And there's not that much excitement in the councillor at-large race which also couldn't attract enough candidates for a preliminary run-off despite an open seat.

Only five candidates: incumbents Tim Cahill and Patricia Toland, Michael Cheney who is giving up his Ward 1 seat to run at-large, Susan Gallagher and Denis Tardo.

"You need a good councillor at-large race, too, to help get out the vote," says Gillis. "We don't have that good a race this year."

Gillis goes back to the 1959 election which had Della Chiesa and McIntyre in the featured roles.

And he notes that there was a good "supporting cast" that year that helped bring out that historic vote.

There were contests for all six ward seats, the three council at-large seats and the three School Committee seats.

David McIntosh, Carl Anderson and John Quinn were the at-large winners followed by Joseph Brett, Francis McCauley and Daniel MacLeod.

In the Ward contests it was:

Charles Shea over Henry Kiluff in Ward 1; Joseph LaRaia over Irving Coughlin in Ward 2; James McCormack over Fred Sisti in Ward 3; George McDonald over Albert Barilaro in Ward 4; George Burke over Clifton Baker in Ward 5 and William Ellis over David Shaw in Ward 6.

James McCormick, Alice Mitchell and Charles Sweeney were the School Committee winners.

"When there are good council fights -- especially in the wards -- there is a good voter turnout," says Gillis. "When there aren't, the voter turnout is lighter."

History seems to bear him out.

Erosion Of Personal Liberty And Choice

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

One thing that distinguishes America from most other nations is our belief that government is here to serve the people, not the other way around.

Those who believe that the individual's only purpose for being is to serve and obey the state have, over the years, used different names. They've been Nazis, Fascists, Communists, Socialist and Welfare Staters, but they share the one common belief that only they know what is best for us, and if we don't go along we must be whipped into line. They are the grim, humorless, tight-lipped bureaucrats of Orwell's 1984, whose mission is to stamp out individual rights. They're the technocrats of the new order.

As an observer of the political scene, I have been fascinated lately by the pronouncements of Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien, the father of Quincy's recycling program. Not satisfied with the voluntary collection of papers, he wants to make the program mandatory, to expand it to include glass, plastic, metal, etc., and to have block captains monitor our compliance. He also envisions involving the schoolchildren in this. Are they supposed to report their 'criminal' parents to the authorities if there's a violation? I'm reminded of the Hitler Youth and the Red Guard.

Now the councillor is talking about education. He is unhappy that some parents choose to send their children to private school. He also apparently would like to see children in school year round, for longer days and at a younger age. This means, of course, that parents would surrender their children to state authority instead of raising them in the love and nurture of their families as God intended. He would even like to see school employees dropping into our homes to check up on the breakfasts the children eat. And naturally taxes would be raised to pay for all this. That goes without saying.

All these things mean one thing: the erosion of personal liberty and individual choice. Whether it involves a choice in schools, cereals or trash, Larry apparently knows best.

As we see our freedom of choice disappearing, isn't there a citizen down there in Ward 3 with the guts to challenge Big Brother, or is everyone really so willing to accept the dictates of a meddlesome technocrat? There is a serious danger here which needs to be addressed.

Quincy's Treasures

Quincy has many historical treasures, but its real treasures are its citizens and its neighborhood communities. Like most treasures they are not found on the "beaten path", certainly they can be overlooked if you simply travel the Southern Artery, Route 3A, or Route 53. But, given the chance, as I was over the weekend to discover Quincy on foot, street by street, you find there are so many wonderful people, homes, lovely streets, and caring neighbors.

Clean Harbors with plans for a toxic waste incinerator would have you believe that Quincy is an industrial dumping ground. Granted, some sections of Quincy are more affluent than others, and we do have our industry...but right here in Quincy Point, along with every other section of the city, there does exist wonderful areas of community, caring and friendship. It's up to us to nurture these treasured neighborhoods.

Don't remain silent on the issue of the toxic waste incinerator...let everyone in government, local, state and federal know you care about Quincy. Brian Donnelly cares, write to him, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C. 20515. A 25 cent investment and a little time is all that's required of you. Take a walk through your neighborhood, notice how many nice things there are about Quincy, then do something to keep it that way.

We Need Rick

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition has been told by the Department of Mental Health to say goodbye to Richard K. Conant. He was the Assistant Director of Client Relations for South Shore Mental Health.

On Aug. 16 Rick was given a letter saying his position was being demolished due to budget cuts and he could choose another listed DMA agency. The time between notification and transfer was 6 days.

Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition doesn't want to say goodbye to the man who has been the heartbeat of our agency since its conception in 1984. Who decided and exactly what criteria was used to decide what positions were cut is unknown.

If our community is to lose the valuable work and dedication of Richard K. Conant, I feel they should know what has been taken away.

When the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition was just beginning in 1984, it was Rick Conant that gave the new Social Worker at the Salvation Army his card and his home phone number with the inscription, "Please call if I can do anything." I was that social worker.

I used his willingness to help constantly. He became a major leader in our efforts to help house the homeless. He did things far beyond the realm of his job. It was Rick Conant who gave his time at night to volunteer at the shelter before we had any paid employees. It was Rick Conant who went to Civil Defense in Bridgewater to get costs for our guests when ours broke. He went on his time, in his own vehicle.

It was Rick Conant who lugged 50 mattresses and box springs out of St. John's School basement and upstairs to storage to keep us from being shut down by the Fire Department. It was Rick Conant who held a woman to keep her from slamming her head against a brick wall while I fought with emergency services about getting her evaluated for commitment. It was Rick who stayed from 5 pm to 9 pm to help us get a 17 year old suicidal girl an evaluation. He never left her head until he got her the help she needed.

It has been Rick Conant who has helped a new, unseasoned Social Worker become a professional Executive Director of a half-million dollar agency. Rick has always been there no matter what the need. He has hammered bathroom dividers, trained staff, and brought his entire family to carol on Christmas Eve, with zest and love. He can never be replaced and I don't want to try.

I believe the loss of Rick's position was for financial reasons. Therefore, I would like to present the other side of the coin. The relationship between Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition and the Quincy Mental Health Area office, prior to a year and a half ago, was strained at best. The only reason we continued making our services available to Quincy Mental Health was because of Rick Conant. He singlehandedly enabled the relationship to continue. I do not feel I am exaggerating that fact. So, my staff did a little research into our files.

In a three year period, our shelter housed 101 mental health clients. We provided 7,232 nights of shelter services to Department of Mental Health clients. If these clients had been in Department of Mental Health facilities it would have cost at least $100,000. It actually cost the Department of Mental Health $0. Therefore, Rick Conant's position has saved the Department of Mental Health at least $100,000. Isn't that enough reason to continue it?

I am just one agency that Rick has enabled. He has been active throughout our community. His work may not be measurable in "widgets" or billable hours, but the contributions he has made are far greater than either production measurement. Much of the time he gives is personal, yet, the Department of Mental Health has gotten the credit for it over and over again. The Department of Mental Health is losing a 40 hour employee, but are actually losing at least 60 hours of work.

We need Rick. Please, help us find a way to return him the area and to work to which he has committed his life.

Praise For Barry Welch

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

On Aug. 20 I went to the McIntyre Mall in Quincy Center to view an Arts and Crafts exhibit presented by the Quincy Recreation Dept. Parks and Playgrounds. I was impressed; the patience and ingenuity expressed by the instructors and the youngsters who participated for themselves.

On Aug. 18 I went to a water carnival at the Lincoln-Hancock Pool in So. Quincy which was also presented by the Quincy Recreation Dept., the Lifeguards and swim instructors; many youngsters participated, and their performances were splendid.

Barry Welch is the Director of the Quincy Recreation Dept. He should be commended for running a well-structured dept. and for the fine example he sets for his staff, comprised mostly of young adults and teenagers who make all of these programs possible. There are many other programs too numerous to mention here provided by the Quincy Recreation Dept. for the youth of our city - and "Lest we forget" the Senior Olympics held every spring!

I for one would like to thank Mr. Welch for all he has done and continues to do for the City of Quincy.

Police Seize Huge Liquor Haul

Quincy police made the biggest haul of contraband liquor in the city's history when they stopped a truck on Hancock St. en route to Boston from Squantum where the booze was landed from a motor launch.

Officers Phillips; Erwin, O'Connell, Coyne and Kedwin seized 1,000 gallons of Belgian alcohol in 10 gallon jugs, 16 cases of Haig and Haig scotch and three cases of Johnny Walker scotch.

Oct. 12-18

66 Years Ago

The driver of the truck was held on a charge of driving without a license, pending the arrival of a federal warrant, since the transportation of liquor was not a state but a federal charge.

The confiscated liquor was locked up in two cells at the Quincy police station as evidence.

Meanwhile, Delevar King, Quincy's leading dry, wrote to the Harvard Glee Club and the Harvard Crimson protesting the singing of drinking songs at a recent Harvard-Oxford debate in Symphony Hall, Boston.

"To glorify the joys of drinking and to urge drink, drink, drink" seems to me to come pretty near scoffing at the prohibition law," said King. "It certainly tends to create an atmosphere hostile to reverence for this law and its enforcement."

Manet Health Center Marks 10th Anniversary

The Manet Community Health Center will celebrate its 10th anniversary at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy Wednesday, Oct. 11.

The center was started through the efforts of community residents in 1979 to meet the need for affordable and accessible health care in the Houghs Neck, Germantown, and Adams Shore community. At that time many doctors in the area were retiring and the community with the city realized there would be a major void in services. The community was able to obtain city and federal funds to start the health center.

In the first year of operation, Manet provided just over 4,000 visits to the Quincy community. This past year the center provided 22,000 visits to the greater Quincy community.

The center provides family practice medical care, obstetrical and gynecological care, laboratory services, nutrition and mental health counseling. The center continues to provide reduced fees for services to low income, uninsured, and underinsured patients. The center also provides services to patients with Medicaid, Medicare, Blue Cross and commercial insurance. State and federal funds and donated space from the City of Quincy and the Quincy Housing Authority enable the center to provide this care. The need for medical services that are affordable and accessible continues to be a significant issue in the public arena. The center provides care to patients who are without insurance or underinsured at reduced fees valued at over $400,000 in the past year.

The commitment and vision to maintain a nonprofit medical care organization to meet the needs of residents of Quincy and the South Shore falls on an active community based board of directors and staff.

At a special 10th anniversary celebration, Manet and the City will honor employees sharing their 10th anniversary - Pamela Craig, Frederick Dolgin, M.D.; Rolf Knight, M.D.; Anne McFadden, R.N.; James Riley; Edwina Robinson; Lois Robber; Cynthia Roche-Cotter, CNP; Andree Steen; and Kathleen White. In addition, past and current board members will be recognized for their volunteer hours dedicated to overseeing and supporting the center. Included in this recognition will be Gertrude Peter who has been active with the board since its inception and served as both president and treasurer and past presidents of the board, Jack Hacunda, Peter Ryan, Marilyn Hamel, Judith Kilson, and Elizabeth Swanton. The original director of the center, Dianne Luby, and the recipient of the first board award, Leo Kelly, are recognized for their contribution.

The 10th anniversary celebration will highlight a history of growth to meet a continuing community need for affordable, accessible, quality medical care.

The main office site in Houghs Neck was opened in 1979. Space was expanded at this site in 1981. Growth enabled the center to open a satellite in 1983 in Germantown. Obstetrical services were expanded and deliveries transferred to Quincy Hospital in 1987. Enhancement of services for the Asian population in Quincy began in 1988.

In July 1989, the center became responsible for the management of the Hull Medical Center. The center works closely with the other 70 community health centers in the State of Massachusetts to assure the provision statewide of affordable and accessible health care. Health centers nationally will celebrate their 25th anniversary in 1990.

Q-Vote Endorses Sweeny For 2-Year School Committee Seat

Charles Sweeny, a candidate for the two-year vacancy on the Quincy School Committee, has been endorsed by Q-VOTE, a political action committee representing Quincy citizens interested in promoting quality public education in the city.

The vacancy was created by the sudden death of Christopher Kennedy.

Mary Jane Powers is also running for the seat.

Q-VOTE President Marcia McCarthy of Squantum said the decision to endorse Sweeny came after much deliberation by the committee.

"Both candidates for this position are excellent and it was very difficult to select one over the other. However, Mr. Sweeny established an impressive record as an advocate for public education while serving for 22 years on the Quincy School Committee," McCarthy said.

Sweeny assisted the development of Quincy Junior College and the institution for the Elementary Laboratory Center for academically talented youngsters. He also served as the president of the Massachusetts Association of School Committees and was a member of the Board of Directors of the National School Board Association.

Q-VOTE has already endorsed Frank Santoro, Ronald Mariano and Gary Fine for the four-year school committee seats.

Founded a decade ago in response to educational cuts forced on Quincy by a series of tax-cutting initiatives, Q-VOTE will continue the endorsements to approximately 1,200 supporters of quality public education on its current mailing list.

Fine Proposes Task Force For School-Based Management

School Committee candidate Gary Fine has proposed forming a task force made up of teachers and parents to examine a school-based management system to "spark innovation and advancement in the city's public school system."

Fine said a task force would "innovate the management of our school system, so that teachers and parents have more of a hand in making educational changes that will aid our educational system in making the kind of progress essential to preserve our community's educational well-being into the 1990s and beyond."

The task force would also "put some of the decision making responsibility back where it belongs: in the hands of those who work in 'the trenches' day in and day out and who actively experience classroom learning," he said.

Moreover, the task force would not supplant the current policy-making bureaucracy, but would supplement it with ideas initiated from where the real problems exist—from within the schools themselves, Fine pointed out.

"Instead of simply adhering to the policy decisions of those removed from the classroom environment, the proposed system would promote active participation from the teachers. Such personal involvement in these decisions is one way of fostering morale, showing teachers that their input is essential for the assurances of a successful future for our school system," he said.

According to Fine, the task force would examine what some studies already show: school-based management works, because the goal is academic achievement and this goal is pursued by motivated educators who think of themselves as leaders as well as teachers.

Fine said he is not proposing radical change but rather an examination of other alternatives to improve teacher morale, policy initiation and curriculum development. He said his school-based management proposal is one way of doing so, and "some of the suggestions may provide cost-free methods of improving the educational well-being of the Quincy school system."

O'Connell Calls For Review Of 'Critical Factors' On Waste Incinerator Impact

CHIB.

"The inadequacy is shown by CHIB's failure to make a similar guarantee to the city of Quincy or the town of Weymouth. Additionally, no guarantee is made to the citizens and property owners of the city or of the towns.

"Instead, the offer to negotiate a guarantee is made solely to the municipal corporation of Braintree," O'Connell states, adding that the firm's offer to negotiate "reveals the hypocrisy of CHBI and Clean Harbors, Inc."

"In its financing of the construction of the plant, Clean Harbors, Inc. states that it will provide the financing for the project and in effect guarantee the debts of its subsidiary, CHBI. Yet when it comes to the health, safety and welfare of the citizens of Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree it fails to provide the same corporate guarantee.

"Frankly, CHBI and its parent, Clean Harbors, Inc., should put their pocketbooks where their public relations announcements have been. If the incinerator is as safe as CHBI announces, then Clean Harbors, Inc. should be the applicant or at minimum guarantee any liability of its subsidiary to the citizens of Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth," O'Connell added.

Jim Sheets has always believed that development should be cut down to size.

Years before the 1987 Quincy Zoning Task Force acted to curb development in Quincy, Jim Sheets took action against overdevelopment. In 1985, for example, as City Council President, and again in 1986 he proposed aggressive zoning changes to restrict the size and density of residential developments in our neighborhoods. Furthermore, Jim actively supported Citizens Advocating Proper Planning (CAPP), the grass roots organization that sought a referendum to restrict overdevelopment in Quincy. He is the only candidate for Mayor who signed CAPP's initiative petition in 1986. As your Mayor, Jim Sheets will continue to stand up for the interest of our neighborhoods instead of the interest of developers.

Retired Army Nurse To Receive Jewish War Veterans Award

Col. Mary C. Quinn of Weymouth, Army Nurse Retired, will be recognized as the 39th annual "Citizen of the Year" by the Quincy Jewish War Veterans Post on Sunday, Nov. 5 at 9:30 a.m. at Beth Israel Synagogue, 33 Grafton St.

Colonel Quinn, who entered active duty in the Army Nurse Corps in October 1950 as a first lieutenant, will be recognized as a nurse in helping veterans and as humanitarian helping her fellow man.

After serving many years in different states in the United States, she went to Pusan, South Korea, in February in 1951 where she saw wounds and death first-hand during the influx of casualties in the fierce fighting in the spring of 1951.

Quinn rotated out of Korea in May 1952 and then followed a number of other nursing assignments both in this country and overseas. In June, 1967, she assigned assistant chief nurse in South Vietnam, the scene of much bitter fighting.

Quinn returned to the United States in August 1968. In 1976, she retired at Fort Hood, Texas, as a full colonel, Army Nurse Corps, after 26 years of active service.

Since her retirement, she had done some free-lance writing and has been active in the parish council of St. Jerome's Church in North Weymouth. Quinn has also maintained a keen interest in programs for recognition of Army nurses service including the proposed statue of an Army nurse to be erected in Washington, D.C.

SID SKOLER, left, holds a plaque presented to him by Michael Roberts of Union International (right) and other colleagues at his retirement party last week.

Sid Skoler Honored On Retirement

When Sid Skoler, 70, walked into Amelia's Restaurant at Marina Bay last Wednesday after a tennis match with his friend Mike Roberts, he thought he was just going in for a beer.

He naturally assumed that his sweat shirt and chino pants were proper attire.

But, when a group of friends and co-workers burst into a chorus of "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow" as he entered the room, Sid knew something was up.

The surprise party was in honor of his retirement from the Skoler Company, the clothing company his father Bernie, a Russian immigrant, founded in 1919, the year Sid was born.

The Skoler Company began as a retail clothing store in Quincy, operated by Sid's parents, through World War II.

After the War, Sid and his brother David (both army veterans) entered the business, became partners, and made a few changes. The Skoler Company was transformed from the retail store to the wholesale clothing company it is today, selling both civilian clothes and uniforms to institutions across the country.

The company is located at 1374 Hancock St., Quincy.

At 70, Sid says, "I decided it was time to hang up my spikes."

Sadly, Sid lost his brother in April of this year. They had planned to retire together. "The only person missing at the party," he says, "was my brother. That was the hard part."

But, although saddened by his loss, Sid is eagerly anticipating his retirement.

"I'm going to take it one day at a time," he says smiling, adding that he'll likely play more tennis. Sid also bought a piano recently, and, although he's never had a lesson in his life, he plans to prove that it's never too late to start.

He also plans to spend more time with his family, he says. He has a sister-in-law, a niece, and a nephew in the area, and another niece in Los Angeles. "That's my family," he says.

A bachelor, Sid explains that "I never say never. Not while I'm still breathing, anyway."

At this point in life, Sid says, after all he's done and seen, one thing remains most important: "Human values, he says. 'That's what matters. The important thing is how you relate to your fellow human being.'"

With that in mind, Sid says he was "very moved" by the party given him by co-workers and people working the same Hancock St. building.

"It's so nice to find kindness, gentleness and affection in people," he says, "especially in this day in age."

But that shouldn't surprise him, with his wit and good nature, Sid seems to have a knack for bringing out the best in people.

"Frankly my dear, I don't give a d-n."

Golden Featured Speaker At Democratic City Committee Brunch Sunday

Senator William Golden (D-Weymouth) a candidate for lieutenant governor, will be the featured speaker at the second annual Quincy Democratic City Committee Sunday, Oct. 15 at 10 a.m. at the George F. Bryan Post, Broad St.

About 400 people attended last year's event and heard former Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti deliver the keynote speech. Bellotti, a candidate for governor, received an enthusiastic reception to his speech which focused on why he is a Democrat and what the party represents.

Among those attending last year were Congressman Brian Donnelly, State Auditor Joseph DeNucci and many Democratic officials from Quincy.

This year, many state-wide and local political leaders are expected to attend.

Special recognition will be given this year to former Quincy District Court Clerk-

Magistrate Dennis F. Ryan, said Quincy Democratic City Committee Chairman Daniel Raymondi.

Raymondi said the late Ryan "exemplified the ideals of our party back in a time when Quincy was Republican by a large majority. Recognizing the dedication of Democratic such as Dennis Ryan and people like him will keep present-day Democrats from taking our success for granted."

The purpose of the brunch,

Raymondi noted, "is to reaffirm the fact that the Democratic party best represents most people in Quincy, throughout Massachusetts and the country."

"We also expect that people will enjoy themselves like they did at last year's event," he added.

Those interested in attending the brunch may buy tickets by calling Archie Wahlberg at 786-8261. Tickets are $10.

CITY OF QUINCY RECYCLING PROGRAM

If you are participating in Quincy's Paper Recycling program, thank you and keep up the good work!

If you are not recycling, the Quincy Recycling Committee asks for your help.

Because Quincy pays a high price for trash disposal, the City can save money through its paper recycling program. Since it started on May 1st, enough people have joined in to make the program a modest success.

But Quincy can do better! If just two-thirds of the City residents recycled, we would save over $100,000. Many communities have even higher rates of participation.

Times are getting tough fiscally and environmentally. Recycling is one way you can help to make a difference.

For information about Quincy's paper recycling program or about Quincy's Recycling Committee, call 773-1380, Ext. 210.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Fate seems sometimes to delight in making strange combinations among the pieces of the game it plays through the centuries ... Did you know that Queen Isabella of Spain and Christopher Columbus were born in the same year ... 1451? Queen Isabella was born on April 22 at Madrigal de Las Altas Torres and Columbus in Genoa between August and October ... It is also believed by some historians that Amerigo Vespucci was born in the same year.

Fate or coincidence? Who knows! But one thing we do know is that these three protagonists of the great oceanic adventure changed the face of the world ... The discoverer, his noble patron and man from whom the new world was to take its name were all born in the first year of the second half of the 15th century, which was to open a new period of history ...

'The Way Up' Marks 25th Anniversary

Beneath eight colorful liturgical banners, the friends and former participants in The Way Up, as well as those currently involved in the program, gathered recently in the sanctuary of the First Church of Squantum to celebrate The Way Up's 25 years of the ministry with youth.

The banners were some of those that used to hang on the walls of the "The Way" when it was located in a storefront on East Squantum St. from May, 1968 to May, 1975.

Worshippers were greeted by four guitarists singing familiar hymns and songs of The Way Up. The singers were Mary Ruth Scott, Steve Williams, Marci Hurd and David Williams.

Mrs. Jean Ann Phinney, chairman of the Anniversary Committee for The Way Up, welcome the guests. The founder and pastor of The Way Up, the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, then, rehearsed the congregation in some of rock music they would need to know for later in the service. It has been traditional in the Way Up over the years to adapt secular pop music for religious purposes.

One of the young people in The Way Up, Chris Chetwynd, gave the call to worship in the informal style familiar in The Way Up.

Robert Gowdy, chairman of the Board of Directors of The Way Up, welcomed the congregation in behalf of the board and recognized certain persons who have been serving The Way Up in some special ways, including John Serdinsky, long-time treasurer of The Way Up, the women who supervise the young people who cater church dinners, Hazel Mayne, Ruth Swenson, Evelyn Ahearn, Mary Lewis, Grace Holmes, Drusilla Warnes, Helen Trites, Janet Townson, Patti Hurd, and Barbara Sorensen, the men who have assisted them Lew Townson and Luther Swenson), and Jean Ann Phinney, who served as the Chairman for the Anniversary Committee.

Scripture readings were read by Dr. Henry Perrin and Sam Corey, a member of the Board of Directors of The Way Up and Sandra Ahearn. It was followed by a prayer for all those who have died who have been a part of the history of "The Way Up" including Margaret Ahlquist, Foster Cleveland, Robert Daley, Mrs. Dwyer (grandmother of Ronnie, Ricky and Robert), Robert Duffy, Rev. Calvin F. Hamilton, Bob Hansen (foster father of David), Marion Hayden (mother of Alfred), Brent Howland, Pam Irwin, Robert Lingoes, Raymond McAdoo, Gerald Penny, Vera Rofnick, Claire Shannon (foster mother of Dennis), Richard Solan, Rose Spinoso (mother of Ricky, Rev. Seymour Steves, Kathy Sweet and David Thibodeau).

After the prayer of remembrance, Steve Williams sang with his guitar and the congregation then joined in a song of faith written for The Way Up by Dr. Langevin, the "Communion Hymn of The Way."

Dr. Langevin's sermon, "Somebody Else's Pilgrims" recounted the history of "The Way Up." It is a special youth ministry for teen-aged girls and boys, which is based at the First Church of Squantum and sponsored by a number of churches on the South Shore to provide chaplaincy services to young people referred by the Quincy Juvenile Court, those in various youth institutions in the area and teen-agers in the community presently inactive in any other church.

Until 1981, the group was called "The Way." The name was changed that year to avoid any confusion of the Quincy-based group with "The Way International" (based in Ohio), with which the Quincy group has no connection.

During his sermon, Dr. Langevin showed a large comic-strip paraphrase of a Bible story re-written by young people of The Way Up. It was called "Getting Through A Rough Time."

At the conclusion of the service, State Senator Paul Harold presented Dr. Langevin with an official citation of the State Senate of Massachusetts congratulating The Way Up in recognition of its 25 years as a Christian outreach ministry.

Following the worship, the worshippers went downstairs to Fellowship Hall to see a display of memorabilia of the youth ministry, to have refreshments and join in the reunion of the past and present members, workers, parents, contributors and members of the Board of Directors.

Scott Deware is in charge of the fundraising effort that was related to the celebration. A number of people from the Bethany Congregational Church helped with the program, including Bea Siddens, Bill Greene, Donna Pinel and Sarah MacCloud. Food was donated by women in both the Bethany Congregational Church and the First Church of Squantum.

Dr. Langevin announced that The Way Up would hold its first annual Youth Chaplaincy Dinner Sunday, Nov. 5, at 5:30 p.m. at the First Church of Squantum to help raise money to support the work of The Way Up with young people involved with the Quincy Juvenile Court or in two of the institutions to which such young people are sent by the court, the Brockton YMCA Shelter Care Unit and the Brockton YMCA Diagnostic Assessment Unit, and with other young people in the community. In other years, the dinner will be held at other churches. Reservations for this year can be made by calling Hazel Mayne at 328-4367.

Consumers Pleased With Their Real Estate Agent

More than eight in 10 consumers were satisfied with the real estate agent they last used, and buyers and sellers believe their agents came very close to meeting their standards for the "ideal" agent, according to a survey by the National Association of Realtors.

In a telephone survey of more than 1,000 consumers who bought or sold homes between October 1987 and January 1989, respondents confirmed previous research that buyers and sellers want personalized service from agents.

"While overall buyer and seller satisfaction with agents is high, consumers have very high expectations for real estate agents," said Janet Scavo, 1989 Chairman of NAR's Communications Committee, which commissioned the survey.

"Improvements need to be focused on keeping the best interests of buyers and sellers in mind; keeping consumers up to date; enhancing knowledge of mortgage financing, the housing market and the neighborhood and emphasizing professionalism," Scavo said.

She explained that the survey results showed while real estate agents believed consumers wanted agents who were involved in the community, educated, experienced and ethical, consumers said they also wanted agents who provided personalized service, information and time.

"The findings indicate that we, as agents, are doing a good job and that we should be proud of our profession," Scavo said.

"Even more encouraging is the fact that those interviewed were recent buyers and sellers, our customers. They gave us an above average rating on overall agent satisfaction—90 percent would use a real estate agent again in a future transaction, and more than 75 percent felt that their money was well spent on the agent's commission," she said.

Fred Prassas, 1989 vice chairman of the Communications Committee, said information from the survey can help NAR members in their day-to-day business. For example, he said the survey results may help agents in winning listings from potential and unsuccessful FSBO (for-sale-by-owner) sellers.

The NAR survey reported that 16 percent of the sellers had tried to sell their homes themselves before turning to a real estate agent. "They paid a price," Prassas said. "Their homes were on the market at least 50 percent longer than the homes of sellers who contacted a real estate broker at the outset," he said.

On average, it took repeat buyers 4.8 months to sell their homes. But, in cases where sellers first tried to sell their homes without professional help, the average was 7.4 months, according to the survey.

"Putting a home sale together is a lot more complicated than most people think," George W. Smith, a Realtor who serves on the Communications Committee, said in a recent interview with Realtor News, NAR's bi-weekly newspaper.

Smith said homesellers "are not good negotiators; they take the negatives they hear about their property personally. They don't like staying home on weekends waiting for the phone to ring.
And, pretty soon they get sick and tired of it."

By talking to sellers
"intelligently, not condescendingly, and pointing out to them some of the pitfalls" of FSBOs, Smith said he has managed to counter some of their preconceived notions about what they might gain by selling their home themselves.

Respondents to the survey were obtained from a list of county deed transfers compiled by Dataman, a research firm in Atlanta.
More than 1,000 consumers were interviewed—630 buyers and 377 sellers. All respondents had either bought or sold a home using a real estate agent during the 12 to 15 months previous to January 1989, when the survey was conducted.

Kasha Loses Battle With Cancer

and drop her home at night. She was not content, Rita McKeeman says, unless she could spread her love evenly.

And still, she saved enough love for the patients at the Long Island Hospital, who she visited monthly.

When John McDuff read about Kasha, he awarded her with the Quincy Animal League "Golden Paw Award," for her work at the hospital. He also presented a $200 check for her medical expenses. Rita and Helen, who handled Kasha's medical bills (sort of a benefits package), donated the money to the hospital in Kasha's name.

Kasha received visitors both young and old, many offering donations of money. One boy even donated the earnings from his paper route.

"Kasha was amazing," Rita said last week. "She had so much charisma and she touched so many people. So many people were moved by her."

As recently as two weeks ago, Rita says, a woman came to the flower shop with her elderly mother who had been wondering if the dog she had read about was still at the shop. Her mother wanted to have a photo taken with Kasha, she said, because she had been so moved by the dog's bravery and kindness in the face of illness. The elderly woman, Rita explains, had been recently diagnosed as having cancer.

"Right up until the end, Kasha was a trooper," Rita said. "She continued to give her love."

Just a week before Kasha died, Rita had taken her to visit an uncle who was very ill at the Braintree Manor Nursing Home. She put Kasha down on the bed where to his delight, she stayed for a half hour.

"Afterward, all he could talk about was Kasha," she said. "He loved her. That's all he could talk about."

A few days after that visit, their uncle died, Rita said. "After he went it was time for her to go," she said, "it was as if her work was done. Right to the end she did what she had to do." Kasha died in Rita's arms.

Kasha was buried at a pet cemetery in Dedham last Kasha will be missed by everyone who knew her. When the flower wholesalers in Boston learned of her death, they presented Rita with 25 pink roses especially for Kasha. Rita remarks how touching it was that "these big burly men" would care so much.

But it was hard not to care about Kasha. All anyone had to do was to look at her pretty face.

Chevy's Name Change Approved By Board

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from LeDisco, Inc., formerly doing business as Chevy's, 79 Parkway, for a change of name to Hemingway's and a change of manager to Patrick M. Gibbons.

Police Chief Francis Finn

requested to go on record in opposition of the license.

The Corporate name of LeDisco, Inc., Carl H. Miranda, president, will remain the same. Only the business name will be changed, the board noted. The seating capacity will also remain the same.

Atty. Peter Eley told the Board that Gibbons has had previous management experience at the Chart House in Boston and in other establishments.

Police Captain Paul Nestor was before the board to call to the board's attention that Chevy's had previously accepted duplicate licenses as customer identification. He said that this practice is not allowed in the city. He also suggested to Gibbons that a police detail of three officers be on duty at the establishment, and that one officer be stationed in the parking garage nearby.

The board further advised Gibbons to meet with City Liquor Inspector Sgt. Richard Laracy.

Reikard Gets A Surprise Letter From Washington

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

When Jane Reikard discovered a letter from the White House last week in her mailbox, she thought it was just a form letter that the other residents had received.

Upon opening it, however, she soon realized it was anything but a form letter. In fact, it was an invitation to join President George Bush's Republican Presidential Task Force and become a charter member of the exclusive committee.

"When I received it, I thought a couple of thousand other people also got it and I just set it aside. But when I read it, I realized it was quite an honor," said Reikard, the executive secretary of the city's Rent Grievance Board.

"I talked to quite a few of the people in politics in Quincy and they said they hadn't gotten (the invitation) so I was quite amazed," she said.

The invitation included a four-page letter from Senator Donald Rieckles, chairman of the Task Force, and a memorandum for Rieckles to President Bush regarding Reikard's acceptance.

Reikard was nominated by the Task's Force Executive Committee which includes every Republican U.S. senator and President Bush. She has accepted and will inform Rieckles or a Task Force member via telephone soon.

"To be nominated by the Executive Committee made up of senators and the President is quite a thrill and an honor," she said.

She's especially flattered by one of the sentences in Rieckles' letter. "Remember, only this country's finest and most committed citizens are invited to join the task force," it states.

For agreeing to become a member, Reikard will receive the President's Medal of Merit awarded only to charter members and a gold matching lapel pin.

In addition, she will receive a full-size American flag at a ceremony to be held in the rotunda of the nation's Capitol in Washington, D.C. Her name will also be inscribed on the President's Honor roll which is on display at the Ronald Reagan Republican Center in Washington.

There is a $120 membership contribution which Reikard has agreed to pay.

Since she received the invitation last Thursday, Reikard has been wondering about two questions. One, what does the task force do and two, who told the nominating committee about Reikard?

According to Rieckles' letter, charter members will help the Republican party regain a majority in the U.S. Senate in 1990. To do that, 18 Republican senators and 5

GOP challengers need to be elected next year.

"We are in a tremendous position to do that because some of the most outspoken, combative, extremist, anti-Bush Senate Democrats are up for re-election," Rieckles wrote.

"And the more of these ultra-liberal Senate Democrats we can replace in the 1990 elections, the better," he added.

Even more puzzling is the fact that Reikard is a registered Democrat.

"I'm not a Republican, although I've worked for a Republican mayor (Francis McCauley) for eight years and I've tried to be loyal and do a good job for him," she explained.

Which brings up the second question: why Jane Reikard?

She says that McCauley has "bragged" about the effectiveness of the city's Rent Grievance Board at the U.S. Conferences of Mayors that he's attended over the past eight years.

However, chances are it was two top White House aides, Ronald Kaufman or Andy Card, who tipped their boss about Reikard.

Kaufman, a former aide to Councillor James Sheets, worked with Reikard at Quincy City Hall when she first started her appointment. Card is a former state representative from Holbrook who has known Kaufman for years.

"Ron Kaufman knows what kind of work I do. He has known me for a long time. It probably came from him or Andy Card," Reikard said.

Whatever the case, Reikard has received "the calling" and she's accepted.

Board Grants School St. Lodging House License

By JANE ARENA

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Geoffrey A. Davidson of Muir Realty Trust, for a lodging house license for a three-story house at 192-194 School St.

Davidson would be named trustee for the lodging house. The license was granted subject to the final approval of the Health, Fire and Building departments.

Atty. Robert Flemming, representing Davidson, told the board that the property is zoned as Residence "C," which is the proper zoning for a lodging house. He also said that, following an extensive mailing by city councillors, there seems to be little or no neighbor opposition to the proposal.

Flemming presented preliminary plans to the board, explaining that the house would be for no more than 11 tenants, and also said that an existing garage will be torn down to allow for off-street parking for 11 vehicles.

"The house is derelict property," Flemming said, "and there is a need of attention and repair." He also told the board that Davidson has rehabilitated several buildings in the city and has a good reputation for doing so.

Because the property is located in a "split ward," both Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien and Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets have been notified, Flemming said. The Councillors mailed out about 400 notices to area residents and Davidson had also spoken personally with several neighbors of the property, Flemming explained.

Flemming said that the general feeling is that "the community welcomes this building being restored to something."

Chretien appeared before the board and, speaking for himself and for Councillor Sheets, said there were no objections providing that there is ample parking available for tenants. He said that one neighbor had been put on record in opposition and that his main concern was parking.

"As long as there is adequate parking, Chretien said, "I can live with it." He added that he had viewed the plans and was satisfied with the parking indicated.

Police Chief Francis Finn advised Davidson that he monitor the property to make sure no unauthorized cars were using the parking area.

The board granted the license with the stipulation that no more than 11 tenants room in the house and subject to an inspection with the Building, Health and Fire departments.

City Awarded $280,000

For Waterfront Improvements

(Cont'd from Page 1) revitalize and improve the park will come from the state, he said.

Restrictions in the grant money will allow the city to use the funds for coastal improvements, Cheney noted. The funds may not be used for any other purpose.

"When the Houghs Neck Waterfront Park is complete, I expect this will be one of the most beautiful parks on the East Coast," Cheney said,

He also said he looks forward to working with the planning department on additional coastal zone management grants for other sections of the city.

Raiders Look For Repeat At Silver Lake

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy football team's defense was superb last Friday night when it held Weymouth South to minus 18 yards and just two first downs, one on a penalty and topped the Wildcats, 17-0, at Veterans Memorial Stadium to even its record at 2-2.

If Ken McPhee's Raiders can repeat that performance, they should defeat Silver Lake Saturday afternoon at 1:30 at the Lakers' field and avenge last season's 24-13 loss.

The Lakers are having one of their poorest seasons and are 0-4 after losses Barnstable, Bridgewater-Raynham, Taunton and Weymouth North. Next season the rivals become Old Colony League foes when the Raiders move from the Suburban League.

"Our defense was just immense and the line was tremendous both ways," said McPhee. "And Jimmy Bryan was on target (7 for 19 for 139 yards and a touchdown) and the running game was fine." McPhee had good words for Alex Malase for his two-way play.

North had to overcome a rash of penalties (90 yards, 75 in the first half and two of three clipping penalties in that half came with the Raiders deep in Weymouth territory.

One of these clips came after a 79-yard punt return by Kevin MacDougall, which brought the ball to the Wildcats' 12. The ball was put away back on North's 10. The other came with North on Weymouth's eight and pushed the Raiders back to the 28.

Dan Gilmartin had his best day as he rushed 16 times for 96 yards and a touchdown. Keith Gott carried 11 times for 57 yards and Dave Kiley eight times for 28 yards.

North, which had 15 first downs to Weymouth's two, gained 328 yards overall, 189 rushing and 139 passing.

Early in the second quarter North scored on a 31-yard run by Gilmartin. Chris Deshler kicked the extra point.

The score was set up when Gilmartin ran 20 yards and Bryan hit Deshler for 11 yards.

Later in the half Bryan passed to MacDougall for 44 yards, then hit Gilmartin for six and finally passed to Kiley with a six-yard scoring pass. Deshler again kicked the point.

In the third quarter Mike Oliva recovered a fumble on the Weymouth 19 and Deshler capped the scoring with his third field goal of the season, a 21-yarder.

"I don't know what we'd do without Deshler," said McPhee. "He is punting very well and his field goals are helping us. He kicked two to give us an 8-6 win over Milton and he is doing just an excellent job all-around. He is also an excellent pass receiver."

who finished up with over 100 yards rushing. Quarterback Liam Higgins ran the option in from 12 yards out and Sinclair added the winning two-point conversion.

Weymouth marched to the North two just before halftime only to have the North defense stop them.

Murray Sparks JV's

By PETE ZOIA

Great ball carrying by halfback Chris Murray was instrumental in the North Quincy junior varsity football team defeating Brookline, 16-6, and Weymouth South, 6-0.

Murray broke a 65-yard run late in the Brookline game to settle the outcome of a hard-hitting game. North's first touchdown came when an errant Brookline lateral was fumbled in the end zone and North's Evan Kiley fell on the ball for the touchdown. Mark Cucuzzo added the two-point conversion.

Brookline came back with a long touchdown pass to move within two points.

Cucuzzo also added the two-point conversion after Murray's winning touchdown.

Mark Kelliher did some fine punting and Don Anderson some excellent pass receiving for the young Raiders. Coaches Pete Chrisom and Tom Carter hailed the defense of Mike Oliva, Adam Strout, Chris McCallum, Jason April and Brendan O'Connell and also had good words for Rich Brooks and Jon D'Angelo.

North had its hands full with Weymouth South, which played the Raiders even over three quarters.

Murray raced 42 yards to Weymouth's 32 in the first quarter but Weymouth's defense stiffened. Weymouth fumbled, a Brooks to Anderson pass netted 11 yards and another to Kelleher out the ball on Weymouth's 18 when the half ended.

Weymouth reached North's 18 in the third quarter, reaching North's 18 only to give up the ball on a faulty pass.

April intercepted a pass on North's 12 just as the third quarter ended, setting up an 88-yard scoring drive.

With Murray doing most of the carrying, the drive was capped by Cucuzzo, who went five yards for the only score of the game. On the drive Murray ran for 55 yards and had 135 yards rushing on only 16 carries.

Chris Melchin intercepted a pass to halt any chance of a Weymouth comeback.

North, Brookline Frosh 0-0

Fans were treated to an old-time, hard-fought football game as the North Quincy and Brookline freshman teams battled to a scoreless tie at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Both teams had scoring opportunities but the defenses rose up every time. Fumbles and interceptions made it an interesting contest.

The North frosh edged Weymouth South, 8-6. Weymouth took the lead on a 62-yard run but missed the conversion, which proved costly.

North drove 64 yards for its touchdown in the third quarter, led by Mark Sinclair, Coach Kevin Kelly and assistant Dean Zoia hailed the defense and had good words for Josh O'Donnell, Josh Gott and Mike Linnane. Wingback Keith Lentini also came in for his share of praise. North's record is 2-1-1.

Presidents Hope Nightmare Is Over

The Quincy football team's bus ride to Peabody last Friday night was a nightmare as it took nearly three hours to make the trip due to traffic. The Presidents didn't arrive until 20 minutes before game time and didn't get a chance to work out their kinks.

The nightmare continued as the big Tanners completely dominated the Presidents, rolled to a 26-0 halftime lead and handed Quincy its second loss in four games, 33-14.

Coach Jack Raymer hopes a return to veterans Memorial Stadium Friday night will make a difference as the Presidents host Newton North at 7 p.m.

Newton comes to Quincy also with a 2-2 record, defeating Needham and North Quincy and losing to Cambridge Rindge and Latin and Arlington. Last year Newton outscored Quincy in a wild one, 43-26.

"The bus ride was tough and it was almost impossible to get through the traffic, but it wouldn't have made any difference," Raymer said. "Peabody is a big, strong team and we never had a chance. We didn't have any change to score in the first half as Peabody controlled the ball, but I saw a few things to smile about late in the game.

"Backup quarterback Mike Flavin passed well late and threw for both our touchdowns and Chris Eay did a fine job receiving. We have been mainly a running team this year but, with teams throwing nine-man lines against us, I will have to go back to a passing game. I'll be working hard with Flavin and Gary Collins trying to improve the passing game."

Raymer also had good words for Billy Cantelli and Chris Walker.

Peabody took the lead with 8:37 left in the first quarter when Scott Webster took a Mark Bogan punt at midfield and returned it all the way to make it 6-0.

The Tanners, holding

Quincy to just four plays, soon made it 12-0 when they drove 66 yards in six plays with Dan Collins racing 38 yards for the score.

Peabody continued to roll in the second quarter and a poor Quincy punt gave it the ball on the Presidents' 43. Five plays later Collins scored from the nine and Chris Andre rushed for the two point conversion.

With 2:05 left in the half Nick DiMartino scored from the two and it was 26-0 at the intermission.

Peabody added its final touchdown in the third quarter when John Woods took a pitchout and went 60 yards for the touchdown. Brendan McKenna kicked the point.

In the final quarter Flavin capped a seven play drive by hitting Jim Munroe with a four-yard scoring pass. On the drive Bogan hit Walker on a half back option for 17 yards followed by Flavin's pass to Bogan to the 17.

With 17 seconds left, Flavin passed to Fay for a 10-yard score and the same combination accounted for the two-point conversion.

Green Team Wins Rider Cup

In the second annual South Shore Rider Cup match at Dennis Highland Contry Club, the Green team defeated the Red-White team, 8½-6½, in match play format.

Dave Haight and George Pecco got the Green team off to a fast start by beating Bruce Buckley and Mike Della-Barba, 2 and 1. Ken Furfari and Quincy High basketball coach John Franceschini put the Green team up, 3 to 1, by taking 3 points from Paul Radzik and Marty Henry.

But the Red-White team narrowed the gap to 5½-3½ as George McCall and Dave Robinson picked up 2½ over Fred Gennelly and John Kerney.

It looked like a Red-White victory when Bill Glynn and Stan Radzik demoralized Al Bortolotti and Bob Lawson, 3-0. At this point, the Red-Whites led, 6½-5½, and waited for the final game of #1 seed Brad Buckley and Paul Donaghue.

Buckley and Donaghue had a tough time as B.C. High basketball coach Brian Buckley teamed with Marshfield High School coach Ed Miller to sweep 3 points and give the Green team the victory. Miller's steady play and Brian Buckley's 3 birdies, including a chip in for a 2 on the ninth hole, made the difference.

The Rider Cup match officially ends the season for the South Shore Broom League, which will resume play in April with its opening tournament at Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Quincy Girls Continue Victory March

The Quincy girls' volleyball team continues to march through the Suburban League and last Friday improved to 10-0 with a 2-0 (15-6, 15-2) victory over Newton North. The First Ladies are the defending state champions.

The North Quincy girls, who tied Quincy for the league title last season, improved to 8-2 with a 2-0 (15-6, 15-6) win over Waltham.

The Quincy girls met Boston Latin yesterday

(Wednesday) will host Weymouth South Friday at 3:30 and will play at Brookline Monday.

The North girls faced Newton South yesterday, will be at Brockton Friday and will be home to Newton North Monday at 3:30.

Liz Vo's setting and timely hitting by Carmin Wergin off the bench led the win for Quincy, which hasn't lost a single game in rolling to its 10 wins.

North was paced by the hitting of Jill Hayes and Heather Rendle, the serving and passing of Kara Sullivan and the setting of Brenda Hayduk.

Earlier in the week Quincy defeated Brockton, 2-0 (15-5, 15-0) led by the spiking of Julie McCloskey and Melanie Sullivan.

North Quincy topped Weymouth North, 2-0 (15-8, 15-4), sparked by the serving and hitting of Rendle, the serving of Shana Cobban and the setting of Hayduk.

Granite Rail Accomplishes Mission

The Granite Rail softball team had more on their minds this summer than just winning games in the Quincy Mens Softball League.

The Rail, which is made up of more than a dozen friends who all grew up together in Wollaston neighborhoods, took two players to fatal accidents during the winter. This year, the team pulled together and dedicated the season to the late Jerry Arroyo and Matt Kenney.

"Dedicating our season to Jerry and Matt was our motivation this year," said Granite Rail first baseman, Jim Nolan, who added that most of the Rail players had been friends for more than 15 years. "We wanted to win the championship for Jerry and Matt."

Last week, after finishing tied for the league's best record and winning a best-of-five semifinal series, the Rail swept the best-of-seven championship series with Continental Cable to capture the league crown. The Rail defeated Cable, 21-10, in the final game at Welcome Young Field.

The Rail, which had produced several miracle comebacks during the regular season and playoffs, defeated Cable in typical Rail fashion. They fell behind 10-3, and outscored their opponents, 18-0, during the final three innings to take the title. The Rail finished with a 22-5 regular-season record and was 7-2 in the playoffs.

While the championship victory was sweet, more important to the Rail players was the fact the team could win the championship for their two friends. Arroyo's and Kenney's initials and numbers had been worn on each shoulder by Rail players all year.

"We wanted to do something (initials) to remember Jerry and Matt," said second baseman Rick Radzik. "They were great friends to all of us and we sure miss them."

Arroyo, a graduate of B.C. High and Kenney, a graduate of Archbishop Williams, died only weeks apart in January and February, respectively. Several Granite Rail players remarked how dedicating the season to Arroyo and Kenney had instilled a tremendous amount of character and determination in the team.

One example was the fifth and deciding game against Hat Rack in the semifinals series. The Rail trailed, 6-0, through four innings and came back to trail by two runs in the last inning. Down to their final two outs, Bob Cosby doubled and scored on a two-run home run by co-captain John McKay that tied the game. Co-captain Mike Conlon, Russ Hubbard, Scott Mele and Brian Ofria immediately followed with singles, with Ofria notching the game-winning hit.

"The comeback was amazing," Mike Conlon said. "We never quite. You just knew we could always come back in any situation. We always stuck together and our goal was to win the championship for Jerry and Matt."

Against Cable, the Rail took the first two games by scores of 11-9 and 10-5. In game three, the Rail trailed 7-0 through five innings, but scored four runs in the fifth, three in the seventh to tie and won the game in extra innings when Conlon singled home Mark Deyab.

In game four, the Rail's first three batters — Bob Cosby, McKay, and Deyab — were a combined 15-for-15, setting the tables for Conlon, Mele, and Hubbard. Mele had a home run and a triple. Brian Cosby, who had a clutch three-run homer in game three, came back with a solo shot that gave the Rail the lead for good, 11-10, in the fifth. Rick Radzik, Brian Morris and Jim Nolan all turned in exceptional defensive performances for the Rail, while Mike Bellotti and Brian Ofria had key hits. Mike Nader and Dave Marrocco's irreplaceable contributions continued to carry the Rail in their Comeback bids.

"We definitely wanted to win this championship for Jerry and Matt," Nolan added. "They were on our minds while we played all season, and the memory of dedicating the season to Jerry and Matt will certainly last a lot longer than the championship."

Stead Shines At Bowdoin

Loren Stead of Quincy is having a fine season as a sophomore receiver for the Bowdoin College varsity football team.

In a recent game with Trinity, a heartbreaking 49-38 loss, Stead had three receptions for 34 yards.

Cross Country

North Girls Defeat Cambridge R & L

The North Quincy girls' cross country team improved to 3-0 last week with a come-from-behind 27-30 victory over Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

The Raiderettes faced Brockton yesterday (Wednesday), will travel to Newton North next Tuesday and will compete in the Brown University invitational Saturday, Oct. 21.

The depth of Jeff

Hennessy's North team was again the factor as Cambridge took the first two places but North took the next four spots.

Freshman Suzanne Lewis finished third with Sherrin Quintiliani, slowed down by the flu, fourth, Janet Corrigan fifth and freshman, Ilana Cobban sixth. Joanna Moriarty was ninth and Danielle Lewis 10th.

North's depth was evidenced by the fact that the difference between first finisher Lewis and seventh Mary Tafalla was only 1:13.

"With Sherrin not at her best, this is what we need to pull out the close meets," Hennessy said. "Everyone in the league has talent, but our entire team has been responsible for our record this season."

North Boys Bow

The North Quincy boys' cross country team performed well last week but lost to a powerful Cambridge Rindge and Latin, favorites to win the state championship, 18-37.

North faced Brockton yesterday (Wednesday), will travel to Newton North Tuesday and will run in the Brown University Invitational Saturday, Oct. 21.

The Raiders placed five among the top 10 and are the first not to be shut out by Cambridge this year. North was hurt by the absence of its number one runner, Jason Buckley, sitting out with a strained hip flexor.

Chris Ballum, Andy Wohlrab, Peter Wildes, Greg Buck and John Heaney were North's scorers.

"Cambridge is just loaded and there was nothing we could do," said North Coach Dan Cuddy. "But we are improving in every meet and that is the important thing. Several of our runners are new to the sport."

• Tennis DiPietro Only Second Woman To Win Triple Crown

After three and one half weeks of fighting rain and cold, the 19th Quincy Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Quincy Recreation and the Granite Bank came to a close.

This year's outstanding player has to be Bernie DiPietro, who became only the second woman to ever win the triple crown in the tournament. The triple crown made up of the women's singles, women's doubles and the mixed doubles.

In her first title she played a newcomer to the tournament, Mary West. In two hard-fought sets, DiPietro finally became champion by winning 7-5, 6-4. The women's double championship saw the veteran team of Louise Durante and Hildy Gillis put up a great battle against DiPietro and her partner, Dana Loeb. DiPietro and Loeb prevailed, 6-2, 6-2, in a match highlighted by great net play. The mixed doubles championship saw DiPietro and her partner, Tom Bossard defeat a very good team of Joe Ryan and Hildy Gillis, 6-0, 6-3.

The men's singles final was one of the strongest in the tournament's history. Two of the best, Oscar Jara and Tom Bossard, were matched up in what fans knew would be a great match. The match became a game of streaks. Bossard took the first set, 6-0, only to be defeated by Jara 6-0, in the second set. Bossard then went to win the first three games of the third set, but Jara came back to take six straight games for the title.

The boys' 16 and under division had two upcoming juniors take the court for the finals. In the end Christian

Ciavarrro proved to tough for Pat Gallagher, 6-0, 6-0.

Hildy Gillis won the women's 35 and over championship for the eighth time in nine years over many time finalist Louise Durante. Gillis' string goes back to 1980 only being broken by Elissa Zonis' 1983 win.

Joe Ryan's title was his sixth consecutive win in the men's over 35 division. That makes Joe the longest consecutive champion in the tournament history.

Barry Welch, Recreation Director, presented the permanent trophies to the city champions and credited tournament Director John Franceschini for the success of this year's event.

"Eight different people won awards as champion or finalist in this year's event. The play was excellent and the enthusiasm was high. Nine number one seeds made it to the championship and we had new inners and traditional champions. I once again want to emphasize our great respect for the Granite Bank who continues to provide the sponsorship necessary to make this a cost effective program for the enjoyment of Quincy residents of all ages," Welch said. John Frances-chini was assisted by Steve Durante, a past tournament champion.

McCauley Takes Issue On O'Connell Ad

improvement.

"This is my first campaign and I may not always pick the proper adjective to describe a condition but the facts remain that Quincy citizens are too often denied access to its beaches because of pollution, our schools need major work, our downtown is not clean and needs to be revitalized and its difficult for me to ever be happy with Quincy being designated the sludge capital of Massachusetts," O'Connell said.

"We can't put our head in the sand, the problems just don't go away. We have financial problems at the hospital, as do many hospitals but I want to make sure our city hospital is not a casualty in the contraction of acute care hospitals that is taking place in the Commonwealth. "I was born there," O'Connell said. "This city's population needs a high quality acute care hospital to serve our city."

Reacting to the ad, Sheets said he will continue to run a positive campaign.

"We made a decision last October to run a positive campaign. We believe that people in Quincy expect a positive campaign from Jim Sheets and we're going to continue to have a positive campaign."

"Whatever the other candidate does is something that they're and we're going to have to live with."

"The people of Quincy will have to make their own judgement. We intend to continue with a positive campaign just as we had a positive campaign before the preliminary."

"I think the people of Quincy deserve that and that's precisely what we intend to do," Sheets said.

In particular, McCauley refuted O'Connell's claims regarding the city's relationship with the MWRA, beach pollution, school system and crime prevention.

McCauley explained that it was his administration that filed the lawsuit which eventually led to the court-ordered Boston Harbor Clean up. Out of that order, the MWRA was created to monitor and conduct the cleanup.

As for the city's effort to stop the MWRA from coming into Quincy, the mayor said the agency struck a private deal with General Dynamics, the previous owner of the shipyard.

"The MWRA didn't steal the shipyard. It was never Quincy's. The deal was consummated over objections by the McCauley administration," the mayor said, adding that the city tried to block the sale in court but lost.

McCauley also noted that the city won a major battle several years ago when it defeated a proposal for a sewage treatment plant on Long Island or Nut Island both located in Quincy Bay. Instead, the plant is slated for Deer Island off Winthrop.

The city also won victories against the MWRA when the agency decided to dismiss composting or incineration as a means to process sludge at the shipyard, the mayor said.

On the topic of beach pollution, McCauley said, "Those city beaches are not cesspools. We monitor them very carefully," adding that beaches are swimmable during certain times of the summer.

Regarding "mothers marching for books," McCauley said this has been "an old complaint" which he has researched fully. On Tuesday, McCauley was informed by Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci that books are in adequate supply.

The mayor was also angered by the charge that the city's school's are crumbling. He noted that $8 million has been spent on school upkeep during his eight years in office.

"We've spent substantial money in upgrading schools. (Parents) can feel assured that when your kids go to school, the buildings won't crumble around them."

Furthermore, Quincy's cost per pupil appears to be above the state average. Compared to 16 other communities, Quincy is ranked fifth with a cost of $4,708 per student, about $500 above average of $4,209.

The mayor admitted that more should be spent on the schools but funding is short because of the city and the state's fiscal situations.

"Quincy could use more money (in the schools) but unfortunately, I was unable to give them additional money," McCauley said.

He also pointed out that no Quincy teachers were laid off this year. Some 8,000 teachers from across the state were released last month.

Regarding the drop out rate, Ricci said the rate has declined 47 percent since he was appointed in 1987. That year, the rate was 19.6 percent while this year it is 10.8 percent, according to state statistics.

As for police and crime prevention, the mayor noted that serious crime in Quincy has dropped 40 percent since 1975. In 1975, there were 5,590 report incidents while there were 3,317 in 1988.

Serious crime includes murder, rape, assault, larceny and auto theft.

The statistics do not include drug incidents but "it does show that we must be doing something right," McCauley said, adding that the city has provided new equipment and a new $9 million police station.

McCauley also took exception to the charge that "no one's had the courage to lead in Quincy. The mayor noted that as a city councillor, Sheets has very little power compared to the mayor.

McCauley called the council essentially a "legislative body with very little power." Only the mayor has the authority to appropriate money and make appointments.

"If there's any lack of leadership, you would have to blame the mayor, not the City Council. This is strong mayoral form of government."

"City councillors are legislators. They don't have control over appropriations. I do, the mayor explained."

McCauley admitted that the city does have some problems, such as attracting business in downtown Quincy. "We've been working hard to overcome these problems."

O'Connell said McCauley has done "a good job" as mayor and the issues he raised in his ad "require immediate management attention."

"The mayor said he is comfortable with his eight years as Quincy's chief executive, he should be. I think he has done a good job and doesn't waste a dime. Anybody who can be mayor for eight years deserves a medal," O'Connell said.

"Many of the issues do require immediate management attention," he added, such as the restoration of the Old Colony commuter rail which he supports.

"If Quincy citizens are to have access to an almost half billion dollar investment by our state and federal government we must act soon or we will be denied access to this new commuter rail service."

"If we don't have access it will negatively effect the value of homes in Quincy because other towns will be better able to access this upscale method of public transportation."

"Quincy is good enough for commuter rail, it shouldn't just come rolling through Quincy," O'Connell added.

Gilbert and Sullivan's operetta "The Mikado" will be presented at Eastern Nazarene College's Cove Fine Arts Center for five from Oct. 19 through 24.

Performances are scheduled for Thursday, Friday, Monday and Tuesday, Oct. 19, 20, 23 and 24 at 7 p.m. Two performances are planned for Saturday, Oct. 21, at 6 and 9 p.m. Tickets are $5.00.

Ballard previously directed at BNC Archibald MacLeish's "J.B." and two original works, "Parables" and "A Light Shining in the Wilderness."

Musical direction is by Kimberly Rose Blaney, vocal director, and Robert Howard, orchestra conductor, both faculty members in the ENC Music Department. Sets and lights are designed by Jeffrey D. Frame, a faculty member in the Communication Arts Department. Margaret H. Ballard will design the costumes.

Tickets and more information are available by writing "Mikado," Eastern Nazarene College, 23 East Elm Ave., Quincy, MA 02170, or by calling the ENC Box Office at 773-6450, Ext. 262.

WEEK OF: October 12.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You're the zodiac's diplomat and, according to the many who respect your judgement, the "voice of sanity." You adore life's finer things and sometimes find it hard to stay within your budget. Financial prudence is essential this year; the long-term results are worth some minor sacrifices.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

Enterprising Aquarius is super-creative throughout this week. You can solve an annoying domestic dilemma and achieve points on the jobfront. Caution, however, is crucial in financial dealings.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

Week sees an extravagant streak surfacing, but pampering yourself may prove just what your psyche needs. Friends tend to stretch the truth. Family ties are starting to strengthen.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

Mental telepathy is accentuated through this period; you and special friend are often on the same wavelength. While it may be hard to catch up, it's important that you maintain or improve upon your usual pace.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

Invitation arrives from faraway. Possibly you may be traveling to a reunion or a festivity. Close to home, you'll be engaged in neighborhood politics and may be assuming the role of key diplomat.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

Casual acquaintanceship may be evolving into a meaningful friendship. Week sees you encouraging youngsters to be the best they can be. Older relatives appreciate the gift of time that you extend.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

Thursday-Sunday are favorable for accounting tasks. Indeed, practical skills are highlighted over creative pursuits. Domestic scene is less problematic. Intuition is strong from Monday through Wednesday.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

Information arriving between Thursday and Monday may require prompt clarification. Documents reviewed need extra careful scrutiny. Friends of the opposite sex are most supportive of your ideas.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

You may decide that it's time to add some culture to your life, and this is a good week for visiting art galleries or symphony halls. A home-related plan is activated after a lengthy delay.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Be mindful of a forgetful streak that may surface before the weekend-be sure to acknowledge birthdays, achievements, etc. Information arriving after Monday must be digested before you act on it.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

Communications are emphasized this week-an excellent period for writing important letters or making difficult calls. Joint efforts are encouraged, provided each participant understands his/her responsibilities.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

Yours is the sign of the eternal student, and education-your own and that of a loved one-is stressed in a major way. Business and travel may be blending. Good time to sponsor a family health-and-fitness review.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20

Visitors keep you hopping, but be sure to allow some private time for reflection. If traveling, trips may prove unusually delightful. The key, however, is to have a positive attitude.

Quincy Mothers Cooperative Offers Child Safety Tips

School's in and the kids are out-of sight, that is. So how do we keep our children safe from strangers when we can't be with them?

According to the Quincy Mothers Cooperative, approximately 200 bodies of children are found unidentified in the United States each year. Thousands are criminally abducted and there are least 200,000 reports of child abuse.

To help a child's defense, parents can arm their children with knowledge that will make them less likely to be victims of such crimes, the Quincy Mothers Cooperative advises.

Don't Talk to Strangers
Children often don't understand who a stranger is. They usually associate strangers with "the bad guy" and think nice-looking, friendly people won't hurt them. Children must be taught that a stranger is anyone not known to them regardless of their appearance or manner.

"What If" Games
"What If" games stimulate ways that children may be lured by ill-willed strangers and teach them appropriate responses. For example, children may be asked: "if a man came up to you and said, 'please help me. My kitten is hurt, would you go with him?'"

Or, "if a woman came up to you after school and said, 'your mother asked me to pick you up,' what would you do?"

A variety of such scenarios should be used to demonstrate the many ways entrapment may occur.

Code Words
The use of secret code-words has been successful in keeping children safe from strangers. Select a secret code-word with your children and emphasize that this secret word must not be told to anyone under any circumstances. Tell your child to run if confronted by any person who does not know the code-word. Teach your child to run, away and scream, run toward a crowd to avoid danger.

It's Okay to Say No
Children are sometimes taught the wrong things. They are taught to "always" behave respectfully and obediently toward their elders. Yet, when it comes to strangers, these behaviors may make them easy targets. Give your child the right to say no. This includes the right to say no to affection, such as kissing Aunt Matilda. A child forced to be affectionate may think this is the expected response to any adult asking for affection.

Self Defense
Another mistake parents make is teaching a child martial arts as a means of protection. Authorities agree that while this type of activity may be good fun and exercise, it will not protect a child from an attacker who is usually bigger and stronger and who may have a weapon.

Body Awareness
A child should be able to name all of his body parts with the same ease and should be able to distinguish "good touch" from "bad touch." Discussion in genitalia may be difficult for some parents, perhaps making it difficult or impossible for their children to do so. A child who is comfortable talking about his genitals is better equipped to recognize and describe "bad touch."

Additional tips are:
• Do not put child's name on items taking out of the house. This eliminates the possibility of a stranger calling a child by his first name to gain his trust.

• Children should not be dressed differently from other kids. Criminals are attracted to children who stand out or look wealthy.

• Children should be taught to travel familiar routes and to avoid short cuts.

• Children alone are easy prey. Many molesters are known and trusted by the victim and the victim's family. Children should know how to dial emergency numbers, 911 and 0.

"Quincy's Presidents deserve better than a traffic circle."

— Peter O'Connell

Peter O'Connell thinks the final resting place of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams should be more than a traffic island.

So Peter's created an innovative plan for an historic urban park linking the beautiful First Parish Church with City Hall.

Along with bringing green space to Quincy Center, the park will bring thousands of tourists and new business activity where it's most needed.

"It'll beef up our image and increase pride in Quincy's historic heritage," said Peter O'Connell.

A Patriot Ledger editorial endorsing O'Connell's plan said "The proposal ... that would transform the Church of Presidents from a traffic island into the crown jewel of a downtown historic district is an idea all Quincy residents should support."

What did Peter O'Connell's opponent say? He just said no, and that's just not enough.

Quincy needs action and bold new thinking.

That's Peter O'Connell.

Bond Issue Seen

City Needs $4 Million For Landfill

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city, which faces $4 million in costs next year to cap the closed West Quincy landfill, will probably have to float a bond to pay for it, Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday.

"We've been able to finance (the landfill closing) up to now through free cash and UDAG money. The only way I see us funding this is through a bond issue.

"If we don't do it, the courts will come down on us hard," the mayor added.

At Monday's City Council meeting, Public Works Commissioner David Colton told councilors the city will have to come up with $4 million within the year to finance the project.

In 1986, the Department of Environmental Quality Engineering closed the landfill after 15 years of operation. The order was reinforced by an order of the Superior Court in 1987.

According to Colton, the landfill is presently undergoing erosion, which affects adjoining areas, risks exposing old refuse and costs more to correct.

Since the 110-acre site was closed three and a half years ago, the city has spent $2 million installing leachate collectors and applying clay covers. The project could be completed by next October.

Once the landfill is fully capped, $200,000 will be needed annually to maintain the closed landfill while another $200,000 will be needed for engineering, inspection, testing and management and legal fees.

Colton said the total cost for closing the landfill will be approximately $6 million.

On Tuesday, McCauley said he was not surprised by the $4 million figure. "It's been a multi-million proposal all along to do what they want you to do," he said, referring to the DEQE and the court.

Several councilors, including Thomas Nutey, James Sheets, Stephen McGrath and Charles Phelan, said the city should take the state to court as a way to get funding. Because the state ordered the landfill close, it should also help fund it, they

O'Connell, Sheets Spar Over Latter's Ad

A new political advertisement placed for mayoral candidate James Sheets has sparked some spirited remarks between him and his opponent, Peter O'Connell.

The ad, which appeared in Monday's Patriot Ledger, uses the "O" trademark of the O'Connell campaign followed by the word "No." The ad also appears in this issue of The Quincy Sun.

O'Connell said the ad symbolizes "all that is wrong with Jim Sheets candidacy" while Sheets countered that his ad conveys the message that true leaders must say no at times to protect citizens.

"Sheets offers no new ideas, no solutions. He just says no and that's just not enough for the people of Quincy," O'Connell said.

"Sheets says no to the methadone van but offers no solutions. He says no to commuter rail," he added, but it's coming. And he says no to the MWRA, but the sludge plant is being built."

In response, Sheets said he has said no to certain proposals because he believes they are harmful to the quality of life in Quincy. He also said he has been very innovative addressing certain issues such as education and development.

As an example, he cited his adopted plan which requires developers to pay the city one percent of a project's total cost before they can be issued a permit.

So far, the fee has generated about $2 million for the city. "That's a very innovative way to deal with the problem of sewer surcharge," Sheets said.

"I've always been progressive and innovative and I'll continue to be as mayor of the City of Quincy," he added.

Regarding the new methadone van, Sheets said he is not against treating heroin addicts but he questions the van concept. "I've said no to the methadone van because to me it's a questionable way to administer methadone treatment," he said.

A BRASS AND GRANITE plaque signifying the new $60 million health care facility at Quincy Hospital as "The McCauley Building" is unveiled by Hospital Director Mark Mundy as a surprised Francis McCauley looks on. The facility, dedicated last Saturday, was named in honor of the mayor for his leadership and commitment to the eight-year project. The mayor did not know the facility would be named after him. See Story Page 2.

At Quincy Hospital: A New Era In Health Care

Saturday's dedication of the new $60 million Quincy Hospital health care facility ushered in a new age in health care treatment for Quincy and the surrounding community.

With the opening of its new, 214-bed facilities, the hospital is poised to meet health care needs of Quincy residents and neighbors well into the 21st century. The patient-care tower, an adjoining patient services building and the mental health center stand at the pinnacle of contemporary hospital design, said Tom Ayres, a hospital spokesman.

Replacing nearly two-thirds of the existing facilities, the new buildings house private patient rooms, a comprehensive center for emergency and walk-in care and areas for a diverse array of support services—all enhanced by state-of-the-art medical technology.

For example, the new central processing unit has several high vacuum sterilizers which sterilize surgical equipment in only three minutes. The computerized machines are much more efficient than gravity sterilizers which sterilize instruments in 30 minutes.

The new Intensive Care Unit features "break-away" window walls which enable cardiac and other life-support teams to respond quickly to patient emergencies. High tech, computerized monitoring devices at the head of each bed track heart, blood pressure and other vital signs. Duplicate monitors are located at the unit's central nursing station, where nurses can also check visually on patients through the expansive window walls.

The ICU also houses a special major procedures room, enabling physicians to insert pacemakers and perform other critical-care tasks without having to transfer patients to operating rooms.

Besides the 14 ICU beds, there are 160 private medical-surgical beds, 20 progressive care beds and 20 post-partum beds. In addition, there will be 20 mental health beds in a building adjacent to the new facility.

Of the 160 medical/surgical beds, 16 will be pediatric at a location to be determined, Ayres said.

Because private rooms are all the hospital offers, insurance companies will pay for the rooms in full, he noted.

Most services contained in the new facility are up and functional. Ayres said services such as the emergency room should be functional by mid-November. Ayres said. The entire facility, including the mental health division, should be functional by mid-December, he added.

The six-story tower at the heart of the complex is the focal point. The lobby and reception area, with its striking faux marble-and-granite accents, recognizes Quincy's historic role as a quarrying center and provides a warm welcome to patients and visitors.

The first floor also includes the admissions suite, waiting areas for families and friends, coffee shop, gift shop, interfaith chapel and a board room and education center for staff and community members.

The patient-care tower's top four floors each house 40 private medical-surgical rooms, clustered in groups of four and linked to a common corridor. The design allows patients privacy without the sense of isolation that occurs when rooms are arrayed off a long corridor. The arrangement also enables nurses to visually monitor several patients at once and also affords the flexibility to

'The McCauley Building' Takes Mayor By Surprise

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Last Saturday's dedication of the new $60 million Quincy Hospital health care facility had all the makings of a celebration: music, balloons, tributes and one very big surprise.

After a parade of speakers thanked the numerous parties involved in the eight-year project, Mayor Francis McCauley, the keynote speaker, was asked to join Director Mark Mundy in a plaque unveiling.

Unassumingly, the mayor stepped forward from his seat and clutched a corner of the blue velvet covering the plaque as Mundy took the other side. Nonchalantly, Mundy and McCauley then revealed the covering and revealed its inscription. McCauley stood stunned as Mundy read the first three words: "The McCauley Building."

The crowd then showered the mayor with applause as Mundy read the rest of the brass and granite plaque. "The McCauley Building. Named in honor of Francis X. McCauley, Mayor of the City of Quincy (1982-1989) an outstanding public servant whose tenure was marked by an exemplary commitment to the hospital and the people of the communities it serves."

As the applause quieted down, McCauley replied, "Thank you so much, I'm a little embarrassed by (the honor.) This was a great project, a lot of work by a lot of people and my involvement was probably less than many but I really appreciate this, Mark, and all those who worked so hard to make this day come true."

Prior to the unveiling, Mundy and other guest speakers thanked the mayor for his leadership and commitment to the new hospital project.

Mundy, who came to the hospital in 1983, said he was unsure whether the project would ever come to fruition after McCauley informed him of the city's financial restraints under Prop. 2 and a half. However, after the city learned that the bond issue which would fund the project was insured by HFA, the city moved forward. With the insurance, the project would save the city "millions of dollars" in interest, the mayor explained.

After five years of paperwork and three years of construction, the project was recently completed on schedule and within budget. It represents the single largest municipal project in the city's history.

McCauley was very upbeat during his keynote address, joking with the crowd while explaining his personal involvement at the hospital. Born there Dec. 27, 1929, he returned three and a half years later in 1933 after his appendix ruptured.

In 1939, he had his tonsils removed and then he was back in 1954 for an operation on "a certain part of the anatomy" that he would not disclose.

He then told the crowd that he had a gall bladder operation in 1973.

"I was really going to get heavily involved in this and tell you all about it. As a matter of fact, I said to Mark, would it be more dramatic if I opened my shirt and showed you my gall bladder scar and Mark said, if you do that mayor, you're going to be the first patient in the new psychiatry area," McCauley said as the 500 guests burst into laughter.

McCauley also joked about the paperwork involved in the project. Warned beforehand that he would have to sign his name many times, McCauley decided to count the times at a paper signing ceremony in Boston.

The final count: 267

The board granted the license with the stipulation that the common bathrooms, which will be shared by other businesses and will not be available for patrons, must be unlocked and kept clean at all times.

$1 MBTA Parking Increase Expected

The MBTA's Board of Managers was expected to vote Wednesday on a proposal to increase parking rates at the city's four MBTA stations by $1, Mayor Francis McCauley said Tuesday.

If approved, the new rates would increase from $1.50 to $2.50 a day at Quincy Adams in South Quincy and the Quincy Center Station and $1 to $2 at the North Quincy and Wollaston stations.

Originally, the MBTA planned to hike parking rates 300 percent but was met with stiff opposition from officials and the public.

Paul Harold, who fought against the 300 percent increase, said, "It's a limited victory in that (the rate) is going up one dollar as opposed to two dollars. It still fails to take into consideration the impact in Quincy in what forecasts an increase in illegal parking in the neighborhoods near the stations.

Two hearings on the proposal were held recently in Quincy.

McCauley, a member of the MBTA's Advisory Board, said he supported the one dollar increase.

"There was outcry about the fees but (the MBTA) hasn't raised them in eight years. (The one dollar hike) should mitigate those complaints. This is the reason response to that and I support them," McCauley said.

The Authority is also considering charging fees at 15 of its 60 commuter rail station lots. If passed, six would begin charging customers in December and another nine would begin charging in January.

The present plan calls for a $2 fee per day. The 15 lots represent about 6,000 spaces.

The mayor said the authority has not yet decided to eliminate any particular bus routes.

CAROLINE RYAN, wife of the late Dennis Ryan, former clerk-magistrate at Quincy District Court, holds a plaque recognizing Mr. Ryan's commitment to the Democratic Party which was presented at the recent Quincy Democratic City Committee brunch at the Bryan Post. Mr. Ryan was given special recognition for exemplifying the ideals of the Democratic Party. With Mrs. Ryan are, from left, Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney, Francis X. Bellotti, a candidate for governor; Sen. William Golden, candidate for lieutenant governor and keynote speaker; and Committee Chairman Daniel Raymond.

Council Opposes 300 Percent Hike In Parking Rates

The City Council passed a resolution Monday against the MBTA's proposal to increase parking rates at Quincy's stations by 300 percent but one councillor did say he supports a "substantial increase."

Responding to a resolution introduced by Councillors Lawrence Chretien and Charles Phelan, Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley said he supports the increase. "I really don't think raising (the rates from $1) to $2 is going to force everyone out into the streets. For the record, I do support a substantial increase in fees," Nutley said.

A 300 percent increase would raise the present $1 fee to $3.

Chretien and Phelan said the MBTA's proposal would make illegal parking on side streets near the lots worse. They said cars routinely park outside the lots to avoid the current $1 all day fee.

The councillors said the illegally parked cars represent a public safety hazard by preventing the easy passage of emergency vehicles and the cars are a constant drain on police personnel.

The vehicles are also a constant nuisance to neighbors living around the stations, endangering their quality of life, the resolve states.

The councillors said people who use commuter rail elsewhere do not pay any parking fees.

Council Opposes Elimination Of MBTA Bus Route

The City Council went on record Monday against the MBTA's proposed cut of Bus Route #212 which serves Billings Road, Elm Street and Hancock Street in Wollaston.

A resolution against the proposal was introduced by Councillors Charles Phelan, Thomas Nutley, Timothy Cahill and Patricia Toland.

They said they were against the cut because the bus is the primary mode of transportation for many citizens traveling to Quincy Center and City Hall.

The bus is also heavily used by students attending St. Ann's School, Central Middle School and Quincy High School. If cut, many riders will have to walk a quarter mile or several blocks to another bus.

Council Endorses 40% Petition

Council President Patricia Toland announces that the Quincy City Council has endorsed the Massachusetts Municipal Association sponsored petition drive to place a referendum on the 1990 state ballot which will mandate the state share 40 percent of its growth revenue.

Toland also said that both mayoral candidates, all city councillors and several school committee members and candidates have agreed to participate in the petition drive. "The reason there is broad support for this referendum is because everyone realizes there is a need for a law guaranteeing cities and towns a fair and stable share of state aid," Toland said.

If adopted as law, the proposal would set a target for local aid each year based on 40 percent of all state revenue from the income, sales and corporate taxes beginning 1992.

"For years the M.M.A. has negotiated in good faith with state officials towards a goal shared by everyone in government: adequate funding for local services. The fiscal problems of the last year have made it necessary for the M.M.A. to undertake this referendum campaign to assure a consistent revenue stream in the future," Toland said.

"This referendum will not change Prop. 2½, and it is not an increase in taxes," Toland emphasized, "it asks for a share of state revenues for cities and towns in the form of local aid."

Foliage To Hit Peak Here This Weekend

With the many acres of parkland in Quincy, leaves are turning into the brilliant fall colors and are expected to hit their peak this week for residents who are unable to travel any distance according to Raymond Cattaneo, executive director, Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments.

Merrymount Park, ... Southern Artery, has an outstanding view of the foliage where one can look across the bay the conservation nature trail off Fenno Street and also the marsh site on Quincy Shore Drive as well as the hundreds of beautiful trees in the vicinity of Pageant Field and Merrymount Park.

Mount Wollaston Cemetery, at the corner of Southern Artery and Sea Street, is excellent for people who wish to walk or jog while enjoying nature's beauty of the turning leaves into the magic fall colors.

Although the gates at Faxon Park in South Quincy are locked because of vandalism and the continuous illegal dumping at the site, persons wishing to view the foliage can park along Faxon Park Road and walk up to the Observation Circle where there is a picturesque view over the Quincy Bay.

One other area that offers a limited amount of foliage is Squaw Rock at the end of the Causeway in Squantum. Anyone wishing to take in the scenery can leave their car in the parking lot and walk into the park where there is an excellent scenic view of the Boston Skyline and Harbor Islands.

There are more volcanoes in Indonesia than in any other country.

Baron Hugo didn't feel a bit honored when they named Hurricane Hugo.

And after all the damage and grief it wreaked on Charleston, S.C. it really bothers him.

It's like someone tarnishing your good name. But more important than that, Baron wants to help the victims.

Baron, of Totem Pole fame back in the big band era, is still going strong at age 86. He's young at heart — with a heart twice the size of the drum he still plays with gusto.

And he wants to do something to help make up for what the other Hugo did to the people of Charleston. Baron is establishing his own relief fund to help those victims.

Starting Monday, he will be making a personal appearance — along with his favorite drum — outside City Hall hoping to raise money to send to Charleston.

He has Mayor Francis McCauley's blessing.

"I don't know how much I can raise," Baron says. "But every little bit will help. I just want to help."

Baron plans to play from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. daily during the week until the weather forces him to pack up his drum.

In addition to playing his drums and maybe singing a song or two, he will also be donating some of his prized paintings to the cause.

Baron has been painting landscapes and seascapes for the past quarter century and will bring them along.

He will let each go "for a fair donation."

"I'm no Rembrandt," he says. "But the paintings aren't bad, really. Maybe they will bring a few dollars." Baron, who came out of West Quincy and went on to become one of the most popular band leaders in the New England area, has been doing charitable things all his life. For a number of years now he has been a volunteer at Milton Hospital. And he was always on hand at The Quincy Sun for the Labor Day Muscular Dystrophy Telethon pledge center which has raised over $1 million for Jerry's Kids.

Baron, incidentally, will recreate the sounds of the Totem Pole Friday, Oct. 27 at famed Moseley's On The Charles, Routes 1 and 109 in Dedham.

Baron will front a 17-piece band playing the hits of the big band era from 8 p.m. to midnight. (Tickets are $17.50 per person. Call 323-4530 or 320-5757 for tickets. They will also be available at the door.)

Baron led a 35-piece band — largest in the country — at the Totem Pole from 1942 to 1951.

He shared honors there with the likes of Harry James, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Gene Krupa, Guy Lombardo and Bob Crosby among others.

Lombardo drew the biggest crowds, Baron recalls. Baron's theme song, old Totem Pole fans will recall was: "Dancing With The Stars." His own favorite song is Glenn Miller's "In The Mood." The most frequently requested song from the audience was "Stardust."

The Totem Pole which was later torn down for construction of the Marriott Hotel, had a strict no-liquor policy, Baron remembers. "There was no drinking allowed," he says. "And that was strictly enforced."

He remembers one night when Bob Crosby and his band were appearing there, his brother, Bing, who had been playing the ponies at Suffolk Downs decided to stop over to see Bob.

The story making the rounds that night, says Baron, was that Bing showed up with a flask or bottle in his back pocket.

The doorman saw it and wouldn't let him in. "It was a great place for the kids," says Baron. "They could hear good music there without any problems. No liquor. No drugs. Just good music and a lot of fun."

IT WAS A weekend to remember for Mayor Francis McCauley: a new grandchild, a hospital building named after him and a special political award.

His Honor and First Lady, Sandra, became grandparents for the third time in less than 11 months early Saturday morning when their oldest daughter Melissa who is married to Steve Higgins gave birth to a daughter, Lindsay Joy.

Lindsay, the Higgins' first child, weighed in at 7 pounds, 14 ounces.

Because Melissa is a member of the Harvard Community Plan, the baby was born at Brigham and Women's Hospital.

And that snapped a maternity tradition for the McCauley family. The mayor, his wife, three daughters and two sons were all born at Quincy Hospital.

But the McCauley name was quite in evidence later Saturday with the disclosure that the main building at the new $60 million facility has been named "The McCauley Building." McCauley, who helped unveil the plaque was taken by complete surprise.

And later that day, McCauley attended the Republican Leadership Conference in Falmouth and was honored with a citation for his fiscal responsibility and accomplishments as mayor of Quincy.

MAYORAL candidate James Sheets has two new faces in his camp: former City Councillor Leo Kelly, who was Steve McGrath's campaign chairman, and Jane Reikard, executive secretary of the Quincy Rent Grievance Board who has been a Joseph LaRaia supporter.

A Commendation For Paul Bregoli

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It was announced last week that Paul Bregoli, the Girls Varsity Basketball Coach at North Quincy High School, was leaving the coaching ranks. He is leaving a program that he developed into one of the finest in the area.

During his tenure, which included tournament appearances and many big victories, he helped develop some excellent student athletes. Many products of Mr. Bregoli's Red Raider system went on to have outstanding college careers as well.

Mr. Bregoli was a student of the game and a dedicated professional. His love for North Quincy Girls Basketball can not be measured. His presence will be sorely missed.

In closing, I wish Paul all the best and I'm sure he realizes the significance he had on all the young ladies who wore the North Quincy basketball uniforms over the past decade. Coach Bregoli is a tribute to the coaching profession.

A few corrections are in order, however, in the list of persons mentioned in the prayer of remembrance at our anniversary service. The list should have included: Rev. Ernst Klein, Marion Hayden (mother of Rickie) and Anna Hemion (mother of Alfred). Thank you again for helping us to celebrate.

A New Facility, New Era

isolate a patient or close off a group of beds if desirable.

Four rooms on each floor are handicapped accessible.

On a clear day, the panoramic view from the tower's uppermost floors looks beyond Quincy Bay, Boston Harbor and the Boston skyline.

The second floor contains a 20-bed inpatient unit which will provide post-partum care for new mothers who deliver their babies through the hospital's growing obstetrical service and Center for Women's Health. Renovated labor-delivery-recovery rooms in the old West Wing will complement this special treatment floor.

The advanced Emergency and Walk-In Center, which anchors the three-story patient services building at its lowest point, incorporates contemporary concepts in design and planning for emergency services. Approximately four times the size of the hospital's previous emergency facility, it offers a full range of traditional emergency services for critically ill and injured patients, as well as prompt, high-quality ambulatory care for people who arrive with minor health problems.

According to Ayres, slightly more than half of the hospital's inpatients come to Quincy Hospital through the emergency room. "About 25,000 people use emergency services yearly. This is the area the public has the most contact with."

Similar in design to ICU, the progressive care unit (PCU) is a so-called "step-down" unit for patients who need less than intensive care but more than is typically provided on a regular medical-surgical floor.

Spacious areas for major support services round out the patient-services building. These include a highly advanced blood and chemistry laboratory, pharmacy, respiratory care center, EKG/EEG facilities and a well-equipped rehabilitation services department, providing inpatient and outpatient programs in physical and occupational therapy, sports medicine, audiology and speech pathology.

The one-story, 20-bed mental health facility is in the final phases of construction at the opposite side of the hospital grounds from the new patient-care tower. Once open, it will offer short-term treatment for adults with acute psychiatric problems.

First conceived in 1981, several years of planning for the new facility were required to obtain the necessary state and federal approvals, as well as nearly $60 million in long-term financing through a bond issue insured by the Federal Housing Authority (FHA).

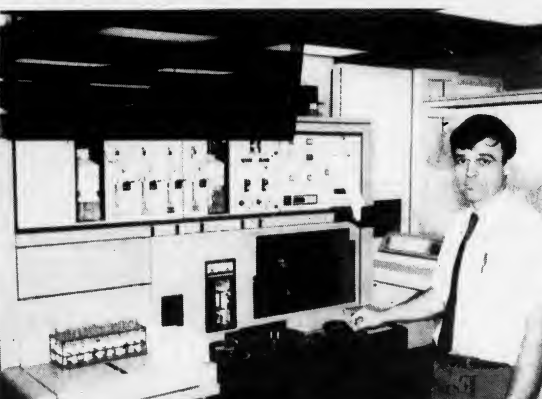

The hospital was the first publicly-owned hospital in the nation to receive FHA assistance.

A TYPICAL PRIVATE medical-surgical room in the new Quincy Hospital health care facility. All 160 of the medical-surgical rooms are private.

TONY RICHARD, manager of Quincy Hospital's new laboratory, shows how a new chemical analyzer works. The self-contained machine can perform 30 chemical tests from one sample of blood.

Principal architects for the project were Huntington, Durham and Richardson of Alexandria, VA, assisted by Quincy architect Joseph Donahue. Carlson Corp. of Cohituate was the general contractor while Gilbane Building Co. of Providence was the construction manager.

With the new facility open, three 60 year-old nearby buildings are scheduled for demolition: Ward A, Hunting and the old Medical-Surgical building.

The buildings could be demolished by the end of the year. The space will be used for parking.

Della Chiesa, McIntyre Exchange Campaign Barbs

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and his challenger for re-election, City Council President James R. McIntyre, exchanged heated remarks in appearances in Houghs Neck and Quincy Point.

Della Chiesa told the Men's Club of the Quincy Point Congregational Church that "you'll have Boston politics here in the city of Quincy as sure as I'm standing here" if McIntyre is elected mayor.

An incinerator with the capacity to meet the city's needs for 25 years located on Quarry St. near Hardwick's Quarry, was recommended by a committee of Councillors Joseph E. Brett, Edna B Austin and David S. McIntosh.

Manet Health Center Marks 10th Anniversary

By RUTH WAINWRIGHT

The Manet Community Health Center observed its 10th anniversary at the Quincy Neighborhood Club with the awarding of gifts and citations to many who had made its success possible.

The building and opening of the Health Center was made through efforts of the community, friends, neighbors and local political leaders and grants.

It is located in the light brick and concrete building at 193 Sea St., a part of the Houghs Neck Community Center. In 1981, facilities there were expanded. In 1983, a satellite center opened in the former Old Sailors' Home on Bicknell St. in Germantown. This year the Health Center includes also the Hull Medical Center on George Washington Blvd., in Hull.

From a recorded 4,000 patient visits in 1979, a projected 30,000 visits is expected for 1989.

Judith Kolson, a past president of the Manet

Community Health Board of Directors, was chairman of the anniversary celebration which was attended by some 500 professionals, city and state officials, community friends and board members.

Most prestigious of the awards was the Board of Directors Award for outstanding efforts to promote the Manet Community Health Center. This had been presented only once before, to Leo J. Kelly, former Ward 1 Councillor. This year, four awards were presented: to Dr. Rolf Knight, physician at the Center from the day it opened and a member of the National Health Center Services. Given to him for "excellence in service," it was presented by Lawrence Butler, Board treasurer.

Dr. Fred Dolgin, also with the Center for ten years and also a National Health Service physician; Gertrude Peter, a past Board president, treasurer and board member since its inception; and Ellen Hafer, Health Center director for the past five years, also received the Board of Directors Awards.

Hafer presented gifts to 10 year employees, Pamela Craig, Dr. Dolgin and Dr. Knight, Anne McFadd, R.N., James Riley, Edwina Robinson, Cynthia Roche-Cotter, R.N., Lois Roche, Andree Steen and Kathleen White; also to volunteer nurses, Kaye Jordan and Catherine Shea.

A gift of appreciation was given to Diane Luby, first director, now of Philadelphia.

Also recognized with gifts were past board presidents Jack Hacunda, president for five years; Peter Ryan, Marilyn Hamel, Trudy Peter, Judith Kolson and Betty Swanton.

Others included past members of the Board of Directors: Lillian Austin, Barbara Collins, James Goldrick, Jack Nigro, Peggy Nigro, Peggy O'Connor, Madelon Sibert, Debbie Timcoe, Rosemary Wahlberg, Dick Wainwright, Herbert Morgan, Barbara Lynch, Fred Kusser and Carol Schuerch.

League of Community Health Centers and past president of National Health Centers, also presented a citation, along with State Senator Paul Harold, Senate citation to the professional staff; and Rep. Stephen Tobin, a citation from the House of Representatives. Quincy Mayor Francis X. McCauley awarded citations to ten-year staff members.

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney presented a citation to Gertrude Peter for "10 years of outstanding dedication, only original Board member still serving."

A congratulatory letter was read from Congressman Brian Donnelly.

Among those introduced were Mark Mundy, Quincy Hospital Director; Councilors James Sheets and Timothy Cahill; Rosemary Wahlberg, Family Planning Director; and Peter Kolson, candidate for Ward 1 Councillor.

City Needs $4M For Landfill Costs

maintained.

"If they're going to be mandating something, they ought to be paying for it," Nutley said McGrath added, "It's another example of the state not doing what they're supposed to be doing for towns and cities."

Sheets explained that the main reason why the city finds itself struggling to pay the compliance order is because the state gave the city inappropriate landfill use guidelines.

"We followed the state guidelines, we were told it was the wrong thing," Sheets said.

After the meeting, Sheets, a mayoral candidate, said he would consider filing a lawsuit if elected.

"I would seriously consider bringing suit against the state as a result of their failure to provide proper guidelines to recapture as much money as possible. The problems that surfaced are from the site's guidelines," he said, adding "I would give consideration to a bond issue."

As for the lawsuit option, Colton said he is awaiting a state Supreme Judicial Court decision in a similar case brought by the town of Norfolk. He said the town won a ruling from the state auditor that the state should pay its landfill capping costs under a companion law to Prop 2 and a half.

The law, which the state claims does not apply to Norfolk's landfill, says the state must pay certain bills incurred because of obligations it forces on a municipality.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, who called the $4 million "phenomenal," said the city might have to pose a Prop. 2½ override question to voters to get funding. He said the community created the problem at the landfill because "we live in a throw-away society."

Chretien, who is chairman of the Quincy recycling committee, said the situation would be eased if the city expanded its paper recycling program.

"This is something that we did as a community. We have to pay the piper and basically it's our fault. We have to clean it up."

Chretien, who raised the idea of a bond issue, said, "It's a four million dollar bill that's going to come. I'm glad you told us today because it's going to come too fast as it is."

He also suggested setting aside about six acres as a compost facility for leaves and grass after the landfill revegetates. Colton said the landfill site could become a recreational area after the closing is complete.

The estimated $4 million would pay to put a clay cap over each of the landfill's three sections. The money would also include $500,000 for improvements to wetlands damaged by run-off from the dump.

The run-off led the state to order the site closed. In its decision, the court said the landfill was "an environmental disaster."

However, shortly after the site was closed, the Quincy landfill was not listed by the state among the 40 dirtiest landfill sites in the state. As a result, Quincy was not offered any state assistance to close the site, McCauley said.

According to the mayor, Quincy ran "a fairly good landfill," adding he believes the city should still be able to use it.

"There's no doubt in my mind that we should still be operating that landfill," he said.

"I've said no on certain issues because that is precisely what a leader has to say. He has to say no to what's bad for the city," he added.

One issue where the two candidates have taken opposite sides is the restoration of the Old Colony railroad. O'Connell said he supports it because he believes it will help alleviate the traffic congestion problem in Quincy.

However, Sheets is against the plan which he believes contains a "hidden agenda." He maintains that if the proposal goes through, Clean Harbors, Inc., which has proposed a hazardous waste incinerator in East Braintree, will use the rail to transport hazardous waste.

"I think it's time to say no to commuter rail. It masks the fact that the railroad will be used to transport toxic residuals," he said.

O'Connell also said Sheets has not been effective against development during his 16 years as councillor of Ward 4. "And," O'Connell added, "(Sheets) claims he says no to developers while accepting thousands of dollars from developers doing business in West Quincy."

Sheets countered that only 200 acres have been developed in West Quincy the last 16 years. Out of 800 acres, he noted that 600 are still not developed.

"Three out of four acres are still not developed. That's a good record," Sheets said, adding the council is in the process of rezoning 180 acres as open space. If rezoned, about 300 out of the remaining 600 acres will be open space.

"I think we've done an outstanding job fighting development in West Quincy. We fought the battles," he said, adding, "I have not supported one development project which has not had the support of the people."

In regard to contributions from developers, Sheets replied, "There have been developers who work very well and closely with the people. They've been good in the sense they have worked with the community."

"No, we haven't been able to prevent every development but three out of four acres is a record I'm very proud of."

Lastly, O'Connell said, "Quincy needs a mayor with innovative solutions, but I guess 'Just Say No' is the core of his message and of his candidacy. He will soon realize that the people of this city want a mayor who can do more than say no."

"But I do appreciate his taking an interest in my ads. Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery" to which Sheets replied, "I'll leave it to the people to judge whose ads have been innovative."

Cheney Suggests 'Change Clock, Battery Day' Oct. 29

Ward 1 Councillor Michael Cheney has asked Mayor Francis McCauley to proclaim Sunday, Oct. 29 "Change Your Clock-- Change Your Battery Day" in conjunction with the Quincy Fire Department's promotion for fire prevention.

Oct. 29 this year is when daylight savings time ends. As a result, clocks are moved back one hour. The switch would be a reminder to homeowners that the batteries in their smoke detectors as well as flashlights should be replaced with new ones.

Cheney noted that fires in Quincy ravage homes resulting in injuries and perhaps deaths each year. It is a requirement that each home have detectors in appropriate locations.

It is estimated that more than half of the detectors are inoperative because of old or missing batteries. Working smoke detectors double the chances of an occupant surviving a fire.

3 Face License Revocation If Back Taxes Not Paid

By JANE ARENA

Three Quincy businesses must pay in full delinquent property taxes for fiscal 1989 or face the penalty of having their licenses revoked, the License Board said Tuesday.

The board postponed action in three hearings concerning the payment of a total of more than $31,000. In two cases the taxes must be paid in full by Friday of this week or the owner of the businesses in question must appear before the board next Tuesday to face penalty.

In a third case, the board extended the deadline by one week, allowing the owner to pay the taxes in full by Friday of next week or appear before them Oct. 31.

George Montilio, owner of Montilio's Pastry Shop, 29 Chestnut St., owes the city a total of $22,122.59, including the interest on the amount which was due May 1, 1989.

Montilio assured the board he would pay the taxes in full by Friday of this week.

City Treasurer and Collector Dana Childs, who was before the board for the hearings, told the board that Mayor Francis McCauley had telephoned Montilio on the matter in June.

"This is the first I have heard from (Montilio)," Childs said.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey initially suggested a motion which would have closed Montilio's down on Friday afternoon unless the board received a call from Childs by that time confirming the payment.

Board Chairman John Gillis, however, said that the board should "accept (Montilio's) word" as a businessman. The board agreed that Montilio would have to appear before the board next Tuesday unless the taxes are paid in full by Friday, as promised.

Fire Chief Paul O'Connell said he does "not look lightly on delinquent taxes."

"The City and the state are under a financial burden right now, and everyone has the responsibility to pay taxes on time," he said, adding that his own fire department is operating with a reduced budget.

Montilio said he fully agreed with Chief O'Connell.

The board made the motion in a hearing concerning taxes owed by Santa Faren, owner of Stage One, Inc. doing business as Center Stage, 1585 Hancock St.

Faren owes the city $3,350.52 in delinquent taxes on property located in Wollaston Center. The taxes are from 1987 and also include a portion from 1989. Childs said. Childs said foreclosure action has been started on the property.

Faren said that she believes she has paid the 1987 taxes to a Norwood attorney, Warren Blair, when papers were passed on the property.

She said that she has written letters to the attorney, and that her own attorney, Stephen McGrath, has written letters on the issue as well.

Childs told the board that the morning of the hearing was the first time he had been made aware of this problem with the previous payment. He indicated that, had he been informed, he might have been able to assist in the matter.

Faren told the board that she would agree to pay the taxes by Friday of this week or appear before the board at their next meeting. She said she will then contact the attorney in Norwood. The final tax hearing concerns the payment of $5,733.07 in 1989 taxes by Elizabeth Taylor, owner of RICAP, doing business at 536 Washington St. Bar and Grill, 536 Washington St.

Childs told the board that he has had similar situations with Taylor in the past, but has always been able to sign a payment agreement with her and has not had a problem in the past.

Childs agreed with the board's decision to allow Taylor until Friday of next week to pay the taxes in full, including any interest that accrues at the rate of $2 per day.

Fire, Health Hazards Cited At Restaurant

Kelly's In The Square Restaurant is found in violation of "numerous" health and fire codes, according to a letter received by Fire Chief Paul O'Connell from Fire Prevention Officer Lt. Paul Caddy.

According to the letter, which was discussed at Tuesday's meeting of the License Board, the restaurant was inspected October 16 on the request of Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue. Gallahue was concerned about the conditions of an overflowing dumpster on the property.

The letter states that "the following violations were noted:

- Combustible (cartons/bags of garbage) piled around an overfilled dumpster present a fire hazard.
- Fire door from kitchen to stairwell is wedged open.
- Fire door to unoccupied third floor is broken; there is evidence of the homeless using this area for refuge.

• Additionally, there appears to be numerous health hazards in the vicinity of the dumpster and in the stairwell.

Gallahue also showed to the board photographs of the dumpster at the establishment, which, she noted is used by other businesses as well.

She said there were "flies and maggots" found in the area of the dumpster, and that it presents a health hazard.

Gallahue said that she had talked to owner Peter Kelly "at length" on the matter.

"It's gone beyond a health problem," she said, noting that other departments are also concerned.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey told the board that he sees "a serious problem with egress of the building."

Mulvey sent an inspector to Kelly's In The Square on Tuesday to investigate the report of the code violations.

"If the report is true," he said Tuesday, "we'll close (the establishment) down until it is cleaned up."

Mulvey said that his inspectors were instructed to issue Kelly an "exit way order," which means that Kelly must immediately adhere to the codes and clear the exits at the site.

If Kelly did not immediately comply with the order, Mulvey said Tuesday, the inspectors were told to close the establishment.

The board will issue a letter to Kelly, along with a copy of the letter to Chief O'Connell explaining the violations. The letter will also state that the board has on file photographs of the overfilled dumpster. Kelly will be instructed to appear before the board at next Tuesday's meeting.

Liquor Store License Granted

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Patricia A. Locarni, of R.A. Locarni liquor store, 371A Granite Ave., for a retail alcoholic beverage license for their new location, 372 Granite St., across the street.

She said her husband has purchased the building across the street.

Locarni told the board she does not have a specific date as to when the store will move, but estimated that it would be "by the end of November or in December."

She told the board the business is being evicted from its present location, but that she is content to be moving because of the condition of the building.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey noted that he is "very supportive" of the move because the Locarnis have said they would improve the new building to include accessibility for the handicapped.

Locarni said the building across the street is scheduled to be vacated by November, but that present tenants cannot move until their new quarters are ready.

The board noted that Locarni must have a location by December 1, when the license is up for renewal.

She told the board that she has an agreement with her present landlords to operate from her present location until she moves.

The board advised her to notify them by December 1 as to the date she would be moving her business. This will guard against the possibility of her license not being renewed for next year.

O' NO

Jim Sheets is a man who knows when to say no. He said no to the so-called "MWRA compromise" because underneath all the sludge, it's really a sellout. He said no to a noisy commuter rail running through Quincy that would only benefit South Shore residents while it added to our traffic congestion. For 16 years as City Councillor, he has said no to developers who wanted to overdevelop Quincy at the expense of our neighborhoods. And now, he's saying no to putting Peter O', one of Quincy's largest real estate developers, into the Mayor's office. Vote for Jim Sheets. Say yes to a proven, experienced leader. Fine Calls For More Community Involvement In School System

The Quincy Public School system can be improved and the community enhanced if the community is involved in the process of shaping the education of children, says Gary Fine, a candidate for a four-year seat on the Quincy School Committee.

One way to foster involvement, Fine said, is to provide more information to the community. "The community has to take an active role in shaping the direction of our schools into the next decade and beyond. One way of doing this," he said, "is to inform parents and other concerned people of the goals, problems and policy decisions we face and to ask for their support in making our educational programs work successfully."

To do this, Fine said, several sources should be made available to those who do want to get involved with the educational process in our neighborhoods.

Fine recommends:

- Establishing school committee hours, so that parents and others could talk to school committee members on a more personal level. This would provide a forum for information exchange, he noted.
- Creating a weekly newspaper column, written by school committee members on a rotating basis. Fine explained the column could be utilized to provide information and editorial comment on happenings within the schools.
- Televising meetings through local cable to allow citizens unable to attend the meetings to receive the same information in their homes.

Citing the problems facing today's youth and the pressures on teachers to educate them to meet those challenges, Fine said more input needs to come from parents to make certain the system works to educate their children.

"The community must commit itself to the education process, for its own good. The benefits to be reaped are too great not to be pursued," Fine said.

Praising those already actively involved in the schools, Fine said more help is needed to assure the educational values in the community are not overlooked.

"Those who are involved now are dedicated and hardworking, but we still need more help. Where better to start than in the homes of our concerned citizens," Fine asked.

"Education really does start in the home, by promoting attendance, motivating performance and acknowledging achievements," he said.

Golden Delivers Feisty Speech At Democratic Brunch

Before some 400 people Sunday at the George F. Bryan Post in Quincy, Sen. William Golden (D-Weymouth) gave what some listeners called an "electrifying" and "feisty" speech about environmental protection and education which he considers key for the 1990s.

Golden, a candidate for lieutenant governor, declared he is running for state-wide office to pass onto his own two children the opportunities and quality of life he experienced as a youth.

He was the keynote speaker for the second annual Quincy Democratic City Committee brunch. Among the guests were gubernatorial candidates Francis Bellotti and Evelyn Murphy, Attorney General James Shannon, Secretary of State Michael Connelly and Richard Krause, a candidate for treasurer.

Most of the city's elected officials were also present.

Golden a former Quincy resident and past city solicitor, strongly opposed the proposal by Clean Harbors, Inc., to build a hazardous waste incinerator at its plant on the Fore River in East Braintree. He sharply criticized the process by which Clean Harbors is attempting to receive a license from the state to operate the plant.

Golden explained the vital need to preserve the environment. Because of environmental problems, he said, people are already paying "hidden taxes."

As an example, he noted many citizens buy bottled water because of doubts about the quality of tap water. He then told the attentive audience, "This is not a birds and bunnies issue. This is about who is going to get sick and die because of hazardous waste."

Addressing education, Golden said the country's economic well being depends on the skill levels of the nation's workforce. "Think of your son or daughter on a race track with a son or daughter from Bonn, Berlin, Paris or Tokyo. We have to guarantee that they have the education, the training, the skills, the job opportunities to get on the race track and compete toe to toe."

The Democratic City Committee also established the first Dennis F. Ryan Award to be given to members long exemplifying party ideals and values. According to Committee Chairman Daniel Raymond, "Dennis Ryan was a great person who worked to expand the party back in a time when the city was overwhelmingly Republican. Democrats like him should not be forgotten."

The first award was presented to the Ryan family.

Seven To Be Honored At Houghs Neck 'Good Neighbor' Night

Seven residents will be honored at the 33rd annual "Good Neighbor" and Honor Awards Night of the Houghs Neck Community Council Saturday, Nov. 4, at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, Darrow St.

Tickets are $8 per person for the 7 p.m. roast beef dinner which will follow hors d'oeuvres at 6 p.m. They may be obtained from Joanne Bythrow, chairman, at the Houghs Neck Community Center and at the Houghs Neck Superette.

Receiving plaques will be Bernard E. McCourt, 1989 "Good Neighbor"; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gordon for civic contributions; John Clancy, "Distinguished Senior Citizen"; and for heroism, Edward Engren, George Doyle and Joseph Marsden.

McCourt's family were summer residents since 1920, later settling permanently in Houghs Neck. He is cited for his helpfulness with older citizens, providing transportation, being a tour guide for bus trips, providing supplies to both Houghs Neck churches.

A member of the Coast Guard and the Navy during World War II, he is a member of George F. Bryan Post VFW and the DAV. He is best known for his 39 years controlling the Fore River Bridge with his brother, the late William McCourt. During that time, he was a paper cutter and maintenance man for Century Paper Company in Randolph, where he continues part-time work.

Owner of the "Joy, Too", McCourt was 1974 Commodore of Quincy Yacht Club, and in 1987, president of Quincy Bay Race Week, and continues as a member of the Commodores Club of America.

In 1965, McCourt, then a widower with five children, married Mary O'Neil, a widow with four children. They added another daughter, Margaret, still living at home. The other children are: Patricia Steen, Kathy Bagen and Janice O'Neil, all of Weymouth; Bernard "Skip" McCourt of Hingham; Mary Ann McCourt of Halifax; Jeanne Galvin of Plymouth, Paul O'Neil and Maureen Lyons of Wall St., Quincy residents. They have 12 grandchildren.

Robert E. and Ruth (Koehler) Gordon will be honored for their civic contributions. Gordon has been a troop committeeman for Boy Scout Troop 6 for many years, chairman since 1975, and treasurer of Cub Scout troop 6 nearly as long. His wife has conducted rummage sales and fund-raising events for the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, where she has been a member since 11 years old; has been president of the Mothers Club and is now a Diaconate member. Her husband is a retired sheet metal mechanic, member of the Retirees Club of Local 17, and works part-time. Their children are Deanna "Nibbsy" Allan, R.N. and Martin Gordon, both of Houghs Neck. They have four grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

John Clancy, 1989 "Distinguished Senior Citizen", retired, was employed by the Quincy Public Works Department for 32 years. He is a volunteer at the Houghs Neck Meal Site, delivers meals to shut-ins, and prior to that provided transportation to the Martinson St. site and delivered meals weekends from Quincy Hospital. He is a member of Houghs Neck

Senior Citizens. His children are Kathleen Clancy, a VA nurse now in San Jose, CA; Arlene Finn of Hanson, also a nurse; Maryellen Steen and Noreen Meyers, whose homes are next to his on Bird St.; there are nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Engren, Doyle and Marsden are being honored for their July 8 rescue of three adults and two children from Manet Ave., who were thrown from their boat when it capsized near Wollaston during a sudden Quincy Bay squall. Rescued from the overturned Jacobs' boat were Dawn Jacobs, John and Kathy Gomez and their children, Jared, 8, and Randy, 4, all neighbors.

Engren, a Houghs Neck resident for 22 years, is married to Georgianna Brundie, a Houghs Neck native. He works for a Boston wrecking company. Married 28 years, their children are Debra Melanson, Charles Engren and Todd Engren, and one grandchild, Crystal, all living at home.

Doyle worked more than 35 years for Pneumatic Scale, retiring in June. He was a radio operator in the Army during World War II. Married in 1952 to Isabel (Raymer), a Houghs Neck native, their children are Debbie Cheney of Carver, and Laurel Doyle at home, a Post Office worker in Canton.

Marsden, with 15 years Houghs Neck residence, is a welder for Industrial Engineering in Braintree. Married to the former Rita Bleiler 21 years ago, their children are Kimberly, 16 and Laura Ann, 13.

"SAVE OUR HOSPITAL"

In 1986, the Hospital Corporation of America (HCA), the Hospital Board of Managers, the Mayor and the City Council, decided to build a new $60 million dollar Quincy City Hospital. That state-of-the-art facility opened October 14, 1989. On July 22, 1989, HCA announced a surplus at Quincy City Hospital, enough to cover a projected operating deficit and still leave a reserve. In August the word "City" was dropped from the hospital name.

On August 16, 1989, Mayor McCauley announced that he would sell the hospital or give it away to the bond holder, FHA, HUD, (The Department of Housing and Urban Development).

August 16, 1989/City Edition

Mayor considers selling Quincy Hospital

By Ray McEachern
The Patriot Ledger

- Give the hospital to the Federal Housing Authority, the agency which provided first-in-the-nation bond insurance for the hospital's $60 million modernization project nearing completion.
- Sell the hospital, perhaps to the private company that now runs it for the city.

The new Quincy City Hospital is the only public hospital in America with a construction bond guaranteed by H.U.D. What is HUD's roll in all this???? Newsweek, August 7, 1989, had this to say about H.U.D....

16 NEWSWEEK : AUGUST 7, 1989

NATIONAL AFFAIRS

The HUD Ripoff

For sheer hypocrisy and cynicism, few scandals can match the fraud and mismanagement at Housing and Urban Development. It's emerged as a rampant case of influence peddling, favoritism and lust for power.

Why was it a good idea to build a brand new 60 million dollar hospital in 1986 but a better idea to give it away or sell it in 1989 when the hospital has a six million dollar surplus???

Why is the Mayor so anxious to sell or give away the hospital before he leaves office????

Why has the H.C.A. Management refused ... for 8 years ... to submit its annual budget to the City Council for review, as required by law??????

Why has H.C.A. discharged hundreds of career nurses and employees and replaced them with higher priced contractors???

Why did the Worcester City Hospital fire H.C.A. management????

City fires HCA Management

By George B. Griffin
Staff Reporter

The city manager today fired HCA Management Co., the company that runs City Hospital, alleging financial irregularities that have left the city owing $16 million in Medicare overpayments.

At issue are allegations that the hospital accepted, and spent, up to $16 million in double payments from Medicare during fiscal years 1988 and 1989.

Quincy Hospital workers have aired charges of irregularities, mismanagement, waste, declining patient care, union busting and harassment of career employees by the H.C.A. management of Quincy (City) Hospital.

The "Save Our Hospital Committee" has been formed to seek accountability and public scrutiny of our public facility.

The City Council reviews all department budgets except one ... the hospital.

A suit has been filed in Superior Court by former Mayor Joseph LaRaia, and former City Treasurer Franklin Joy, to force review of the hospital's finances under municipal finance laws.

Former Mayor LaRaia stated:

"We can take action now to recapture the hopes and expectations that Quincy Hospital means to us as employees, professional associates, public officials, patients and the citizens of our community. Do we sit back and wait for the inevitable results or do we grasp the only opportunity that we have to protect our hospital from those who have private objectives that compete with our public interest."

"To the end, the "Save Our Hospital Committee" has been recently formed to seek accountability and public scrutiny of our public facility.

You can do your small share by supporting our first major fund raiser scheduled for November 2, 8 p.m. to 12 p.m. at the Morrisette Post Home, Quincy.

The proceeds will go to pursuing the legal challenge that was filed in Superior Court that tests the laws and methods used by the private management firm in the operation of the hospital.

"We believe that we will achieve our objectives and make Quincy Hospital a viable community health facility for all."

Yours Sincerely,

John J. Keefe

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We believe there is as much room for the pioneer today as when this hemisphere was virgin wilderness. There isn't a town that doesn't need men and women of spirit to act - to cut down the dead wood of lethargy and indifference, to build as did the pioneers of old homes for those who followed. There are still roads that need to be paved that new life and interest may flow into the community, making it a more desirable place in which to live... There is room for pioneering in your own job. Have you gone as far as you can on your particular roadway of life - or would greater knowledge help you further? The tool of learning is yours for the taking. You have to want to use all the advantages within your reach if you are to move out into the unknown... You can also pioneer in friendship. How narrow is your circle? Have you confined yourself to a few people - or have you gone beyond and in serving your fellow men learned to know them? There is no form of pioneering that is richer in results than this. Look upon those with whom you come in contact as the pioneer did of the chance wayfarer who passed his way - as a welcome guest from whom much could be learned.

True, it takes courage to be a pioneer. It means work and a willingness to learn; A spirit of helpfulness with no thought of reward... How do you rate as a pioneer?

A Tradition of Trust For Over 70 Years.

Just before World War I, Sweeney Funeral Homes' first location was established in a small storefront on the corner of Hancock and School streets. Dennis S. Sweeney, the homes' first funeral director is remembered as a rather tall man, who had a beautiful, yet somber voice. Dressed in his characteristic top hat and tails, his singing was requested at funeral processions for over 30 years.

When he died in 1948, he entrusted the continuation of the family-owned tradition of instinctive and genuine concern for the city's bereaved families to his nephew, M. Joseph Sweeney.

Since 1917, Sweeney Funeral Homes have always meant the finest, most traditional service that Quincy has to offer. But we've also changed with the needs of the times, whatever they were. As early as 1940, we began offering pre-planning as a way for wise Quincy residents to plan their future.

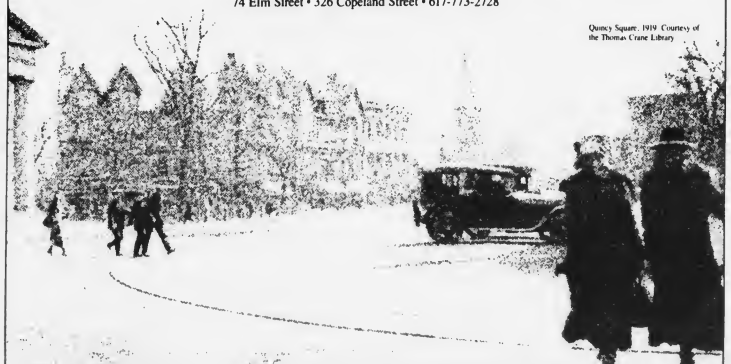

Today, with funeral costs one of the top five major expenses for most families, pre-arrangements make better sense than ever before. Call Dennis Sweeney, our third-generation funeral director, at (617) 773-2728. Our family has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years. It's a Tradition of Trust that stands as our guarantee.

Strict Blasting Ordinance Approved By City Council

An ordinance requiring developers to conduct an extensive survey prior to any blasting in Quincy was unanimously approved by the City Council Monday.

According to Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets who introduced the order in May of 1988, the ordinance will give city neighborhoods more protection from developers.

Before any blasting can be done on site, an extensive survey on the area must be conducted. Information from the survey will then be filed with city and state departments.

"(The ordinance) provides much greater protection for neighborhoods," Sheets said.

Powers Supports Expanding QVTS Programs Through Linkage

Expressing concern about the low enrollment at Quincy Vocational Technical School, Mary Jane Powers, a candidate for the two-year school committee seat, said she supports linkage and the further development of partnerships with the private sector.

In a recent letter to Mayor Francis McCauley and School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci, Powers suggested that the city work out a deal with the MWRA and developers of the Third Harbor Tunnel to strengthen and expand the school's programs.

In her letter, Powers noted that only 60 students are in this year's freshmen class. The school presently has a total of 295 students.

Responding to the low enrollment figure, Ricci has proposed that the city adopt a Quincy School-Community Partnership program. Powers said the program is worth pursuing and requires additional outreach and development.

Although opposed to the permanent siting of a sludge facility at the former General Dynamics shipyard, Powers said she is a "realist" and maintains that the city should negotiate "the most favorable agreements" with the MWRA.

"In addition to requiring the MWRA headquarters to be on site, we should also extract financial remuneration for educational training and equipment payable directly to the school budget. The processing plant will require a steady supply of skilled workers to operate, maintain and repair specialized equipment needed to carry out the project," Powers said.

"Quincy Vocational Technical School should be at the forefront in providing skilled workers to fill the labor needs of the MWRA," she added.

However, this could not be done now because the school lacks the necessary equipment. However, if the city negotiated a long-term (25-30 year) financial contribution to purchase up to date, state of the art equipment and tools, students would have the opportunity to learn the job skills required to succeed in today's workplace, Powers explained.

As for the construction of the Third Harbor Tunnel, Powers said the project will involve a number of specialty trades and require the coordinated efforts of a diverse workforce over the next decade.

"Our city will be asked to bear the brunt of increased traffic congestion because of the re-routing of commuters and heavy equipment. Labor groups have already alluded to the reality of a lack of available skilled workers to fill the needed positions."

"This could cause the unions and project managers to look well beyond Quincy and the Greater Boston area to bring in skilled workers while our graduates labor in the unemployment line," Powers said.

"It is prime time for Quincy to approach the project managers and trade unions and negotiate for the future of QVTS students. A cooperative agreement should be sought where Quincy gains additional funding for tools and equipment as well as specialized training in both the classroom and on the job site.

"In return, the project would gain skilled workers who are ready to go to work on day one with no need for introductory training," she added.

According to Powers, either or both these proposals would strengthen and expand vo-tech programs. "They would attract new students and increase enrollment while simultaneously fulfilling the expectations of business that schools prepare students with the skills required in the workplace.

"The beauty of these proposals is that if they are further developed and accepted they would cost the city of Quincy only the time required to plan and oversee the projects. There would be no expenditure to additional funds, a big plus in these fiscally troubled times."

Cerasoli's Drug Free School Zone Bill Signed Into Law

Legislation originally filed by Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli, D-Quincy, requiring a two year mandatory prison sentence for anyone selling illicit drugs within 1,000 feet of school property was signed into law recently and has become a major weapon in the Commonwealth's fight against drug abuse.

The measure, known as the Drug Free School Zone bill, was incorporated into an anti-drug legislative package aimed at stopping the sale of illegal drugs near schools.

"I am pleased that Governor Dukakis included my proposal (H-4665) in his alliance Against Drugs program," said Cerasoli.

"Anyone thinking about dealing drugs on or near school property should think twice because if they are caught and convicted now, it means a minimum two years in the slammer. A fine of not less than $1,000 and up to $10,000 may also be imposed."

Cerasoli said his legislation initially called for a five-year sentence with no chance for parole eligibility. "However, the new law as passed, represents a positive force in protecting our young people and establishing drug free school zones," he added.

Phyllis Ryan Sells

$2,007,500 In Five Weeks

Ask Phyllis Ryan, a real estate broker in Quincy, how the market is and she'll tell you it's "busy and healthy."

Ryan, a perennial top seller in Jack Conway and Company's Wollaston office, just completed eight sales in the past five weeks for a total of $2,007,500. The sales, all residential properties were as follows: Quincy, $100,000; Quincy, $127,500; Quincy, $158,000; Quincy, $160,000;

Quincy, $244,000; Hanover $218,000; Milton, $450,000 and Marshfield, $550,000. Her totals do not include several of her listings which were sold by other Conway brokers.

According to Ryan, there's no reason houses shouldn't be selling right now as long as the properties are priced fairly. The banks and mortgage companies have plenty of money to lend and the rate hovering right around 10% for a fixed rate 30 year mortgage, is affordable to most buyers.

"This is still a buyer's market," Ryan concluded. "Although the number of listings offered for sale has decreased since the spring of 1989, there is still a healthy competition amongst the sellers for buyers."

Tips On Protecting Your Property At Halloween

Houses throughout Massachusetts are being decorated for the celebration of Halloween.

To prepare for this annual observance when many "tricks" are performed on local property, the Massachusetts Association of Realtors offers the following tips to homeowners to keep their home and property safe from vandals on Halloween.

Before the "betwisting hour" approaches. Cut your lawn and trim your hedges, particularly those that may obscure your view of the property from inside the house. A well-cared for home will discourage would-be vandals, while an ill-kept home is an invitation for trouble.

Keep your yard and porch free of such items as lawn mowers, hoses, outdoor furniture, barbecue grills, and other objects which might be tempting to vandals. Removing these items from the path of trick-or-treaters also ensures that youngsters will not be hurt by tripping over an object they did not see in the dark or because they were wearing a costume mask. Also, put your garbage cans away or out of sight.

Park your car in a garage, if possible. If not, make sure the car is locked and parked in a well-lighted area. Do not leave packages or other valuables on the seats in plain sight of passersby. Also lock tool sheds and other outdoor storage facilities.

Llluminate your property with any outdoor lighting available i.e. porch lights, garage lights and lawn lights. Leave lights on inside your home as well. Ask your neighbors to do the same for their property. Pranksters cruising an area in a car are more likely to avoid a neighborhood that is well-lit. Check street lights several weeks before Halloween and report lights that need replacing.

Plan to be home on Halloween, if possible. If you must be away, ask a friend to "house-sit." If you are planning to offer treats to costumed children, use common sense when opening your door. Do not invite trick-or-treaters into your home unless you recognize them as neighborhood children.

Support community-sponsored approved trick-or-treat times during daylight or dusk hours and ask concerned adults in the area to accompany children on their treks. The presence of responsible adults will minimize harmful pranks.

If in the unfortunate event your home is vandalized, report it immediately to the police. Unreported crime simply eliminates any chance of the vandals being caught and retribution being made.

By following these suggestions, you will decrease the risk of vandalism to your home and property, thereby keeping your neighborhood safe for trick-or-treaters.

CITY OF QUINCY RECYCLING PROGRAM

If you are participating in Quincy's Paper Recycling program, thank you and keep up the good work!

If you are not recycling, the Quincy Recycling Committee asks for your help.

Because Quincy pays a high price for trash disposal, the City can save money through its paper recycling program. Since it started on May 1st, enough people have joined in to make the program a modest success.

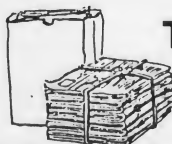

But Quincy can do better! If just two-thirds of the City residents recycled, we would save over $100,000. Many communities have even higher rates of participation.

Times are getting tough fiscally and environmentally. Recycling is one way you can help to make a difference.

For information about Quincy's paper recycling program or about Quincy's Recycling Committee, call 773-1380, Ext. 210.

The former Furnace Brook School will be dedicated to the Charles A. Bernazzani School during a ceremony Sunday, Oct. 22 at 2 p.m. at the school, 701 Furnace Brook Parkway.

The public is invited to attend. The dedication will feature remarks and greetings by many speakers, including Mayor Francis X. McCauley, School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci, School Principal Morrie Hibbard and other city officials and clergy.

It will be highlighted by a portrait unveiling of Mr. Bernazzani, who was employed by Quincy Public Schools for 34 years. Members of his family will unveil the portrait which has been commissioned by the Charles A. Bernazzani Parent Teacher Organization.

The ceremony will also feature special tributes such as musical renditions by children and faculty of the Bernazzani School under the direction of Mrs. Gay Carbonneau, a presentation by the Quincy Public Schools principals and special remembrances by parents and former students of the Furnace Brook School. The school will hold an open house after the dedication. Refreshments will be served.

Last May, the Quincy School Committee voted to rename the school the Charles A. Bernazzani School in honor of the former director of Elementary Education. Mr. Bernazzani died in August, 1988, after being stricken ill at a school committee meeting.

During his career, he was principal of three different Quincy elementary schools, worked to develop elementary school curriculum and promoted theater and poetry in the schools.

He was also actively involved in implementing clinical supervision.

Before coming to Quincy in 1953, Mr. Bernazzani had been a teacher in Beverly and Boston. He taught at the Lincoln Elementary School and later at the Beechwood Knoll, Nathaniel Hunting and Furnace Brook schools.

He was assistant principal at Nathaniel Hunting from 1964 to 1969 and principal at Gridley Bryant and Beechwood Knoll from 1970 to 1974.

From 1974 to 1987, he was principal of the Furnace Brook School.

Dedication speakers include School Committeeman Stephen Durkin, and Eugene Creedon, director of Elementary and Secondary Education in Quincy.

The North Quincy High School Stringed Ensemble, under the director of Irvin Pinkofsky, will provide musical accompaniment.

Houghs Neck Center Plans Oct. 24 Trip

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer

What About Fighting Back?

Have you ever wondered what you might do if you were the victim of a crime. Would you try to resist? Would you try to stay cool so that physical violence could be avoided? What if you are a senior citizen, how should you act?

We can't tell you what to in a given situation, but we would like to point out a few factors. First, although you will read about it from time to time, the cases in which senior citizens are actually attacked and injured are extremely rare. If you are the victim of a purse snatch, robbery or mugging, your safest course of action is to remain calm and cooperate with your assailant. Give him whatever he wants, money, purse or other items of value. Remember that your life and personal safety are much more important than any items you may be carrying.

If the situation begins to turn violent, there are things that you can do that are less hazardous than attempting to fight back. You may wish to make an escape attempt, for example, or throw an object through the window while screaming loudly, or anything to attract attention. You may be able to protect yourself by getting under a table or bed.

There may be situations, such as if you feel your life is in danger, where you feel that you must fight back. If you do resist, remember that you may not be able to overcome your attacker with brute force. Your best bet is to try to disable him by attacking a weak point -- the eyes, throat or groin. Amazingly, many persons in this situation are afraid to injure the criminal who is attacking them. This attitude virtually assures that their resistance will not be effective in disabling the assailant, and the victim may be seriously injured.

We also do not advise the use of knives or guns. You must remember that any weapon that you can use on an attacker, can be taken away from you and used on you. Chemical Mace may be an alternative weapon that you might look into, but you must be familiar with its use and have a permit to carry it.

Fighting back is an extremely dangerous course of action. We do not necessarily recommend it. If you follow some of the crime prevention tips we have given you, you may be able to avoid getting into a situation where you will be the victim of a crime.

Presidents Have Work Cut Out At Brookline

Despite a 36-16 loss to Newton North last Friday night, Quincy football coach Jack Raymer saw some positive things and felt the game was much closer than the final score.

The Presidents (2-3) will play Brookline Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at Northeastern's Parsons Field.

Brookline (4-1) has won four in a row after an opening day loss to Wellesley. It has wins over Medford, North Quincy, Malden and Cambridge Rindge and Latin. Quincy romped, 29-8, last year.

"We were very much in the game until second half fumbles ruined us," said Raymer. "I saw a lot of positive things and was especially happy at the way our runner attack clicked after a very poor showing the week before."

Mark Hogan rushed 21 times for 108 yards and Lou Pagnani had 47 yards. Mike Flavin did a good job at quarterback and passed for both Quincy touchdowns.

"Tom Morrell, as usual, had a great two-way game as did Jot Baker," Raymer said. "I moved Tony Maddred from offensive tackle to defensive tackle and he is going to help bolster our defense."

Newton took an 8-0 lead in the opening quarter when Brandon Hehir scored from the one and Hehir passed to David Quinn for the two-point conversion.

Quincy received a tough break in the second quarter when it held for three downs on the two but a questionable penalty gave Brookline another chance and Dave Ratta scored from the two as time ran out. The Presidents controlled the early going in the third quarter and a fumble recovery by Dave Johnston put them in business on Newton's 34. On the first play Flavin hit Patnani with a short pass and Pagnani went all the way down the sidelines. Flavin hit Chris Walker for the two-point conversion.

Quincy held thanks to a sack by Joe Baker and the Presidents took over on Newton's 49. But Quincy fumbled the ball away. Newton failed to score that time but a second Quincy fumble led to David Lewis' 22-yard scoring run.

A third fumble set up still another Newton score as Hehir scored from the one and a 30-8 lead. Flavin (9 for 19 for 134 yards) found Walker for a 57-yard scoring bomb.

Ted Dalicando's seven-yard run capped the scoring for the night.

Quincy Freshmen Tie 6-6

The Quincy High freshmen football team remained unbeaten following a hard fought, 6-6, tie with Newton North.

The Presidents defense allowed just three first downs during the game and the Tigers' lone touchdown was scored on an interception return.

Eric MacFarlane paced the Quincy defense with two sacks and seven solo tackles. The Presidents sacked the Newton quarterback nine times and caused three turnovers.

Rob Kootle scored on a 60-yard bootleg for Quincy's touchdown. The President offense was hindered by four turnovers.

Quincy will face Brookline Friday at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Manets, Apaches Post Convincing Shutouts

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Shutouts were the order of the day in Quincy Youth Football action last week as the Houghs Neck Manets steamrolled the Squantum Sailors, 26-0, and the North Quincy Apaches turned back the West Quincy Elks, 22-0.

The Manets remained unbeaten and have yet to be scored upon this season. Houghs Neck is alone in first place with a 4-0 record.

Mike Kane of the Manets recovered a fumble at the Squantum 34-yard line to set up the first touchdown of the game. Quarterback Brian McPartlin passed to Ed Kenney for nine yards and hit Jeff Craig on the next play for a 25-yard TD.

Harold Mortel recovered a fumble at the Sailor 33 to set up the next score, the first of three TDs for Sean Herron. The Manets running back scored on runs of 30, 46 and 32 yards. The final TD was set up by an interception by Craig. McPartlin also rushed for a two-point conversion.

Brendon Anderson, Brian Franklin, Peter Yeomans, Mike Kowilick, Pat Laydon, and Terence Manning played well for the Sailors.

Also playing strong games for the Manets were Joe Kelly, Ashley Davis, Michael Bartlett, and Jamie Schatzel.

The Elks played the Apaches tough but penalties and turnovers caught up with West Quincy.

Quarterback Dan Duncan scored North Quincy's first TD on a 10-yard run in the first quarter. Duncan's pass for the conversion points was batted down by the Elks' Kevin Carey.

Duncan connected with Justin Ackerman for a two-yard scoring pass just before halftime. Jeremy Gott scored the two-point conversion on a reverse for a 14-0 Apache lead.

The Elks defense stiffened in the second half but the offense was unable to score on a tough Apache Defense.

The Apaches iced it late in the game when Sean Nee scored from three yards out and Chris Chaggarris ran for the conversion.

Brendan Brack, Mike Elder, Carey, Bill Morrissey, Jason Sova, Rich Gorman, and Carey played well for West Quincy.

The Apaches got solid efforts from Mike Koski, Sean Halpin, Dave Carey, Steve Rayne, Jason Picardi, Jason Fennessy, and Chaggarris.

This Sunday at 1 p.m. the Quincy Point Panthers will battle the Manets and at 2:30 p.m. the Elks will tangle with the Sailors at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

North Quincy 28, Silver Lake 12 Raiders Face Major Test From Revere

By TOM SULLIVAN

Ordinarily you are happy with a 16-point win, but North Quincy football coach Ken McPhee was not all smiles after the Raiders defeated Silver Lake, 28-12, last Saturday.

North, which had to escape six fumbles, two inside Silver Lake's 10, faces a major test Friday night at Veterans Memorial Stadium when it faces Revere at 7 p.m.

Revere, which had lost 21 games in a row, is 4-1 with wins over Malden, Wakefield, Somerville and Peabody and only a loss to unbeaten Arlington. Last year North won, 21-6.

"We just had far too many fumbles and we can't afford to have another game like that against Revere," McPhee said. "Three times we were inside their 10 and fumbled it away."

McPhee had words of praise for the defense of Scott Kemp, Alex Malasi, Dan Gilmartin, who intercepted a pass and returned for a score; Kevin MacDougall, who returned a kickoff 80 yards for a score; Scott Leonard, who has four sacks and several other tackles; Mike Doherty and Bill Earley. He also lauded the secondary of MacDougall, Gilmartin, Desmond Bellot, Gary Rawdon and Keith Gott.

He singled out the efforts of Kemp, Malasi, Evan Kiley, Angelo Karanis, Strout, Gilmartin, Gott, Earley and Dave Kiley on offense.

Gilmartin had a fine game, rushing 20 times for 196 yards. Dave Kiley rushed for 72 and Gott 41.

North scored early when Gilmartin scored from the one following a 35-yard pass to Evan Kiley. Chris Deshler's kick added the extra point.

The Lakers bounced right back and Frank Martin raced 48 yards for a score but the conversion try failed.

Later in the opening quarter MacDougall returned the kickoff 87 yards to make it 13-6.

The Lakers moved to within one when Mike Hovey scored from the one and North led, 13-12, at the half.

Gilmartin intercepted a pass and returned it 20 yards for a score and Rich Brooks passed to him for the two-point conversion.

Dave Kiley added the final touchdown and Deshler kicked the point.

North Jayvees Roll 20-0

By PETE ZOIA

Following a scoreless first quarter, the ever improving North Quincy Junior Varsity gridsters put on a 61 yard drive, climaxed by a 10 yard run for a touchdown by Chris Murray.

Soon afterwards, a 12 yard completion from Rich Brooks to Mike Herman put six more points on the scoreboard. Brooks then found Chris Melchin all alone in the end zone for two more points.

There wasn't any more scoring until the final period. North put together a 53 yard offensive march that situated the ball on the Silver Lake five yard line. Here Murray worked his way across the goal line for his second touchdown of the afternoon.

Everyone on the Raider squad played. Jon D'Angelo gained some good yardage on the counter play. Don Anderson again shared his share of passes. Jason April again intercepted an enemy pass, as he did in his previous game.

Coaches Tom Carter and Peter Chrism praised the defensive play of Mike Oliva at nose guard. Others lauded for their stellar defensive work were Mark Kelleher, Sean Maran, Chris McCallum, Mike Picariello and Melchin.

The Northerners record to date is four wins and one loss. The next opponent will be Revere next Monday at home.

Leo Shea Wins Sun Football Contest On A Tiebreaker

Leo Shea of Wollaston won a tiebreaker with three other Quincy residents to capture the $25 prize in the Quincy Sun Football Contest last week.

Shea picked seven of 11 games correctly including upsets by Detroit and Houston. Shea predicted that the total points in the Redskins-Giants game would be 38. The actual score was 20-17 for a total of 37.

Shea, who lives on Elm Ave., barely edged Ed Trainor of Vassall St., who also picked seven games correctly and predicted 39 points for a tiebreaker. Joe Bernard of Franklin St. (42 for tiebreaker) and Eddie Dunn, Sr. of Cleaves St. (47 for tiebreaker) also came close.

Shea has recently started a new business, Lottery Players Service, at 2 Billings Rd., North Quincy. Shea enjoys sports and plays baseball in an over-30 men's league. He lives with his wife Jean, Son Patrick and daughters Karen and Laura.

North Frosh Win, 18-0

The closest that the Silver Lake Frosh got to the North Quincy goal line was the Raider 48 in the second quarter. This tells something about the North defense which played a superb game.

North got off to a quick lead when Liam Higgins passed to Pat Shea to the 10 yard line, and then Mark Sinclair swept around his right end for the first score.

Shortly after the second period started, Shea, who took over the quarterbacking due to an injury to Higgins, sent Sinclair around the right flank again for a 59 yard tally.

There were no more scoring opportunities as the half ended, North Quincy 12, Silver Lake 0.

Another explosive play for North occurred on the first play of the second half. Keith Lentini broke off his left side and scampered 63 yards for the final touchdown of the game.

North had another chance to score late in the final quarter when the Silver Lake kicker dropped the ball on the fourth down where the Raiders took over on the 10.

Here Coach Kevin Kelly freely substituted while Silver Lake kept their first unit in the game. North was unable to get further than the five yard line, as the losers took over but were unable to produce any yardage due to the fine defensive play of Josh Gott and Jason Getz.

The present record is three wins, one loss, and one tie for the young Raiders.

"We are playing very well at the present time, but because of a mix up we are not scheduled to play Revere this week. We are planning to have an inter-squad scrimmage," stated Coach Kelly.

Assistant Coach Dean Zoia was impressed with the booming kick-offs of Bill Delegetore which put Silver Lake in poor field position. Delegetore was the first player down the field to make the tackles also.

-- PETE ZOIA

Keohane's Edges Federal, Bersani, UCT Tie

Keohane's edged Colonial Federal, 3-2, and Bersani Brothers and U.C.T. played to a 5-5 standoff in Quincy Youth Hockey Pee Wee Division action.

Tom Hawes, Joshua Wingate and Chris Grant were the goal scorers for Keohanes with Eric Oliva, Jimmy Gallagher and Grant each having an assist and Tom Moriarty passing for two.

Craig Pinkham and Joe McPhee scored for Colonial Federal as Ronnie McGann had an assist.

Bersani Brothers received a balanced scoring attack with Pat Connolly, JJ Farrell, Bob Flannery, Jamie Boire and Patrick Tevenan scored the goals and Barry Canavan and Boire had assists.

U.C.T. was paced by two goals from Mike McKinnon and goals by Jamie Murphy, Billy Coughlin and A.J. Carthas. Chris McArde had two assists, Jason Fennelly, Lee Hughes, Carthas and Coughlin had one each.

Quincy Boys Under 12 Win Pepperell Soccer Tourney

The Quincy Youth Soccer Boys Under 12 Tournament Team put together a string of seven straight victories, scoring 30 goals, to capture the first place trophy in the fourth annual Pepperell Fall Classic 6 on 6 Soccer Tournament.

The stellar goaltending of Tommy Sullivan and Joe McCarthy provided the spark for the team that allowed only four goals in seven games. Sullivan posted three shutouts and McCarthy one. In the final game of the qualifying round against Smithfield, Rhode Island, Sullivan made his most spectacular save as he pulled down a bullet shot from the top corner that was labelled for a sure goal. McCarthy led the team in the second game of the semi-final round against Cambridge with a diving save against the right post that preserved the 2-1 victory.

"Offensively," according to Coach Michael Stone, "we knew that we had to have at least 30 shots on net each half to be competitive." With that in mind, he had Dan Stone and Neil Costa play the center midfield position for each line. Stone showed a great ability to dish off the ball. His passes were sharp and accurate. With a total of nine assists for the series, Costa contributed a fantastic two-way game. His ability to put the ball in the net from the corner proved to be a life saver for the Quincy team when he hooked in a corner shot that beat West Boylston, 1-0.

The forward combination of Michael Doyle with Geoff Meade and Anthony Chella with Chris Erler gave Quincy offensive power. Doyle, with his powerful left footed shot crossed the ball to Meade who was able to capitalize on the scoring opportunity. Meade, with his tremendous speed, was able to sprint to the net and rip off a quick shot. Erler and his ball handling skills kept the ball in the offensive half most of the semi-final games as he and Chella peppered the Townsend goalie persistently with shots.

"In a six on six situation," said Assistant Coach Richie Meade, "you need to have a fullback with great defensive skills as well as a nose for the net." The Eric Wirtz with Joe Tucker duo gave the team speed in the defensive half and the big foot necessary to clear the ball out quickly. Randy Milburn and defensive partner McCarthy or Sullivan provided power with aggressive play.

During the Tournament Quincy beat Groton/Dunstable, 5-0; Oxford 8-0, and Smithfield, RI 6-1. In the semi-final round it beat West Boylston, 1-0; Cambridge, 2-1, and Townsend, 4-0. For the final game it was Quincy against Westford behind goalie Sullivan. Quincy was down, 2-1, at the half. Meade tucked in the evenner. Costa gave Quincy the go-ahead goal with a rocket shot that hit the inside of each post before settling in the back of the net. With two minutes left in the game, Westford pulled their goalie and Doyle turned on the speed and blasted in an empty netter to ensure the victory for Quincy.

"The scoring summary for the tournament indicates the all-around ability of this team to move the ball," said Stone. Doyle had 10 goals, Wirtz five, Erler four, Meade and Costa three apiece, Chella two and Milburn, Sullivan and Tucker one each. Stone and Erler led the team with nine assists each, Costa and Tucker each had six, Chella and Meade had five, McCarthy and Milburn four, Wirtz and Sullivan three each and Doyle had one.

Prior to its appearance in the Pepperell Tournament, the Quincy team played at Boston College's Alumni Stadium against state champion Newton. They were the warm up game for BC's home opener against Syracuse. Also playing on the team for Quincy at BC were U10 players Brian Doyle and Betsy Stone.

Each Spring the Quincy travel teams play in the South Shore League. Try-outs for the spring team in the Boys Under 12 division will take place on October 21 at 3:30 p.m. at Varsity Field. All players born in 1978 and 1979 are eligible to try out.

Continental Cablevision Named 'Cable Operator Of The Year'

For the second straight year, Continental Cablevision has been named "Operator of the Year" in a national poll of cable industry peers conducted by CableVision magazine, a leading cable trade journal.

In winning the award as the most respected cable company in the business, Continental was ranked first on ballots filed by CableVision readers in each of the five categories they were asked to rate: quality of management, customer service, community relations, quality of work environment and financial acumen.

"When an operator is voted number one by his peers by as wide a margin as Continental was, that's a strong statement about its reputation in the industry," said Bill McGorray, publisher of CableVision magazine.

"It is a tremendous honor for Continental to be recognized as the best by our colleagues in the cable industry," said John King, Continental's vice president for Southern Massachusetts.

"It's a tribute to the hard work and effort put in by the close to 400 employees who serve Continental's customers in 36 communities south of Boston.

"We're particularly proud that our colleagues cited Continental's efforts to provide top-quality customer service," King said. "That's our top priority, and we're committed to doing an even better job for our customers."

WEEK OF: October 19

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You have a logical mind and rarely if ever forget an injustice. Some find you mysterious; you are unusually charismatic. Careful planning in all areas is important this year, especially in the career sphere. Steady advances can make this a potentially rewarding 12 months.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19
Prime time for expressing your gratitude to helpful folks. Intuition is sharp, especially as it relates to the motives of others. Inspection tour may pay off.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20
Some novel ideas can be put into action--don't be shy about presenting them to higherups. Excellent time for updating skills. Learning is accented throughout this period.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20
Week is favorable for home repairs but be sure not to over-extend yourself. Some legal matters may require attention. Weekend spotlights some much-needed cultural activities.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22
A leadership role is yours for the asking--but think twice or thrice before you ask. Detail work is all-important. Family member supports your bold plans.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21
Recent developments may lead to advancement or small bonus. Companionship is the theme through much of this period. Platonic relationships especially are highlighted right now.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22
Be careful not to divide your attention among too many interests. The keyword this week is "consolidation." Week may find you following more rules than you're used to; the trend is short-lived.

LEO - July 23 - August 22
Week is filled with "maybes"--it's hard to give or receive a commitment. Nonetheless, you come out a winner. New friends, new interests, and new travel prospects all are on the horizon.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22
Keeping on top of matters makes the week a success; it's crucial that you don't let the paperwork get the better of you. Imagination is vivid and creativity is unusually strong now.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22
Retraining and upgrading are the twin themes of the week, leading to professional and personal advancement. Think again before taking a financial risk, no matter how safe it may seem.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21
Appearances may be deceptive this week, and it's important that you look beneath the surface of things before making key moves. Your competence on the job may be recognized with a bonus.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22
Invitations arriving at this time require careful consideration before you accept or decline. A combination of events helps you reach your target date on time. A loved one's confidence soars.

CAPRICORN - December 23 - January 20
You seem surrounded by people who are changing their minds, but your own consistency is important. Some mysterious news arrives on or after the weekend. Platonic friendship is spotlighted.

'McCauley Building' Surprises Mayor

signatures for a $60.2 million facility or $225,468 per signature.

Turning serious, McCauley said a new hospital facility was one of his main concerns when he first took office. The facility, a strikingly modern facility equipped with many state-of-the-art features, is much more than "bricks and mortar," he said.

"Quincy Hospital is not really about bricks and mortar. It's about the people who have used the hospital the past 100 years and the people who are now going to use the new hospital facility and the care that they're going to get."

"It's about the people who provide the health care at the new hospital. The medical staff, nurses, technical staff, the secretaries and support services who will be there. We want to thank all of them for the efforts they have made," the mayor said.

Following the dedication ceremony, a ribbon cutting ceremony was held. After McCauley cut the ribbon near the front doors of the facility, 1,000 multi-colored balloons were released into the clear blue October sky.

Mundy, who was master of ceremonies, said the new facility signifies a "new beginning" and "a new commitment" at Quincy Hospital.

"It's a new commitment to work harder with the people, the doctors and the nurses and the technicians and all the other wonderful employees that have really made and will make this hospital a wonderful dream come true. "It's through these people, the human element, that makes the difference in the hospital," he said.

Among the invited guests were Sen. Paul Harold, Rep. Steve Tobin, Councillor James Sheets, who is chairman of the Health and Hospital Committee; Councillors Patricia Toland, Timothy Cahill, Ted DeCristofaro and Charles Phelan, as well as members of the clergy and the hospital, Board of Managers.

The invocation was delivered by Rev. Maureen Young Manns, director of Pastoral Care at the hospital, and Rev. Theodore Fortier, A.A., Roman Catholic chaplain.

Toland and Sheets brought greetings from the City Council.

Greetings from the nurse and medical staff were brought by Theresa Viles, R.N., and Carl Critz, M.D., president of the medical staff.

Trudy Buckley, chairwoman of the Hospital Board of Managers, also greeted the guests. He informed the crowd that two congratulatory letters were sent from Washington, D.C.: one from former Quincy resident Ronald Kaufman, deputy assistant to President George Bush, and Louis Sullivan, secretary of Health and Human Services.

"Peter O'Connell understands the bread and butter needs of working families."

— Dewey Belanger
Fire fighter
30 Bowes Avenue
Quincy

He's been there.

Peter O'Connell grew up poor as one of five kids. His father worked two and three jobs. His mother worked at Raytheon. As soon as he was old enough, Peter went to work.

Today he's one of Quincy's most successful businessmen. But Peter O'Connell never forgot where he came from.

And over the years he's created thousands of jobs for working people in Quincy, helping them put food on their tables.

But when unions representing thousands of Quincy residents endorsed Peter for Mayor, it wasn't just for what he's done, but for what they know he will do.

They know Peter O'Connell's a manager in the best sense of the word. A leader, with the courage to fight for Quincy.

That's why these labor unions have endorsed Peter O'Connell:

- Carpenters Local 424
- Pipe fitters Local 537
- Norfolk County Labor Council — AFL-CIO

SENATOR EDWARD KENNEDY joined mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell during a campaign rally Monday at 1000 Southern Artery in Quincy. Kennedy endorsed O'Connell's bid for mayor and the candidate's proposal for a National Urban Park in Quincy Square while visiting the city.

Kennedy Endorses O'Connell, National Urban Park Proposal

During a visit to Quincy Monday, Senator Edward Kennedy announced his support for mayoral candidate Peter O'Connell while endorsing O'Connell's proposal for a National Urban Park. Appearing on the sidewalk in front of United First Parish Church in Quincy Square, Kennedy said he "will fight to secure federal funding for the project." In addition to the church, the $10 million project would include McIntyre Mall and Hancock Cemetery with trees, ornamental lighting and large patches of grass with flower beds. It would also feature street and sidewalk improvements between the Adams Birth-places and the Adams Mansion. The project calls for closing and landscaping Hancock St. between City Hall and the First Parish Church which contains the tombs of Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams and their wives. Cars would be rerouted around the church, opening Washington St. and Temple Sts. to two-way traffic while merging with Hancock St. Calling O'Connell's proposal "imaginative" and "impressive," Kennedy said he would sponsor legislation seeking monies to build the park and make related improvements. "Quincy stands second-to-none in its historical heritage and this new park will recognize and highlight this heritage," Kennedy said.

Federal grants for similar efforts in Lowell and Salem, he added, "have restored civic pride in those communities and contributed to the revitalization of their local communities. "I think it's time to get a federal grant so Quincy can recognize its rich heritage," the senator said. Asked how much federal money is available for the project, Kennedy said $100,000 for a development study would first have to be secured. He said he was "hopeful" that the money could be obtained. After the study, Kennedy said the public and private sector would most likely need to come together to help fund the project. Kennedy said he (Cont'd on Page 20)

New Bill Sparks Hope For MWRA Headquarters Here

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Hopes for a Quincy-based MWRA headquarters were renewed Tuesday afternoon after Quincy and Roxbury legislators agreed on a compromise bill which would place the entire headquarters at the Fore River shipyard and 150,000 square feet of state office space in Roxbury.

According to Senator Paul Harold, the bill substitutes an earlier measure which called for most of the headquarters to be located in Parcel 18 in Roxbury. In return, the remaining MWRA offices and other state agencies would be housed at the former General Dynamics shipyard which is owned by the authority. The fate of the new bill hinged on a vote scheduled for Wednesday by the MWRA's Board of Directors. Director Paul Levy was set to ask the board to approve a plan which would allow the authority to remain at its present headquarters in Charlestown. However, that plan infuriated many legislators as well as Governor Michael Dukakis. On Tuesday, Dukakis was urging his five appointees on the 11-member board to delay a decision. Mayor Ray Flynn was also reported as asking his three appointees to delay a decision. If the board postponed its decision, Harold said the new bill would be brought up by the House of Representatives Monday. The bill needs a simple majority in both the House and the Senate to reach the governor's desk, he added. The senator said he is "cautiously optimistic" that the new plan will eventually be approved. "We've reached an agreement with the Roxbury delegation but our concern now is the MWRA is renegotiating a 10-year lease in Charlestown," Harold said, adding that Levy's decision to "side-step the entire process" shows "his arrogance." "It shouldn't be up to one (Cont'd on Page 5)

Shea To Be Released From Hospital

Ward 4 City Council candidate Joseph Shea, admitted to Quincy Hospital Monday for a possible neck and chest muscle injury, was expected to be released Wednesday or Thursday. Shea's wife, Josephine, said her husband sustained an injury to his neck or chest while helping to push their daughter's disabled car at the South Shore Plaza Monday afternoon. Late Tuesday afternoon, Shea's condition was listed as good, a hospital spokesman said. "He has been given a clean bill of health. He should be home tomorrow or Thursday and then he'll be back on the campaign trail," Mrs. Shea said. She noted that a coffee hour scheduled for tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Pat and Paul Connolly on Gridley St. is "still on." Mrs. Shea said her husband and their son, Joey, 16, were pushing a disabled car belonging to their daughter, Amy, 18, at the South Shore Plaza. Shea and Thomas Fabrizio are vying for seat being vacated by long-time councillor James Sheets. Sheets is running against Peter O'Connell for mayor.

Board To Check On Restaurant's Rubbish Pick-Up Schedule

By JANE ARENA

In light of recent findings of health, fire and building code violations at Kelly's In The Square Restaurant, 29 Cottage Ave., the license board Tuesday requested that they be sent copies of the contracts between the restaurant and Waste Management Company to ensure that the rubbish pick-up schedule is satisfactory.

The board also requested a copy of the contract concerning the disposal of grease for the restaurant. Both contracts were requested by next week. Atty. Thomas Largey, representing owner Peter Kelly, agreed. Kelly was not present before the board.

Last week Kelly's In The Square was found, on inspection by Fire Prevention officer Lt. Paul Caddy, to be in violation of several fire, health and building code violations because of an overfilled dumpster.

The inspection found that combustible cartons and bags of garbage were piled around the dumpster and that boxes were piled at the bottom of a stairwell, blocking egress, and creating a fire hazard.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey sent an inspector to the site last week to check the reports of blocked egress. The inspector was instructed to issue Kelly an "exit way order" stating that he clear the exits at the site.

Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue, had also repeatedly sent inspectors to the site to evaluate the problem. Inspector Ann Marie John said Tuesday that, as of that morning, the area around the dumpster had been cleared and washed, but that the dumpster itself had not been emptied. She told the board that it was scheduled to be emptied later in the day.

Members of the board voiced concern over the problem, warning that the restaurant could be closed by either the health, building or fire department unless all of the problems are corrected.

The board also noted the problems are recurring. Gallahue said she had sent inspectors to the site and had written letters to Kelly on several occasions.

"This is a brand new restaurant," Mulvey said Tuesday, "there's no excuse for (these problems)... if we see anything blocking the egress or the stairways, the building will be shut down. There's no choice."

The board will review the contracts between Kelly's In The Square and Waste Management next week, and, if the schedules are satisfactory, they will place the matter on file for two months to monitor the situation.

TIRED BUT VERY HAPPY are Mayor Francis McCauley and Carol Ann Speranzo after completing the Jimmy Fund Walk-a-Thon Saturday. The mayor, hampered by severe blisters on his feet, finished in 6 hours, 55 minutes while Carol was close behind at 7 hours, 2 minutes.

Raises $2100 For Jimmy Fund McCauley Nursing Blisters After 26-Mile Walkathon

You won't be seeing Mayor Francis McCauley, walking his usual 10 miles on the weekends for a while.

"My walking is done for the year, except for maybe the Veterans Day and Christmas Parades," the mayor said Tuesday.

McCauley, who participated in Saturday's Walk-a-Thon for the Jimmy Fund on the course of the Boston Marathon, crossed the finish line in 6 hours, 55 minutes with a bad case of blistered feet.

But he says it was well worth it because he raised $2,100 in pledges. The walkathon, covering 26 miles and 385 yards, is good exercise for a good cause, McCauley insists.

"I overcame adversity and walked over the finish line," McCauley said from his desk Tuesday, wearing thick white socks on his feet. Close by were a pair of slippers and sneakers.

The mayor and Carol Ann Speranzo were among the 500 walkers who left Hopkinton for downtown Boston. Another 500 walkers joined in at the 16 mile mark in Newton.

Speranzo, proprietor of Second Sight in Quincy, finished seven minutes behind McCauley with a time of seven hours and two minutes.

"Carol did very well. She finished with no blisters," McCauley said.

The mayor, an avid walker and veteran walk-a-thoner, wore street shoes instead of sneakers Saturday. By the time he reached the 16 mile mark, he realized his choice of footwear was a mistake.

McCauley, who had planned to purchase new sneakers for the event, was warned against wearing them because they could not be properly "broken in" before the 7 a.m. start. So he opted for his trusty street shoes, the ones he wore for the 20-mile Walk for Hunger in May.

"If I do this again, I'll be sure to wear sneakers that have been broken in," the mayor said.

McCauley sailed through the first 13 miles, walking that distance in three hours. Then, his feet developed blisters, slowing him down. He finished the second half of the course in just under four hours.

"My feet were severely blistered. It did slow me down but we made it. It was a tough course, too, with a lot of hills like Heartbreak Hill."

"When you get to the 20-mile mark, it really hits you. The curbstones seem to get higher and higher," said McCauley, gesturing that he had to use his hands to help pick up his legs at the end.

"I'm pleased that I finished it."

For McCauley and Speranzo, Saturday was their third walk-a-thon in the past seven months. In April, they walked in the Protestant Social Services Bureau 10-kilometer walk and in May, they participated in the 20-mile Walk for Hunger.

"We did a lot of walks this year," McCauley said, calling the three events "The Triple Crown of Walking."

The mayor thanked Tony Siciliano and Joe Pearson of the city's Auxiliary Police for transportation to the starting line. "They monitored us and we appreciate their help," McCauley said.

Methadone Clinic In Operation Next Month

David Spillane, legal counsel for the City of Quincy, and Robert Potter of Habit Management, Inc. in Boston, recently conducted a brief tour of the mobile methadone clinic located in the parking lot of the Quincy Department of Public Works.

The clinic is expected to begin operation the first week of November.

Methadone is a synthetic drug which helps heroin addicts to overcome their addiction while minimizing the harsh symptoms of withdrawal.

Spillane was a member of the appointed committee which studied the proposal for a methadone clinic over the summer. He explained to a small gathering last week that the methadone program will enforce strict regulations.

Each client in the program will be asked to show a special color-coded identification card to Unit Manager, George Culver when entering the clinic. The van driver, Paul Healy will then double-check the ID.

The clinic is expected to service only about 80 clients at one time, Spillane said. Before anyone is admitted into the program, they will have to undergo a five to seven day process in Boston which will include physical examinations, and urine testing. A doctor will then order a dosage of methadone.

The methadone will be administered by Habit Management and the Mass. Department of Public Health.

Although the length of each client's treatment varies, Potter estimated that the average is from 9 to 18 months.

"The data suggests that the longer a client is in treatment, the better his chances for success," he said. "Detox in 30 days is a myth."

The mobile facility is unassuming, looking, from the outside, like a camper van. Inside, the clinic is comfortable, with wall-to-wall carpeting and upholstered chairs. At the rear of the van is a small counter from where registered nurse, Barbara Gaines, administers the dosage of methadone. An average dose, says Potter, is usually between 40 and 60 milligrams.

"It takes about two minutes to dose a client," Potter said. Potter emphasized that the "Tough part" of the program for clients will be the counseling that each must undergo as part of the treatment. Clients will receive counseling from both Survival, Inc. and the South Shore Council on Alcoholism.

The process of the treatment program will "make sure" that each client goes to counseling sessions, Potter said.

"We don't tolerate any nonsense," he said. "The clients see this (program) as a privilege."

David Colton, Commissioner of Public Works, said that he thinks the program "is a good one."

The van is situated just a few yards away from his office window, he noted.

"I'm not afraid of this (van) being here," Colton said. "I don't think anyone else should be... I am 100 percent in favor of this type of program to help people... it makes sense to me to have programs like this."

The methadone clinic is scheduled to operate from 6 to 8:15 a.m.

Metropolitan Parking Systems Making Improvements In City Lots

Metropolitan Parking Systems, Inc., a Boston-based parking management company which recently took over the operation of the city's three downtown parking areas, has made a number of improvements.

All of the new personnel including Manager Dan Baker are Quincy residents. The garage deck and lot have been swept from top to bottom. All the graffiti has been painted over and the cashier booths and parking stalls have been newly painted.

In addition, new rate and directional signs have been installed through the facilities. Replacement or repair of the lighting fixtures will be completed by the end of next month.

Metropolitan, known for clean, well-lit "user friendly" managed locations, also intends to make a concerted effort to promote the existing downtown Quincy Merchants Validation program.

All participating merchants will have their name prominently displayed on three large signs to be erected on the locations.

Management intends to have people seek out those merchants who will provide customers with a validation stamp. Fliers listing the participating merchants accompanied by an area map showing the parking locations will be distributed on a regular basis.

Additionally, all merchants in the program will be given new display posters to be placed in storefronts alerting customers to their participation in the program.

Metropolitan President Ed Settino said, "We want to do our part to promote the use of the facilities to shoppers. Our goal is to have our patrons have an easy, hassle-free experience while parking at the facilities."

"We want people to come back," he added.

City Receives $17,168 For 1990 Election Costs

Quincy will receive $17,168 to offset the city's increased costs for coverage of extending voting hours for the 1990 September primary and November general elections, State Auditor Joseph DeNucci announces.

A total of $863,298 has been certified for distribution to cities and towns throughout the state to help offset increased election costs.

"A 1983 law setting standardized polling hours statewide from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. means that citizens of the commonwealth will have additional time to vote. However, it also means that the cost of polling has increased for cities and towns," DeNucci said.

He explained that it is the responsibility of the Auditor's Division of Local Mandates (DLM) to ensure that cities and towns are reimbursed for any expenses incurred from legislative mandates. Under the polling law, communities must document their additional election costs to DLM for review and certification to the Secretary of State's Office.

Wreath From Bush To Honor Adams 254th Birthday

A wreath from President George Bush will be placed on the tomb of President John Adams Monday, Oct. 30, at 10 a.m. at United First Parish Church Unitarian, Quincy Sq.

The ceremony will commemorate the 254th birthday anniversary of President Adams, a signer of the Declaration of Independence and the second President of the United States. Adams was born Oct. 30, 1735 in Quincy.

The wreath will be presented on behalf of the White House by Captain John G. Kuchinski, Jr., commanding officer of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station. He will be accompanied by a U.S. Navy Color Guard. Mayor Francis McCauley and Senator Paul Harold will deliver brief remarks and Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, minister of United First Parish Church, will also speak. The public is invited to attend.

The presenting of presidential wreaths at the tombs of former Presidents on their birthday anniversaries is an annual event begun in 1966 under President Lyndon Johnson. Each year in Quincy, ceremonies are arranged by the U.S. Navy, United First Parish Church, and the City of Quincy, on the birthdays of the two Presidents - John Adams Oct. 30, and John Quincy Adams July 11. Both Presidents were strong supporters of the U.S. Navy - John Adams established the present U.S. Navy and John Quincy Adams argued for the establishment of a national Naval Academy.

McCauley To Return?

Mayor Francis McCauley will be leaving office in just a little more than two months but he doesn't know what he will be doing after he departs City Hall.

He would like to return to the banking field or somewhere else in the business sector.

But he isn't ruling out a return to politics a year or so from now.

"Right now I have no definite plans," he says as his eighth year in office winds down. "I'm looking around and getting a few resumes ready to send out to the banking and business community. But I'm not really pushing that hard."

When he turns the mayor's office over to either James Sheets or Peter O'Connell in the first week of January, will that be the end of McCauley's political career?

"You never say never in politics," he says. "All I can say at this time is that I will not be running for anything next year. After that we'll have to wait and see."

He says he is not interested in running for office at the state level, although his name has been mentioned as a Republican Lieutenant Governor candidate. That would seem to make a return to city politics or count twice a possibility.

"Well, as I said, I won't be running for anything in 1990."

How about 1991 - the next Quincy city election year?

"You never say no."

Right now he says he is more interested in an orderly transition from his administration to the next.

"We are getting materials together for the next mayor and hoping to make it the smoothest transition possible."

There's more to being mayor than mayor, he notes. In addition to serving as chairman of the School Committee, the mayor is also a member of the MBTA Advisory Board and the Norfolk County Advisory Board, chairman of the Adams Temple and School Fund and chairman of the Woodward School Board of Managers.

"The Mayor has a lot of irons in the fire," McCauley says.

After the Nov. 7th elections he plans to sit down with the new mayor-elect to run over those irons and other matters with him to make the transition as easy one.

"I will have a few recommendations for him as he gets ready to take over the reins," McCauley says.

McCauley has a real estate license after taking a course at Quincy Junior College and passing the test. He is now half-way through an income tax return course at H&R Block.

"That background is good to have," he says, "but I don't know whether I will go into either."

McCauley turns 60 in December.

"I would like to continue working a few more years," he says.

Probably in the business sector next year at least. And then?

Readers Forum These Are Not Happy Times

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As a frustrated taxpayer and voter living in Massachusetts, I want my taxes lowered and spending cut up on Beacon Hill. I'm quite selfish when it comes to government policies impacting upon my daily life. But as a state employee since 1972 in both direct-care and support services at the Massachusetts Mental Health Center in Boston, I know from first-hand experience how budget cuts hurt the most vulnerable in our society.

Massachusetts ranks 35th in the nation when it comes to providing mental health services. However, the budget crisis that now exists will be felt by not only human service bureaucrats but by folks out there in the streets. The newest budget for the state Department of Mental Health (DMH) is $489 million up $29 million from the budget of the previous year but hardly enough to both continue and expand needed programs. DMH had asked for an additional $39 million but political realities prevent infusion of more public monies.

Dr. Miles F. Shore, superintendent at Mass. Mental Health Center stated human service's new bottom line in this age of Barbara Andersons and Jerry Williams. Today, according to Shore, "We don't do enough for kids. But when citizens want to take their four dollars a week they save in taxes and go watch cable, what can you do? These are not happy times!"

Shore is right, these are far from happy times for folks out there in our communities needing government's so-called "safety net" to coin a Reaganism. Take a look around and see all those silent and faceless gargoyles lining our doorways, roaming our streets and alleys. They're the homeless, single mothers, children, elderly, the emotionally or physically disabled, the de-institutionalized mentally ill and those living in the twilight of life.

We have travelled far from the days of Camelot and the Great Society of a generation ago. Today, the politics of compassion has been replaced with passionless technology and an overwhelming desire to balance budgets and erase red ink. Government instead of helping people has turned to benign neglect.

As America - as the Bay State - moves into the 90s and beyond, it's a thousand points of light but the batteries aren't included.

CAN YOU AFFORD TO LOSE YOUR MOST VALUABLE POSSESSION?

Your home, if you are like most people, is your most valuable possession, as well as your biggest financial investment. Doesn't it, therefore, make good sense to make certain that it's protected against loss with proper insurance? ... Of course, it does!

Think for a moment what would happen if your house was destroyed by fire, flood, windstorm, or other devastating hazards. Could you afford to rebuild? Where would you and your family live in the meantime? What about those irreplaceable personal possessions, clothing, heirlooms, furniture, electronic equipment, etc?

It's "human nature" to hope and expect your life to pass in relative peace. "Mother Nature" sometimes interferes with the plans of mere mortals, however. In fact, statistical evidence suggests that chances of natural disturbances are great enough to warrant you taking measures against them. Insurance protection provides the cheapest form of confidence and peace of mind.

At Riley & Rielly Insurance Agency, Inc. our insurance professionals are happy to discuss the many protection options available today. Please give us a call at 471-6200 or stop by our office at 1050 Hancock Street in Quincy.

New Bill Sparks Hope For MWRA Headquarters person to decide the fate of such an important issue. We have 200 elected people to work this issue out.

"I'm optimistic we can put this through. It will protect the interests of the taxpayers."

According to Harold, Levy's plan is "a worst case scenario" which disregards Inspector General Joseph Barresi's ruling that a Quincy-based headquarters would be least expensive.

Levy's plan also fails to take into consideration that Parcel 18 needs development to boost Roxbury's development. Harold said if the Charlestown lease is renegotiated, the MWRA will stay there for 10 years.

"The Roxbury people realize that what Levy is trying to do could happen. We have to work together," Harold said.

Harold said Levy's proposal "has no benefit for Quincy and no benefit for Roxbury."

Harold and other Quincy legislators have been pushing for a Quincy-based headquarters in Quincy would safeguard the operation of the MWRA's temporary and permanent sludge treatment operations.

Roxbury leaders, on the other hand, favored a headquarters on Parcel 18 as a means to spur economic development in that depressed neighborhood. Harold said the Roxbury delegation supports the new compromise because they would be guaranteed state offices on that parcel.

"That's what they need, an anchor tenant," Harold said referring to Roxbury.

Tuesday's development was the latest in a long debate over the future headquarters of the MWRA. Earlier in the year, Roxbury and Quincy forces were polarized, each lobbying for the entire headquarters in their respective districts.

The MWRA board then voted in favor of Roxbury, setting off a celebration by Gov. Dukakis and Mayor Ray Flynn and prompting Quincy legislators to file a bill in an effort to locate the headquarters in Quincy.

That bill eventually passed the House and Senate but was vetoed by the governor. Quincy proponents then mounted an override attempt but held back. That option is still "hanging," Harold said.

Next, a compromise bill was drafted which would have divided the headquarters between the Fore River and Parcel 18 in Roxbury.

Serpos Dental Clinic Celebrates 20th Anniversary

The Serpos Dental Clinic will celebrate the 20th Anniversary of its operation at ceremonies held at the Clinic today at 2 p.m.

The Clinic is located at the basement of the Atherton Hough School.

On August 24, 1943 Everant Serpos of Houghs Neck signed his Last Will and Testament leaving a sum of money and his home to establish a health clinic in memory of his wife Elizabeth. The original bequest was made to the Quincy Visiting Nurses Association since they had been so helpful to his wife. He states that in the event that the Visiting Nurses Association should decline the offer, that the City of Quincy by a Board of Managers should administer this trust fund. In the 1960's Dr. Albert Davis, a Quincy Physician, operated a one morning a week free clinic with the assistance of one of the nursing staff from the Quincy City Hospital. The services of this clinic were, by direction of his will, only for residents of Houghs Neck.

In September, 1969, the then City Treasurer, David Houston, asked Quincy Dentist, Dr. James Will if he could set up a dental clinic to operate under the terms of this trust.

With one dental chair and dental unit donated by a colleague and some donated equipment and supplies from his own office, Dr. Will started the Serpos Dental Clinic in the basement of the Atherton Hough School.

With the hiring of Mrs. Joanne Towle as receptionist and Dr. Isaac Mandell as part-time staff dentist, Dr. Will donated his administrative and clinical services on a part-time basis, to the clinic. Some other area dentists, Dr. Roy Colicella and

Dr. Gerald Jernigan also donated clinical services, for a brief period.

At the time, given the title of "Clinical Director", Dr. Will was able to obtain surplus U.S. Army dental equipment to replace the original donated units.

Following the death of Physician Albert Davis, it was realized that the demand for dental services necessitated the expansion and modernization of the dental clinic.

In 1981, a $45,000 renovation was completed with two complete new state of the art operations, a new lead lines x-ray room, new central suction and air compressor. This was planned by Dr. Will and was tastefully color coordinated from rugging to pictures on the wall by Dr. Will's wife Eleanor. The new chair clinic was reopened all within 5 months.

Mrs. Joan Haskins replaced Mrs. Towle as Secretary/Receptionist in 1970. The present senior staff dentist, Dr. Steven Black was hired in 1977.

Today the clinic operates three days a week, Tuesday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., Wednesday 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. and Thursday 12:30-8:30 p.m. Although no longer a free clinic, the Serpos Dental Clinic provides general services at a reduced fee to Houghs Neck residents, because of the Everant Serpos Trust Fund subsidization.

An interesting side-light is that this benevolent man made his money as a candy salesman.

In spite of a busy private dental practice on Adams St., Dr. Will still administers the Serpos Dental Clinic under the direction of the Board of Managers headed by Mayor Francis X. McCauley.

West Quincy Sanitary Sewer System Info Meeting Thursday

The City of Quincy will hold a public information meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the North Quincy High School Auditorium, 316 Hancock St.

The meeting will review the status of the updated Facilities Plan for the wastewater system in West Quincy. In 1981, the City evaluated the wastewater facilities throughout the City of Quincy. Major improvements to the sewer system in West Quincy were a conclusion of that report.

Following the design of the proposed improvements, concerns were raised regarding possible adverse environmental impact of the proposed construction in the Blue Hills area. The State then required that the City prepare an Environmental Impact Report and an update to the Facility Plan.

The public information meeting is part of an ongoing public involvement program and will present the alternatives currently under consideration for discussion and comment. After the Draft Environmental Impact Report and the Updated Facilities Plan are filed, the City of Quincy will also hold a Public Hearing. The primary reason for this meeting is to inform interested citizens so that they may be prepared to make comment on the alternatives at the Public Hearing.

'Foster Parent Search' Program Underway

"Foster Parent Search" is a program developed in response to an urgent need for foster parents in Quincy and on the South Shore.

The program will recruit mature, caring adults to provide temporary care in their homes for needy children within or close to their hometowns to minimize transition into new surroundings.

Children, from newborn to 18 years, enter the program after being removed from family crisis situations and may remain in foster care for a few days or up to several years.

Foster homes in Quincy are especially needed for infants and toddlers, adolescents, and special needs children.

This is a service of the Protestant Social Service Bureau and the Massachusetts Department of Social Services. Those wishing more information may call Diana Doran at 773-6203.

Photos of all 119 babies appeared in the Oct. 5th issue of The Sun and have been displayed in The Sun's office window, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Each photo was assigned a number during the voting process. Identities were not given during the voting.

"While the photos of all the babies have been on display in the window of The Sun the past few weeks, we have claimed the prettiest window in downtown Quincy," Sun publisher Henry Bosworth said.

"It was a pleasure for all of us at The Sun to look out and see the smiling faces of those lined up in front of the window looking at the photos and making their choices. "All the babies were beautiful but unfortunately all of them could not win. We are grateful to the parents who entered their babies and for those who took the time to vote and to donate to a worthy cause.

"We want to thank Paul and Mary McIntire of McIntire's Studio for their great cooperation and assistance in making this such a successful event."

"We want to thank all who took part who by doing so are helping babies who unfortunately are not born healthy and need our help in fighting this cruel disease of muscular dystrophy."

The Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee based at The Quincy Sun has raised over $1 million for the MDA in the past 12 years.

Other events this year included the annual Dick Koch Softball Double header featuring games between the Quincy Police and Fire fighters and City Officials and the News Media All Stars and the Quincy Police Runathon which together raised nearly $4,000.

Quincy Woman 'A Friendly Ear' At U-Mass/Boston

Even if they're dialing the wrong place, telephone callers to UMass/Boston's Office of Public Information happen upon a friendly ear.

The department is supposed to only handle requests from news media, but because of its name, inevitably ends up taking calls from confused students and way commuters.

"If I know it, I'll give it to them," says Quincy's Diane Vasseur, who more often than not has done both during her two-plus years as the department's administrative assistant.

Vasseur, who lives on Furnace Brook Parkway, has been working five years at the Harbor Campus, and her eagerness and skill for squaring details recently earned her the Commonwealth Citation for Outstanding Performance, an award recognizing excellence in state government.

The other UMass/Boston winner was Patricia Bennet of Dorchester, an administrative assistant in the marketing department.

In addition to her duties in Public Information, Vasseur is administrative assistant to the Vice Chancellor for External Relations and due to staff-shrinking budget cuts, she has been forced to assume responsibilities in the Office of Special Events/Community Services. She also supervises several part-time student employees, and while faceless telephone callers no doubt would attest to Vasseur's unflagging good cheer, it's the people within the two departments she serves that most value her caretaker's touch.

Explaining her balancing act, Vasseur says, "you become an improviser."

In nominating Vasseur, Director of Public Information D. Leo Monahan praised her cooperative spirit and commitment to completing a job even if it requires staying late or arriving early. "She's a bear for work and never complains," noted Monahan.

The mother of three children, Jacqueline, Michelle and Son Peter Quinn, who graduated from UMB's College of Management last June, Vasseur and husband Ron, a carpenter at Massachusetts Respiratory Hospital, share a love for music and a vast record collection that keeps them busy weekends as disc jockeys at weddings and other functions. Ron is a former vocalist for "Remember When" and "The Riviera's," a pair of North Shore bands, while Diane's Quincy High School yearbook lists her favorite pastime as "spinning records."

Among her eclectic pursuits, Vasseur allots time to be a devoted hockey fan, and she can still muster goose bumps recalling the time Monahan, a former hockey writer for the Hearst papers in Boston, introduced her to Bobby Orr. "I was so nervous I got tongue-tied," she says.

Laurie Galvin On Bridgewater Dean's List

Laurie Galvin, daughter of Joan and Gregory Galvin of Squantum, was named to the Dean's List for the spring semester at Bridgewater State College.

A 1985 graduate of North Quincy High School, Galvin is now completing her requirements for certification by teaching third grade in the Randolph public schools.

Upon completion of her 15 weeks elementary teaching, she will go on to fulfill her requirements in special needs education, her major field of study.

Fine Calls For Student Accountability In School System

Quincy School Committee candidate Gary Fine is calling for the Quincy school system's attendance policy to be revised. Citing continuing high rates of absenteeism, Fine says it's time for city schools to "get tough on attendance issues," notably absenteeism and tardiness. "Student accountability," Fine says, "is a must if the school system ever hopes to raise the quality of education in our community and lower the dropout rate."

The old policy allowed for seven unexcused absences in a quarter. Once the limit was exceeded, a student's grade would be lowered according to a set scheme.

The policy was abolished several years ago by the school committee for being too stringent. Students could be absent 28 times a year before any disciplinary action was taken. This represented an allowable absence rate of almost 16 percent, yet the school committee found it unacceptable.

According to Fine, a stricter tardiness policy should be implemented as well as closer scrutiny of notes from parents. One suggestion was to hire someone to call the homes of all absent students at night to confirm the student's absence. Fine he also stated that other sanctions could be taken to curb the appalling attendance figures, such as removing repeat offenders from eligibility for sports activities.

If the policy remains, as is, Fine said the current problems of high absenteeism will not be curbed. In fact, he said the quality of the school system will lessen. While it is true that the state's dropout rate is of concern, this should not prompt teachers or school officials to lower their standards, Fine added.

The problem is only compounded, Fine pointed out, when students are not held accountable for repeated absenteeism and tardiness.

According to Fine communities neighboring Quincy "take their attendance seriously." Many South Shore school systems treat repeat offenders the same way the Quincy school system used to by deducting points from a student's grades. This policy, while not favored by the superintendent and the school committee, seems to be a logical answer to the problem, Fine said.

"It makes no sense to allow a student to constantly skip school and suffer no academically punitive action," he said.

The only way to educate children, Fine maintains, is to make them attend school. "Those who constantly miss classes are missing their opportunity to learn and we are jeopardizing their futures in the work force of tomorrow."

The present school system recently adopted a system whereby any student with six unexcused absences would be brought before the school committee. A seventh unexcused absence would be brought to the attention of the Quincy court system.

"While these suggestions seem to be easy to implement, in reality, they are unworkable. If these measures were taken, the school committee meetings would have to start many hours earlier than they currently do and the court system would most likely be flooded with these types of actions," Fine said.

"The problem should be dealt within the individual schools, who in turn would adhere to a strict policy adopted by the school committee," he added.

Fine said that 95 percent of Quincy teachers recently indicated in a study that they want some type of absenteeism policy reinstated. Most favored a return to the old system which also called for the deduction of grade points as a further penalty.

The other proponents want a stricter policy than the one previously in place.

"While the educational challenges facing Quincy are not unique, the lack of a sound attendance policy can only act as a deterrent to educational values of those students who are inclined to miss classes," Fine said.

Crystal Moffett On Governor's Drug Peer Leadership Council

North Quincy High School senior Crystal Lee Moffett, has been elected to serve on the Governor's Alliance Against Drugs Peer Leadership Council.

Moffett and 31 other high school peer leader council members will advocate peer programs and youth issues concerning substance abuse prevention on a state level.

Each school participating in the Governor's Alliance

Against Drugs elects a senior peer educator who is formerly trained to support and counsel peers on saying "no" to drug and alcohol abuse.

Chosen for their respectability and trustworthiness, these peer educators make presentations and dramatizations for fellow high school students and middle school students. Their topics include substance abuse prevention as well as how to deal with peer pressure to use drugs and alcohol.

Jim Sheets' running shoes.

Jim Sheets believes the Mayor of Quincy should be in touch with the people. Which is why, over the last six months, he has been knocking on doors from one end of Quincy to the other, not simply to talk about his ideas, but to listen to the hopes and concerns of the people to whom he has dedicated his 16-year career as a City Councillor. Granted, Jim's method of getting around town may have cost a little shoe leather. But what he has gained in insight has been invaluable. Jim Sheets is not someone insulated in a corner office. He's someone in your corner. Vote for Jim Sheets. A man who knows Quincy and how it should be run.

Halloween Safety

In order to make this Halloween a safe one, the Quincy Police offer the following advice to parents.

- Make sure that your children can see and can be seen. Visibility is very important. If your children will be out after dark, they should wear light colored costumes and carry a flashlight.

- Make sure that an older, responsible adult accompanies the children.

- If an adult is not available to accompany the children, encourage them to go in a group. There is safety in numbers.

- Plan the route the children will take. Make sure the route is well lighted.

- Go over safety rules with your children before they leave the house.

- a) Cross only at corners

- b) Never cross between parked cars.

- c) If there is not sidewalk, walk facing traffic.

- d) If the child is wearing a mask, have her/him remove it before crossing the street.

- Instruct your children to save all of their "treats" until they get home. Once at home you, the parent, can check the candy for anything that looks as if it may have been tampered with. If you find any candy you suspect has been tampered with, bring it to your local police station.

Motorists must also be more alert on Halloween evening. Some children may have thoughts, other than safety on their mind. Motorists must be especially careful when driving in residential areas. There are many leaves on the ground this time of year and they tend to be wet. This can make stopping in an emergency difficult.

Residents can also help keep our little ghosts and goblins safe by turning on a porch light. This will help prevent our youngsters from falling and injuring themselves.

If we all follow these tips it can be a very happy Halloween for everyone.

Enrollment Up In QJC Nursing Program

Enrollment in Quincy Junior College's Associate Degree in Nursing is up this semester with 67 new students.

The ADN program at QJC qualifies students to take the state board examinations for registered nurses. Part of the curriculum requires students to do clinicals at affiliated acute and long-term care facilities.

One such internship is at the Flatley Company's Milton Health Care Facility. There, students attend classes for the first six weeks of the semester, then begin the 10-week clinical.

Clinicals at Milton give students an opportunity to learn the basics of nursing at a gradual pace, while also giving them exposure to the field of gerontology. Students work with Milton's elderly residents, providing basic hygiene, recording vital signs, conducting nursing interviews and administering specific treatments under the supervision of their instructors.

Most importantly, the program allows students to utilize the nursing process in preparing nursing care plans, which is a major part of their training.

This year marks the third for the partnership between QJC and Milton Health Care Facility. The quality of QJC's teachers combined with the Flatley Company's dedication to education in health care spell continuing success for the ADN program. Both organizations share a common goal: to help train the next generation of care givers.

Recycling A Clear And Important Priority, Residents Say

Recycling is the clear and important priority, said residents of the South Shore when they converged at North Quincy High School for a recent conference on recycling. Over 200 local residents, recycling advocates, government representatives, municipal officials, and private recycling vendors came together to educate one another and express their commitment to recycling.

The conference was sponsored by Alternative Resources, Inc., The City of Quincy, Clean Water Action, Massachusetts Audubon Society, the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection, Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MASS-PIRG), Quincy Community Action, Quincy Junior College, and the South Shore Coalition. The speakers at the conference were noted environmental scientist and author Barry Commoner, and Daniel Greenbaum, Commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection. Particularly informative for the public were the six workshops on the following topics: recycling in your community, commercial recycling, composting, reducing solid waste, markets for recyclables, and maximum recycling.

Barry Commoner, commenting on a critical aspect of the solid waste crisis said, "It is now clear that Intensive Recycling targeted at the 90% recyclable trash stream is by far the best solution to the trash crisis. Intensive Recycling is one-third less expensive than incineration and eliminates incineration's serious environmental hazards."

Quincy City Councillor Larry Chretien summed up the success of the conference when he said, "We know for a fact that there are people in every community on the South Shore who want to recycle. The purpose of this conference was to give them an opportunity to learn how recycling can happen in their community. At the same time, we have to work with decision-makers in every municipality to show them how recycling can be cost effective."

If You're Planning To Move

By DENNIS DRENNAN
Whether it's talk around the office of impending transfers or your own sense that it's time to pull up stakes, the prospect of relocation can set your mind racing.

Doing some simple, exploratory homework and knowing something about standard corporate relocation practices can put your personal, financial and family concerns into clearer focus.

Know Your Destiny:

First, focus on your motive for moving. Of course, if you're being transferred, or an exciting new job opportunity awaits, deep soul-searching really isn't called for.

But if you're thinking about heading somewhere because you've "heard the economy is better" there, take time to verify the facts for yourself.

You don't have to visit a town to learn about it. True, a trip would add to your "feel" for daily life there. But you can discover a lot using just the mail, phone and other easy sources.

A mail subscription to the Sunday edition of the prospective new location's leading daily newspaper is an invaluable resource. The classifieds can tell you how much houses are selling for, what apartments cost to rent and what jobs are available.

Bank advertisements will give you an idea of current mortgage interest rates. Through the display advertisements, you can learn what kind of shopping is available — from which retail chains operate there, to the price of groceries.

The newspaper offers a wealth of other information, too. Most important, the local news pages will give you a snapshot view of the area's crime situation, economy, environmental concerns and other local issues. The social pages will introduce you to the names of schools, social organizations and religious groups you may want to join once you relocate.

Check the Chamber:

Another source, though less objective, is the local Chamber of Commerce. They can send you material about the community, industry, schools and recreation. The Chamber also lists professional organizations to help you establish your career.

The State Department of Tourism, located in the state's capital city, offers information about outdoor activities and recreation throughout the state. If it's a good bet you'll be moving there, you can give your kids a positive feeling about their prospective new home by visiting one of the state's popular attractions.

Other information sources range from co-workers, friends and relatives to reference books found at your library and bookstore. One particularly helpful book is the Places Rated Almanac, by Richard Boyer and David Savageau (Rand McNally & Company, hardcover and paperback). The almanac rates 329 U.S. metropolitan areas in terms of climate, economy, educational, cultural and recreational resources, and other "quality of life" factors.

Corporate Transfers:

Perhaps your new home town already has been chosen for you by your employer. A survey by Merrill Lynch Relocation Management (MLRM) of 614 Fortune 1,000 companies found that the average number of transfers among these firms in 1988 was 203, an increase of nearly 6 percent from 1987.

Nearly all corporations assist transferring employees with many details of the move.

Even so, differences in living standards from one area to another, as well as declining home values and dual-career households, are common concerns of employees facing transfers.

Fortunately, the survey found that maintaining a standard of living in a new location was a primary concern of major U.S. corporations. Too, Corporate programs to address this concern often include cost-of-living allowances, mortgage assistance and tax assistance. Also key among the elements of corporate relocation policy is helping transferring employees sell their homes. Some firms offer to buy employees' homes outright. But before this occurs, nearly all companies offer transferring employees assistance in selling the homes on their own.

Regarding the spouse's career, MLRM found that 32 percent of the companies surveyed offered some type of job-finding assistance for working spouses of relocated employees. Assistance such as paying for formal job counseling, employment agency fees and job-finding trips demonstrate the seriousness with which many companies approach this issue.

Home marketing assistance is typically administered by a relocation company, which guides you through the process of selling your home for the best price possible. The program usually includes such services as professional home appraisals and marketing plans for your property. Most companies provide payment for sales below the appraised value, covering some or all of the difference.

Such corporate relocation assistance may seem too good to be true. However, the cost of these programs is relatively low compared to the cost of hiring and training new employees.

If you're faced with a transfer, get information about your new location so you can make the best decisions for yourself and your family.

Wollaston Park Assn. To Kick Off Membership Drive Oct 25

The Wollaston Park Association will hold its annual dinner meeting Wed., Oct. 25 at the Hollow Restaurant at 7 p.m. to kick off its 1989-1990 membership drive.

At its meeting the Association will also view a slide presentation by Bryan Sindorf and Andrea Bonner, members of CODE (Citizens Organized to Defend the Environment), which will show the hazards of a rotary kiln hazardous waste system currently in operation outside of Chicago, Illinois. The system is similar to the incinerator proposed by Clean Harbors for the Fore River site. The Clean Harbors proposal has recently been the subject of many demonstrations and a question regarding it will be on the ballot Nov. 7.

Annual election of officers will follow the presentation.

The Wollaston Park Assn. is currently in its 34th year of existence, having been chartered back in 1956. It was formed, "To promote the health, safety and general welfare of community, to engage in such activities as the association shall deem to be for the general betterment of community, including publication and distribution of papers relating to community affairs; (and) to promote the interest of residents and owners of property at Wollaston Park ..."

Over the years the Association has worked to prevent development and provide more parks along the beach, and to preserve our valuable marshes. Most recently it has been successful in monitoring the expansion of fast food shops and bringing about the elimination of large billboards on Quincy Shore Drive. It has been an outspoken critic and adversary of excess development in Wollaston Center and has fought to tighten the zoning ordinances in order to protect the neighborhoods of Wollaston.

Members must be registered voters. Yearly dues are $3 per person and $5 per family. It meets bi-annually, usually for dinner at a local restaurant, and members vote upon the course of action that the Association will take over the next quarter. Often times there is a guest speaker or a presentation.

Anyone interested in attending the Annual Meeting and joining the Association is asked to contact Caryn Smith at 471-9580.

Spotlight On HEALTH AND FITNESS

You Really ARE What You EAT!

Today people are recognizing that they literally are what they eat.

They realize that in order to be healthy, they must eat foods that give the body the correct types of fuel to function properly. Too often, people prepare quick "meal-in-one" type foods. These foods smell, look, and taste good, and are almost trouble-free in preparation. But many lack vital nutrients, fiber, bulk and what Diet Center calls "staying power".

Diet Center stresses the health benefits provided to the body by eating fresh fruits, raw or steamed vegetables, chicken and fish, and whole grains. Unlike most fast foods, these natural foods supply bulk, vitamins and minerals that are usually lost in processing pre-packaged foods. But, like fast foods, they can be prepared quickly and simply.

Preparation is a key factor in weight control.

You may be surprised to know that a potato and a carrot have the same number of calories. Most people think potatoes are fattening. Why? An ordinary potato, baked or boiled, may contain only 100 calories. Mashed, with some milk added, the count rises to 150 calories. If you use butter, you can bring that total to 250 calories.

French frying can make it 200 to 250 calories. If you make hash browns, you can build that count to 450 calories. Cream sauces and gravies also add additional calories and should be used sparingly. But potatoes are still potatoes; it's the preparation that makes the difference.

Keep it simple—bake, broil, grill, or use a microwave. Use herbs to add unusual and delicious flavors.

Make it look good, too, by combining different colored vegetables or fruits or by using a bit of parsley or dill to finish off the picture.

Now you're selecting healthful and nutritious foods and cooking them in the smartest way! The best, last, thing to do for weight control is to pay attention to portion size. Many people feel as long as they eat only the foods listed on their diets, they can eat as much as they want. This, of course, is not true. Twice as much food has twice as many calories.

It is important to realize that overeating is a habit. It doesn't matter whether you are overeating cottage cheese or ice cream, the habit is still the same. The extra food is still extra. We tend to determine the amount of food we eat through its visual appeal. If a food looks good, we eat more than if it does not look appetizing. Last, but not least, leaving food on a plate is a challenge for most people, perhaps from childhood teachings. If this is your problem, try to make it a new habit to take smaller portions or to prepare and serve smaller portions.

You will be able to maintain your weight if you accept these three ideas as part of your daily routine: natural foods, prepared in simple ways, and served in sensible portions.

Regular Aerobic Exercise May Help Prevent Cancer

Increasingly, medical research indicates that exercise may help prevent some forms of cancer.

Although it's not been proven conclusively that exercise prevents cancer, many recent studies have reached the same conclusion — that physically active people are less likely to get certain types of cancer than those who don't exercise regularly.

In fact, the evidence has been sufficient to convince the American Cancer Society to recommend exercise as a possible way to reduce the risk of this potentially life-threatening disease.

"The more exercise, the lower the risk of dying from colon, brain and kidney cancer and leukemia," says Dr. Steven Blair of Dallas' Institute for Aerobic Research.

According to researchers at the American College of Sportsmedicine convention in Las Vegas, evidence is building that links physical activity with a low incidence of cancer. "We have a nice pile of evidence showing that exercise is beneficial, but we have no idea how it all works," says Leonard Cohen, Ph.D., head of the section of nutrition and endocrinology at the American Health Foundation in Valhalla, New York.

There are several current theories on the connection between exercise and reduced incidence of cancer. One is that working muscles consume the same fat molecules that help fuel the growth of cancer cells, which means they're competing for the same source of energy.

Another explanation is that moderate exercise enhances the immune system, thereby helping to control early changes in the cell growth that may lead to cancer. Compared to non-exercisers, people who exercise regularly tend to eat better diets and to have less body fat — two factors associated with lower risks of several types of cancers.

Rose Frisch, Ph.D., an associate professor of public health at Harvard University, conducted a study in 1985 of former female college athletes.

The results, published in the British Journal of Cancer, suggests that former college athletes had a lower incidence of breast cancer. Women who had been on varsity or intramural teams or who had trained regularly had about half the lifetime occurrence of breast cancer as nonathletes. And they also had a lower risk of cancer of the uterus and ovaries.

Strong evidence exists that exercise protects against colon cancer. In fact, researchers at the 1987 American College of Sportsmedicine meeting in Las Vegas stated that, for colon cancer, lack of exercise will prove to be "one of the strongest risk factors identified so far."

In addition, a 1987 New York study published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition found that men in sedentary jobs had twice the risk of colon cancer as did men in physically active jobs.

According to The National Exercise For Life Institute, high calorie burning aerobic activity, such as cross-country skiing, can be an especially effective way to get needed exercise.

NordicTrack, the in-home exerciser that simulates cross-country skiing (which experts agree is the world's best aerobic exercise), is becoming increasingly popular because it burns more calories in less time than other types of in-home exercisers.

In a test conducted at the Oregon Health Sciences University, Human Performance Laboratory, NordicTrack test subjects burned 1,100 calories per hour. Another reason it's so efficient is that it exercises all of the body's major muscles groups — arms, shoulders, legs, buttocks, and abdomen. That makes NordicTrack the only in-home exerciser that provides a total body workout.

"No matter what type of exercise you do, the evidence suggests that regular aerobic exercise can be an important deterrent to some forms of cancer," says Diane DeMarco, executive director of the Institute.

The purpose of The National Exercise For Life Institute is to collect and disseminate information about the many benefits of regular aerobic exercise, in order to convince more Americans to start and maintain a personal exercise program.

For more information on the benefits of regular aerobic exercise, call The National Exercise For Life Institute, 612/448-3094 or write Box I, Chaska, MN 55318.

Kennedy Endorses O'Connell, National Urban Park Proposal

and O'Connell "would work together to try to ensure (the project) goes forward."

The First Parish Church congregation has not taken an official stand on O'Connell's proposal, according to Rev. Sheldon Bennett, minister of the church. Bennett also noted that the church will not endorse either O'Connell or James Sheets because supporting a candidate is against church policy. He said the church simply encourages the democratic process.

While in Quincy, Kennedy and O'Connell toured the church as private citizens, Bennett said.

Kennedy and O'Connell are friends. They have grown close over the years with O'Connell's association with the John F. Kennedy Library and the JFK Regatta held annually at Marina Bay.

"Peter O'Connell recognized that the First Parish Church was an island isolated by traffic and he felt the burial place of our presidents deserved better. This plan is an opportunity to rectify that.

To accord the tribute and respect the city's most revered historical site deserves," Kennedy said standing beside O'Connell on the sidewalk in front of the church.

In addition, Kennedy said the project would "serve as a catalyst for further improvements in downtown Quincy. It will be an attraction, bringing tourists and recognition to the city."

Besides rerouting traffic and locating a traditional green in downtown Quincy, the plan also includes a 200-car parking deck between the state education building and the Quincy Center MBTA station.

The latter idea was previously proposed by some city councillors.

O'Connell said the park would "enhance the image of Quincy Center by recognizing its history, smoothing the traffic flow and bringing new vitality to the downtown."

Prior to the stop at the church, Kennedy visited the senior citizen housing complex at 1000 Southern Artery and publicly endorsed O'Connell before 400 residents and guests.

Kennedy said O'Connell would be "a great mayor" because he is committed to serving the needs of society's most precious asset: senior citizens.

"Of all the great civilizations, the greatest is the civilization which has honored its seniors. You are the men and women who have made this community of Quincy the extraordinary community that it is," Kennedy told the crowd.

"People like Peter O'Connell are committed to changing the community for the better," he added, noting that O'Connell has built affordable housing units for senior citizens in Quincy. "That is the kind of commitment that I have learned to respect from Peter O'Connell."

Kennedy also mentioned the high cost seniors pay for prescription drugs, noting that five million pay more than $1,000 a year on that alone. Government must also provide decent health care to the elderly, he said.

"That is something our nation must be committed to if we are going to be a decent society," Kennedy added.

Before leaving 1000 Southern Artery, Kennedy and O'Connell joined in with vocalist Mary Kirby and guests for a sing-a-long. They sang several Irish songs including "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." The gathering also joined in a vote for Peter O'Connell tune.

Several Honored For 'Adopt An Island' Program

A ceremony in Mayor Francis McCauley's office was held to honor several local businesses for their work and participation in the city's "Adopt-an-Island" program.

McCauley and Councillor Timothy Cahill acknowledged the efforts by all 33 "parents" while presenting four companies with special citations.

The program began last spring after the mayor, Cahill and McCauley's administrative secretary, Peter Kenney, learned about a similar program in Peabody. Local businesses were asked to "adopt" a traffic island and other green spaces as a way to beautify the city.

McCauley and Cahill said the partnership fosters good relations between the city and the private sector while serving to upkeep city-owned land.

A contest was established to recognize some of the businesses that went "above and beyond the call" of upkeep and maintenance, Cahill noted.

There are four winners for three categories. They are:

- Large island category: National Fire Protection Association. The company beautified Shea Park located at Copeland St. and West St. in West Quincy.

On hand to receive the citation were Robert Conveys and Jean O'Connor.

- Medium island category: Groleau's Landscaping Contractors. The company, represented by Bobby and Wayne Groleau, beautified the island at High and Franklin Sts.

In the small island category, there were two winners. South Shore Security for the island at Presidents and Federal Aves. and Wollaston Credit Union for the Hedges Memorial on Elm Ave.

John Vignoni, William Daley and Frank Frio from South Shore Security and Gene Healey, Paul Onell and Doris Onell from Wollaston Credit Union were on hand for the presentations.

This year, about 33 out of 75 city-owned traffic islands and green spaces were adopted by businesses, residents, non-profit organizations and service clubs.

All participants will receive certificates of recognition from the mayor for their efforts.

Cahill will lead the effort to expand the program next spring.

Relief Drive Success

Quincy Opens Heart To Hurricane Hugo Victims

Thanks to a city-wide volunteer relief drive for victims of Hurricane Hugo, 6,185 pounds of non-perishable food, chain saws and other miscellaneous items along with a check for $1,000 was recently shipped by U.S. Air cargo to Charleston, South Carolina.

The drive was conducted after Mayor Francis McCauley received an appeal for assistance from J. Thomas Cochran, executive director of the U.S. Conference of Mayors. Cochran requested help for the people of Charleston who were devastated by Hurricane Hugo.

McCauley then organized a committee for hurricane victims relief. The mayor received an immediate response from public officials, city employees, businessmen, local news media, volunteers and citizens of Quincy.

Non-perishable food items, chain saws, roof shingles, baby food and money came in fast and furious to designated fire stations and public schools throughout the community, said Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Civil Defense, Office of Emergency Management.

Arrangements were made through Capt. Thomas Sellars of the Army National Guard 126th Signal Battalion to transfer all items from drop-off centers to the National Guard Armory in Quincy.

Because public officials, city employees, civil defense volunteers, businessmen and private citizens volunteered so many hours of their time preparing shipment, the drive was a tremendous success, Siciliano said.

Siciliano is preparing a videotape of the relief effort and will send it to President George Bush. He said the tape will show the president that the volunteer spirit, "people helping people," is alive in Quincy.

"We are truly proud of the residents of Quincy who responded to a cry for help and opened up their hearts to the victims of a terrible disaster. Once again, volunteerism has proven to be our country's most precious asset," Siciliano said in a letter to the president.

Siciliano also had special thanks for the following people for their tremendous help.

David Smith, the city's Personnel Director; Fire Chief Paul O'Connell and his personnel; Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci, teachers and students; CD Shelter Director Edward Roberts and Assistant Director Edward Cook, civil defense shelter volunteers and The Patriot Ledger, WJDA and The Quincy Sun for publicizing the drive.

He also thanked Peter O'Connell of the O'Connell Management Co., Robert Curry of Curry Hardware, Casey and Hayes Movers and Arthur Xefterakis, owner of Supreme Coffee and Donuts.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

D. Scott Deware

Men certainly like to talk in our present day it seems that we are being constantly inundated with words. Some very meaningful, some pure 'hog-wash'; some truthful, some false ...

We all know that many famous politicians, many famous leaders have a certain 'knack' with words. They know how to use the right word - at the right time - in the right place - to say what they mean and mean what they say!

Lincoln is quoted as saying after he lost the senatorial election to Douglas: "It is a slip and not a fall." His words proved true. Instead of saying: "We owe a lot to the R.A.F.", Churchill said: "Never in the field of human conflict was so much owed by so many to so few."

We all have heard the expression: "Don't count your chickens until they're hatched." But would you know what was meant if you heard: "Do not enumerate your poultry prior to successful termination of the process of incubation?"

Yes, in our tumultuous world today, we have to use our ears very wisely when we hear words that can or cannot help solve our present day problems...

Old Colony Railroad Meeting

The Old Colony Railroad Rehabilitation Project Citizen's Advisory Committee will meet Thursday, Nov. 2 at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy High School Methods Center.

The purpose of the meeting is to plan for the CAC Review of the Draft Environmental Impact Statement-Report and to discuss with CAC members the preparation of CAC comments and possible schedule for the circulation and public review of the DEIS/DEIR.

Together, we can change things.

Traditions Grow With Each Generation.

Back in 1931, Joe Sweeney joined his Uncle Dennis to help renovate the newly acquired funeral home on Elm Street. Originally a cabinetmaker by trade, Joe soon became the second-generation link in a family-owned tradition. One of instinctive and genuine concern for the city's bereaved families.

After the home's renovations were complete, Joe began assisting with services and went on to become a funeral director in 1941. When Dennis Sweeney died in 1948, it was to Joe that he entrusted the continuation of the Sweeney Tradition.

Well-liked in Quincy, M. Joseph Sweeney not only respected the customs of the large Catholic population, but also those of newcomers in the Protestant and Moslem communities. In 1962, he acquired the Elcock Estate, circa 1863, in West Quincy to better serve the residents in that growing area of the city.

Since 1917, Sweeney Funeral Homes have been responding to the needs of South Shore residents — whatever they were. As early as 1940, we began offering pre-planning as a way for wise Quincy residents to plan their future.

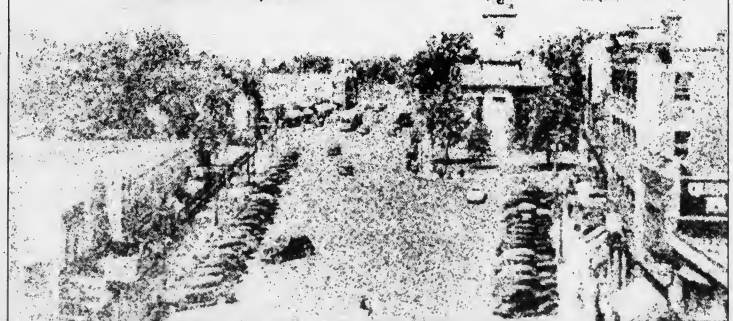

Today, with funeral costs one of the top five major expenses for most families, pre-arrangements make better sense than ever before. Call Dennis Sweeney, our third-generation funeral director, at (617) 773-2728 for a free consultation. We've been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years.

Raiders Eye 4th Against Cambridge R&L

By STEVE KAVANAGH

North Quincy shoots for its fourth straight win Friday when it hosts Cambridge Rindge & Latin at 7 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

The Red Raiders held off Revere Saturday and rallied for an exciting win, 27-26, to improve to 4-2. The Patriots drop to 4-2 with the loss.

North Quincy survived 12 penalties and two fumbles which led to Revere touchdowns. The Red Raiders were impressive offensively moving the ball well on the ground and through the air.

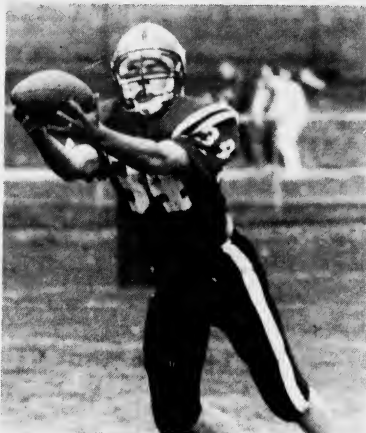

Quarterback Jim Bryan passed for 175 yards and two touchdowns in the first half. Bryan hit Dan Gilmartin with a six-yard scoring pass on the opening drive of the game and Chris Deshler added the PAT kick for a 7-0 Red Raiders lead.

Early in the second quarter NQ was pinned in its own end but Kevin MacDougall who raced 99 yards up the sideline for a touchdown and a 13-0 lead.

Revere cut the lead to 13-6 when QB Derek Dicks capped a long drive by tossing a 22-yard TD pass to Rocco Luongo.

A fumble gave the Patriots good field position in the third quarter and Dicks capitalized by hitting Tino Daveiga with a 38-yard scoring strike.

Another Red Raider fumble helped Revere take an 18-13 lead at the start of the fourth quarter. Dicks threw another TD pass, this time 15 yards to John Campbell.

North turned the tables by cashing in on two interceptions late in the game. Linebacker Mike Doherty picked off a Dicks pass and returned it to the Patriot eight. Gilmartin ran it in on the next play to put NQ back in front, 19-18.

Defensive back Keith Gott intercepted Dicks on the next series and raced 35 yards for a touchdown. The Red Raiders faked the PAT kick and Desmond Bellotti passed to Gilmartin for two points which turned out to be important.

Dicks wasn't through as he brought Revere 55 yards for a score in the final minute. Campbell caught his second TD pass of the game and Dicks tossed to Luongo for two points cutting the lead to 27-26. That was all as NQ ran out the clock.

Gott, MacDougall, Bryan and Gilmartin excelled on offense and Brian Zimmerman, Gott, Scott Kemp and Alex Malasi had big plays on defense for the Red Raiders.

Brookline 21, Quincy 0 Presidents Face Tough Battle At Weymouth N.

The Presidents were shut out, 21-0, by Brookline Sunday for their third straight loss and will be up against yet another tough challenge when they face Weymouth North (5-1) at Weymouth's Legion Field Friday at 7 p.m.

The Maroons rolled over Don Bosco 27-0 last week and are rated in the top ten in Division II.

Quincy's defense played well against Brookline but the offense was plagued by turnovers and inconsistency.

Brookline scored its first touchdown in the opening quarter after recovering a fumble at the President 19-yard line. The Indian's Korey Whitfield scored on a 15-yard run to put Brookline out in front by a 6-0 margin.

Quincy's offense had trouble moving the ball during the first half but the offense kept Brookline's triple-option offense in check. The Presidents put together a solid drive late in the second quarter and marched to the Indian one-yard line. However, a fumbled snap on the final play of the half ruined Quincy's scoring bid.

On the previous play, quarterback Mike Flavin connected with end Chris Walker who was stopped short of the goal line.

Sophomore Kenan Bigby scored on a 1-yard run in the third quarter and Indian captain and quarterback Langston Cawthorne passed to Mike Kelliher for the two-point conversion and a 14-0 lead.

Brookline struck again in the fourth quarter as senior running back Whitfield raced 29 yards for a touchdown and kicker Sammy Yuen booted the Presidents for the final 21-0 margin.

The Presidents got fine efforts from running backs Lou Pagnani and Mark Bogan.

The Quincy defense was led by co-captain Joe Baker, Ali Sleiman, Jim Munroe and Sean Kennedy.

Brookline improves its overall record to 5-1 for the season while the Presidents are now 2-4 overall (1-3 Suburban League) after starting the season 2-1.

• Youth Football

Manets Bomb Panthers, Elks Sink Sailors

The Houghs Neck Manets continued to roll in the Quincy Youth Football League as they crushed the Quincy Point Panthers, 32-0.

The West Quincy Elks put together their best effort of the season as they downed the Squantum Sailors, 24-6.

The Manets are now 5-0 and have yet to be scored upon this season. Houghs Neck capitalized on Panther mistakes including a blocked punt and bad snaps on two other punts.

Mike Kane scored the first touchdown on the second play from scrimmage on a 66-yard run. Kane also rushed for the two-point conversion.

Following a blocked punt the Manets took over at the Panther 18 and on the next play Sean Herron ran it in from 18 yards out. Kane rushed for the conversion and the Manets led 16-0.

In the second and third quarters, the Manets scored safeties when a bad snap sailed into the end zone. Chris White was credited with both for HN.

Jay Beavais scored the next two TDs for the Manets, the first on a 42-yard run and the second on a 15-yard run.

The Elks improved to 2-3 with their biggest win in several seasons. The Sailors averted a shutout by scoring in the final minute of the game.

Mike Elder got West Quincy off to a big start with a long return of the opening kickoff. Elder then finished the job by rambling 42 yards for a touchdown on the first play from scrimmage.

Elk quarterback Rich Gorman made an outstanding play to set up the next TD. Gorman ran the option with Elder and pitched out just as he got hits allowing Elder to scamper 57 yards down the sideline for the score.

Tackle Dave D'Olympion pounced on a Sailor fumble in the end zone for the third Elk touchdown and an 18-0 lead.

The Elks made it 24-0 before halftime on a nicely executed halfback option pass. Elder took a pitch from Gorman and fired a strike to John Fraser who raced the rest of the way for a 53-yard score.

The Sailors mounted a late drive highlighted by a 44-yard pass play between QB Pat Laydon and receiver Terrence Manning. With just a few seconds remaining Laydon ran for a TD from five yards out to put the Sailors on the board.

The Elks got big games from Elder, Gorman, D'Olympio, Brendan Brack, Tom Malvesti, Tony Cedrone, Bill Morrissey, Jason Sova, Jason Klempand Bob Tobin.

The Sailors were led by Laydon, Pete Yeomans, Mike Kates, Brendon Anderson, and Stephen Tangney.

This Sunday, the Sailors match up with the North Quincy Apaches at 1 p.m. and the Elks go up against the Panthers at 2:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

North X-Country Girls Split 2 Meets

North's girls split two recent meets easily beating Brockton 21-36 and losing to a powerful Newton North team 15-49 to fall from the ranks of undefeated.

In the Brockton meet held at Pageant Field, Sherrin Quintiliani won with Suzanne Lewis and Ilana Cobban close behind. Janet Corrigan was sixth, Mary Tafalla ninth and Danielle Lewis tenth.

The Newton meet, held at Cold Springs Park in Newton, North could do nothing against the powerful Tigers as they swept the top six spots. Freshman Suzanne Lewis was the first North Quincy finisher in seventh place with Sherrin Quintiliani ninth and Janet Corrigan tenth. "Newton should win it all in the state this year," said coach Jeff Hennessy. "In fifteen years I've never seen such a dominant team."

On the boys side Jason Buckley continues to rack up wins as he toured the Pageant Field course in 12:45 to win versus Brockton, however, the depth of the Boxers was too much as captain Andy Wohlrab could only take twelfth, and the Raiders suffered their third straight loss 20-43. On the bright side everyone continues to improve. Against Newton, Buckley won again completing Newton's 3.1 mile course in 17:40. Wohlrab was sixth, Chris Ballum ninth, and Peter Wildes tenth, the Raiders dropped this decision 21-38.

Over the weekend, both squads participated in the Brown University Invitational held at Slater Park in Pawtucket, Rhode Island. In the Freshman/Novice race Suzanne Lewis was second, Ilana Cobban thirteenth and Mary Tafalla nineteenth, the team placed fifth out of 25 schools. Karen Leary, Kerry Evans and Jennifer Brams also ran. In the Girls Varsity division, Sherrin Quintiliani ran 20:31 to place 41st over the 3.1 mile course. Janet Corrigan also turned in the same time of 21:11. Joanne Moriarty ran 22:53, North did not field a complete team as many members were taking College Boards. Teams from Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York and New Jersey participated. Coach Hennessy was excited with Quintiliani's performance. "She sat out completely from March 20 to September 1st with stress fractures in her shins, then she got four ankle sprains in a two week period, then she got the flu, which has knocked out a dozen kids on various sports at North this fall, now maybe there's a light at the end of the tunnel, she's close to where she was at this time last year."

On the boys side Jason Buckley led the field for partway in the boys Division II Varsity race only to be taken midrace and finish tenth, but serving notice that he will be a challenger in the State Meets this coming November. Coach Dan Cuddy was understandably proud of his young star. "He needs to run big races in order to develop good racing sense. He went out a little too fast this time, but this is what these races are all about - developing and gaining experience. He won't make the same mistake twice." The varsity team comprised of Andy Wohlrab, Chris Ballum, Peter Wildes and John Heaney placed eighth out of 20 teams.

North's final league meet will be on Tuesday, Oct. 31 against Quincy at Pageant Field at 3:30 p.m.

Johnson, Burgin Rack Up Wins

Johnson Motor Parts improved to 2-0 in the Squirt Division with a 7-0 shutout of Doran & Horrigan.

Burgin Platner topped Quincy Sun, 4-1, in other action.

Jim Hasson scored two goals and Billy Graney, Patrick Coughlin, Matt Langille, Matt Jarnis and Bill Barron each scored for Johnson Motor Parts while Timmy Hunter had two assists and Langille, Danny Stone and Graney notched one each. Goalie Tim Zaniboni picked up the shutout.

Joe Bracken popped in two goals and Danny Stock and Robbie Winter added one each while Bracken and Mike O'Brien were credited with assists. David Rowell scored for Quincy Sun assisted by Brian Gates.

Squirt As Warm Up

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt A team is preparing for the regular season.

The team, sponsored by South Boston Savings Bank, recently lost two scrimmages, 4-2, to the Seahawks and also to Weymouth.

John Manning and Eric Wood scored against the Seahawks with assists by Billy Barron and Tommy Sullivan.

Scott Cooper, Timmy Wood, Matt Jarnis, Danny Stone, Joseph Bracken, Tim Sheehan and Brian Walsh also played well.

Against Weymouth, Paul Princiotto, Manning and Eric Wood scored and Mike O'Brien, Robby Pirelli and Princiotto had assists and Danny Hughes and John Ryan played well defensively.

WEEK OF: October 26

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You are extremely intuitive but also quite secretive. You are passionate about the causes you believe in, and the coming year stresses your role in the betterment of humankind. A series of small but steady financial gains may begin in the early or middle part of 1990.

AQUARIUS - January 21 - February 19

Combine your talents with those of a clever friend and the results will be astounding. Encourage youngsters to strive harder, and be accessible to provide needed support.

PISCES - February 20 - March 20

Good week for cheering on a friend who's low in self-confidence. Meanwhile, aim as high as you can--your potential for achievement is considerable at this time.

ARIES - March 21 - April 20

Good week for making estimates, negotiating an assortment of transactions, and meeting a broad range of people who have a broad range of opinions. You excel in the role of communicator.

TAURUS - April 21 - May 22

Casual acquaintance may provide you with some valuable tips. On the homefront, it's extremely important that you be as observant as possible. New information helps you complete a project.

GEMINI - May 23 - June 21

Creative juices flow easily at this time--a wonderful week for painters, writers, or others. This is also a good time for signing on for classes in ballet, yoga, fitness, and the like.

CANCER - June 22 - July 22

You work very well with people at this time, excelling in the role of team leader. Not too early to think about winter activities, including travel and your travel companions.

LEO - July 23 - August 22

Your instincts may not always be as sharp as you believe, and it's especially important to follow a logical course right now. A string of interesting invitations arrives after the weekend.

VIRGO - August 23 - September 22

Variety is the week's byword as you embark on various projects with individuals representing different interest groups. Recent financial trends continue; look carefully at the patterns.

LIBRA - September 23 - October 22

Thursday-Sunday are favorable for projects that demand your good taste. Influential people look favorably at your recent accomplishments. Volunteer assignment may be unusually complex.

SCORPIO - October 23 - November 21

Close friend is more generous than usual, especially with his or her time. Take advantage of the situation while you can. Information arriving after the weekend requires review before you act on it.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22 - December 22

Section 87

1. Pre-blast Survey

a. For all permits issued for blasting (rock excavation) in the City of Quincy, a pre-blast survey must be made by the contractor or by an approved firm in this kind of work and satisfactory to the contractor's insurance company.

b. The pre-blast survey will include a survey of the interior and exterior of existing building and stone walls adjacent to the project as specified herein, before any excavation or blasting is done. Written approval must be secured from the Fire Chief, City Engineer and Building Inspector serving as the Committee on Blasting.

c. The survey shall record all visible structural defects such as cracks, settlement and lines out of plumb.

d. The survey data shall be recorded in a permanent manner in approved hardbound notebooks. The survey data shall include polaroid photographs showing the building construction surveyed referenced to the notebook pages. Also a tape recording of all data pertinent to the survey shall be made. The scope and format of the record survey data shall be satisfactory to the Committee on Blasting. Why the city hall boys want Peter O'Connell to shut up.

There are some things Jim Sheets and his political friends in government don't want Peter O'Connell talking to you about.

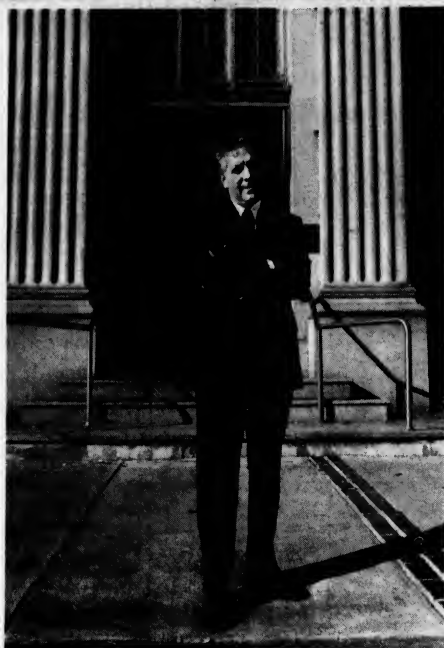

They want Peter to be quiet about problems facing Quincy.

Problems like the MWRA sludge plant now under construction. Quincy Hospital layoffs. Quincy's projected $10 million-plus budget deficit. The condition of our schools. Our beaches. Drugs.

They'd like Peter to be a "go along, get along" kind of guy.

But Peter didn't become a successful businessman by avoiding the tough ones. And he knows Quincy's problems won't be solved by sweeping them under the rug.

"Ignoring problems until it's too late has already cost Quincy too much," said Peter O'Connell.

"That's how we got the MWRA. That's why Quincy Hospital has a budget crisis."

As mayor, Peter O'Connell will tackle Quincy's problems head on. He'll apply his skills, and find innovative solutions.

And he'll shake things up at City Hall.

In fact, he already has.

O'
Peter O'Connell
For Mayor.

Let's put his success to work for us.

O'Connell Tops In Money Over $398,000 Spent So Far In Mayor's Race

Mayoral candidate Peter F. O'Connell is out-raising and out-spending his opponent James Sheets by more than 2-to-1 according to campaign financial reports filed Monday with the city's Election Department.

According to the reports, O'Connell, who is making his first run for public office, has $213,800 in receipts and $201,272 in expenditures since the campaign began early this year. Those figures do not include the $30,600 in "in kind" contributions nor the $55,737 in liabilities O'Connell's most recent report states.

Sheets, councillor of Ward 4 for 16 years, has raised $94,847 while spending $93,274.

The figures show receipts and expenditures as of this past Monday, eight days before the final election Tuesday, Nov. 7. Election laws require candidates to file financial reports eight days before the preliminary, eight days before the final election and 30 days following the final.

The totals for each candidate were figured after the numbers on the preliminary election report and the final election report were added together.

The candidates face each other in the final election Nov. 7. Sheets and O'Connell were nominated by finishing first and second respectively in the preliminary election Sept. 12th. They finished ahead of Councillor Stephen McGrath and former mayor Joseph LaRaia.

Election officials are certain this is the most expensive campaign in the city's 100-year history.

In the mayoral race alone, a grand total of $416,839 has been raised and $398,839 spent by all four candidates as of Monday. Those figures do not include liabilities.

O'Connell is first in receipts and expenditures.

Eight days before the preliminary election, O'Connell had $136,075 in receipts and $111,037 in expenditures. In the seven weeks since the preliminary, O'Connell has raised another $77,725 while spending another $120,835.

As for Sheets, he had $61,430 in receipts and $54,734 in expenditures eight days before the preliminary. During the past seven weeks, he has raised another $33,417 while spending $38,540.

For the stretch run, O'Connell has a balance of $13,828 while Sheets has $1,572.

Regarding outstanding debts, O'Connell has $30,600 worth of "in kind" donations and $55,737 in liabilities. Sheets has $300 worth of "in kind" contributions and $500 in liabilities.

O'Connell's $30,600 in "in kind" donations are listed as money the candidate loaned to himself. There are four loans: two equaling $25,000 50-50% Turnout Forecast New Mayor: Sheets Or O'Connell?

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The longest and most expensive mayoral campaign in Quincy's century-old history will be placed finally in the hands of the voters Tuesday, Nov. 7 as they decide who they want to lead the city into the 1990s.

Ward 4 Councillor James A. Sheets, 54, or Quincy businessman Peter F. O'Connell, 46, will become Quincy's first new mayor in eight years, succeeding Francis X. McCauley who decided not to seek re-election after serving four terms.

City Clerk John Gillis, who accurately predicted a 46 percent voter turnout in the Sept. 12th preliminary election, forecasts that between 50 and 55 percent of the city's 49,012 registered voters will go to the polls. Of these, 540 are new voters.

The mayor's battle is the main attraction on the Nov. 7th ballot which also features contests for city council at-large, Ward 1 and Ward 4 and School Committee.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Sheets, who has been Ward 4 councillor for 16 years, topped the preliminary election with 7,749 votes.

O'Connell, making his first bid for public office, won the second nomination with 5,903 votes, 1,846 behind Sheets.

Failing to reach the final were Councillor Stephen McGrath and former mayor Joseph LaRaia.

O'Connell will try to be the fifth second place finisher in a Quincy mayoral preliminary to turn it around to win the final. Four have in the past. (See Sunbeams column, Page 4.)

Candidates began running for office early this year and have attended dozens of political forums and debates. They have also canvassed the city, knocking on doors trying to secure votes.

According to financial reports filed Monday at the city's Election Department, this year's election is the most expensive ever. A total of $416,839 was raised and $398,839 spent as of Monday, eight days before the election.

Sample Ballot Page 21

Voters city-wide will cast ballots for mayor, three councillor-at-large seats as well as four school committee seats. The school committee race is for three, four-year terms and one, two-year seat.

In addition, there are only two ward races, one in Ward 1 and the other in Ward 4. The present councillors representing Wards 2, 3, 5 and 6 stand to be re-elected because they are running unopposed.

Because the councillor-at-large and school committee races have failed to generate wide-spread interest, Gillis predicts turnout will not reach the 60 percent mark.

"The councillor-at-large race and school committee races never caught fire," he said.

Results, to be tabulated in the Council Chamber at City Hall, should be known by 10:30 p.m. Gillis said there will be a backup vote counting machine on hand in case there are any problems.

According to Gillis, the three key "battleground areas" in the mayoral contest are Wards 2, 3 and 4. Ward 2 is home to many senior citizens who traditionally vote. Ward 3 is O'Connell's home ward while Ward 4 is Sheets' home ward.

In the preliminary, Sheets carried four wards: 2, 4, 5 and 6 while O'Connell carried Wards 1 and 3.

Baby Photo Contest Recount

A recount of the votes in the Quincy Sun-Muscular Dystrophy Association Beautiful Baby Contest shows a shift in the second, third and fourth place winners.

Robin Fidler, (No. 18) 6 months old daughter of Kim and Robert Fidler of Quincy actually finished second instead of fourth as reported last week.

Thirty votes which came in the final day of voting inadvertently were not credited to her.

Her official vote now is 281 instead of 251 and puts her in second place, 33 votes behind the winner, Kristin Dolan. (No. 13) seven month old daughter of Kelly Dolan of Quincy.

The 30 votes picked up by Robin Fidler puts her in second place ahead of Kristina Storer, No. 59, 7 month old daughter of Ronan and Susan Storer of Quincy. With 262 votes, Kristina had been thought the second place winner.

Lauren Previte, one year old daughter of Joseph and Deborah Previte of Quincy drops to fourth place rather than third. She had 260 votes.

The 30 votes picked up by Robin brings the total vote in the contest to 4,815. At $1 a vote, this represents $4,815 raised for Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The top winner as reported, will receive an 11 by 14 inch color wall portrait from McIntire's Studio, 679 Hancock St., Wollaston.

As a companion prize, a free lunch for two at Lambert's Deli and Cafe, 29 Chestnut St. will also be awarded to the winner.

Second prize, a pair of baby shoes offered by Hanlon's

Shoes, 27-B Cottage Ave., will go to Robin Fidler.

Third prize, a $25 gift certificate from A.E. Goodhue's, 13 School St., will go to Kristina Storer.

Fourth prize, a $20 gift certificate from Governor Galleries, 1442 Hancock St., will go to Lauren Previte.

Fifth prize, a $20 gift certificate from Sweets 'N Things, 1470 Hancock St., as reported, will go to fifth place winner, Joseph King, No. 28, 10 month old son of Michael and Judith King of North Weymouth who had 231 votes.

Special License Board Meeting On Restaurant Friday

By JANE ARENA

The Quincy License Board will hold a special meeting Friday at 10:30 a.m. to take action on Kelly's in the Square Restaurant, Cottage Ave., Quincy.

The meeting was scheduled after owner Peter Kelly failed to deliver copies of contract agreements with his waste disposal company and grease rendering company to the city's Public Health Department. Public Health Commissioner Jane Gallaghe said Tuesday.

The Board requested the contacts at its Oct. 24th meeting. The board sent Kelly a hand-delivered letter explaining their decision on Tuesday.

According to Gallaghe, Kelly called her office earlier in the day to say the trash pickup contract would be delivered before 4:30 p.m. but he did not mention the grease rendering contract.

However, Kelly failed to deliver any contract by 4:30 p.m. and the special meeting was called.

"The letter stated that he had to send both contracts," she noted, indicating that unless both contracts were received, the Board would go ahead with the special meeting plans.

The special "show-cause" meeting will give Kelly the opportunity to discuss why his facility should not be closed down by the licensing board, Gallaghe said.

The matter began in mid-October when the restaurant was found to be in violation of several health, fire and building codes because of an overfilled dumpster on the property.

An inspection by a fire prevention officer revealed that combustible cartons and bags of garbage were piled around the dumpster and that boxes were piled at the bottom of a stairwell blocking egress and creating a fire hazard. Investigations by the Health Department had meanwhile found the dumpster area unclean, posing a possible health hazard.

A health inspection last week showed some progress in the matter.

However, Health Inspector Ann Marie John inspected the dumpster on Tuesday of this week and told the board that there were boxes piled on top of the dumpster. She also noted flies around the area and a strong odor.

She said she was unable to tell whether the dumpster had been emptied because the gate around it was locked. She squeezed in between the gate to view the dumpster, but was unable to take photographs, she said.

The special meeting is scheduled for Friday at 10:30 a.m. in the City Council chambers at City Hall.

Board Briefs

The License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted a request from the Weymouth Boy Scouts Troop No. 92 to sell balloons and hot chocolate at the Quincy Christmas parade, subject to the approval of the police on the location of the stand.

- Postponed for three weeks a hearing on the request from William B. Calapa, of the Original Joseph's Catering and Restaurants, Inc., 273 Willard St., for a Common Victualer license for ten seats. The postponement will allow for a neighborhood meeting with Ward Four Councillor James Sheets.

Siciliano Rewarded For Finding $5,000 Radio

Quincy Civil Defense Deputy Director Tony Siciliano recently received a $100 reward for finding and returning a $5,000 portable radio to its owner.

Siciliano found a portable radio in the middle of Route 1 in Foxboro. He was able to find out the owner of the radio with the help of David Hill, communications technician for the Quincy Police Department.

A representative of EGB Construction Company, owner of the radio, insisted on giving the reward to the Civil Defense Agency, Siciliano said.

Houghs Neck Murder Under Investigation

William Donahue, 55, of Houghs Neck was found stabbed to death in his home at 55 Pawsey St at about 10 a.m. Monday. His body was discovered by his brother-in-law Thomas Foley, a Quincy dentist.

According to Quincy Police Captain David Rowell, Donahue had received multiple stab wounds to the torso, face and neck.

A kitchen knife, believed to be the murder weapon, was also found in the house, he said.

As of Tuesday afternoon, police had no suspects or a motive for the slaying.

Neighbors later told police that Donahue's car had remained in his driveway all weekend and that no trouble or disturbance had been noticed at his home.

Donahue's body was found in one of two bedrooms in the house.

Foley, who owns the house came to check on Donahue after receiving a call from the Fletcher School in Cambridge where has Donahue taught fifth grade for over nine years. School principal Marilyn McGinn called Donahue when he failed to arrive for school Monday. When she got no answer, she called Foley.

Foley reportedly knocked on both the front and the back doors of the house and when he got no answer, he borrowed a ladder from a neighbor to look inside a bedroom window in the rear of the house, where he saw the body.

A firefighter who was on the street checking a hydrant helped Foley gain access to the house, Rowell said.

Donahue's body was taken to the Southern Mortuary in Boston on Monday where an autopsy was to be performed Tuesday by Medical Examiner Dr. Peter Leahy.

Neighbors described Donahue as an outgoing man who was well-liked.

McGinn said that Donahue was also well-liked by his students at the school.

75% Of Chamber Businesses Favor Old Colony Restoration

Nearly 75 percent of businesses responding to a recent South Shore Chamber of Commerce survey favor restoration of Old Colony railroad service on all three lines, including the Middleboro, Plymouth and Greenbush lines.

They also support construction of a new Neponset river Bridge, the survey shows.

Almost 29 percent of the entire Chamber membership responded to the one-page survey which was compiled to assist the Old Colony Rail Task Force and the Board of Directors in their deliberations concerning commuter rail restoration.

The survey does not constitute a Chamber position, but it does express the views of members who responded.

Chamber President F. Richard O'Connor said, "The Board of Directors felt it was important to get a true feeling by the members of their views of commuter rail restoration. This is an especially important issue to the South Shore."

O'Connor noted the trend of this survey compared to a survey conducted two years ago. "Two years ago, the Chamber did a transportation survey. Twenty-six percent of our members responded and of that number, 65 percent were in favor of restoration on all three lines.

"This time we have 29 percent of the membership responding and 74.5 percent favoring restoration on all three lines."

Survey results will be examined by the Old colony Rail Task Forces, created by the Chamber over a year ago to look at the issues on the Greenbush line. During that time, the Task Force has looked at financing for the entire project, and has listened to reports on how buses and boats might be impacted with restoration on all three lines.

The Chamber Board of Directors will seek input from the Old Colony Rail Task Force before adopting a policy on Greenbush restoration. The board has previously taken a position of support for both the Middleboro and Plymouth lines and the construction of a new Neponset River bridge.

The survey included questions on all three lines, the Middleboro line, the Plymouth line, the Greenbush line; Transportation Systems Management, Transfer Alternative, Dedicated Busway and No Build.

The survey also questioned where members live and where they commute to.

Pageant Field, Faxon Park Closed To Cars Friday

Although Pageant Field in Merrymount Park and Faxon Park in South Quincy have remained open through the month of October because of the unusually warm weather, the two popular areas will be closed for the winter Friday, Nov. 3, according to Raymond C. Cattaneo, executive director, Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments.

The gates are locked annually in November to bar motor vehicles from the parks and to protect the turf and ballfields from dirt bikes that cause deep ruts on the playing surface.

Since the closing of the city dump three years ago, these two areas have been used for illegal dumping and abandoned cars. In many incidents, vehicles have been tottering killing health trees in the vicinity of the fire.

The Police Department has been provided keys for the gates and will conduct periodic checks of the sites as will the Park Department work crews.

Persons wishing to use either of the parks at this time for walking or jogging may park their vehicles near the entrance gates and walk in.

An estimated 15,000 persons have utilized the two locations for field days, outings, baseball and softball games from the middle of April through the month of October.

Anyone seeing any vehicle other than a city vehicle in the parks should notify the Police or Park Department immediately.

Schools Tighten Attendance Policy

The Quincy School Committee has enacted a policy amendment to deal with truancy.

Truancy is the willful and deliberate staying away from school. It is a problem with a relatively small number of students; yet, it is a troublesome matter for teachers and administrators.

Acting on recommendations proposed by School Committee member Frank Santoro; Mr. Arthur Woodward, Director of Secondary Education, and School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci, prepared a draft of a policy amendment to combat truancy. The School Committee unanimously approved it at the regular meeting Oct. 18.

While truancy is a suspension offense, the new policy requires that additional procedures be engaged to attempt to get to the cause of truancy.

The new procedures are:
1. Any student who has an unexcused absence will be considered truant.
2. Any student who reaches a total of three days or six half days of unexcused absences in one semester will be addressed by the guidance staff.
3. If a student has six days or twelve half days of unexcused absences in a semester, the student and a parent or guardian will appear before an administrative team made up of system-level and building-level administrators. The membership of the administrative team would be designated by the Office of the Superintendent. The administrative team could recommend options as given in item no. 4 below; or, could recommend referral to the Courts or to the School Committee for action.

4. If a student continues a pattern of truancy, possible solutions will include such options as:

- Modification of the school day.
- Alternative programs.
- Services provided by mental health agencies.
- Assistance provided by human services agencies.

5. If the student with a record of truancy is allowed to remain in school past the six unexcused absences in the semester, upon seven full days or 14 half days of truancy in the semester, the truancy matter will be brought to the Superintendent for review. The Superintendent may refer the matter to the School Committee with a recommendation for action. School Committee action could include long-term suspension, exclusion (expulsion), voluntary withdrawal from school, or, for those of mandatory school age, bringing the truancy matter to court for legal action.

4 Seconds Made First

The question: Can the second place finisher in a mayoral preliminary election go on to win it in the final?

Answer: The odds might not favor it. But it can be done. And has been done — four times.

And one of those times has a comparable voter margin difference as this year's preliminary election results.

First time the preliminary election loser turned it around was, ironically, the first year the city instituted preliminary elections in 1926.

That year, Charles Ross topped Thomas McGrath in the preliminary election 4,549 to 3,918. In the final, McGrath won it 9,448 to 8,982.

Incidentally, that was the start of one of Quincy's all-time great political rivalries. The pair ran against one another for mayor four times. It was a draw, each winning twice.

The second time a mayoral preliminary election second place finisher won it all in the final was in a 1935 special election after Ross left office in mid-term.

BURGIN

Leo Mullin edged Thomas Burgin 4,997 to 4,695 in the preliminary. But in the final, Burgin was an easy winner, 15,056 to 10,141.

In 1942, Myron Lane, who later became Norfolk County district attorney, led Ross in the preliminary election 4,807 to 4,478. But Ross came back in the final to take it 11,265 to 9,846.

The fourth and last time mayoral preliminary election results were turned around was in the 1975 brawl between incumbent Walter Hannon and challenger Joseph LaRaia.

Hannon took the preliminary 10,403 to 8,492. In the final — or what everyone thought was the final — Hannon won by 134 votes — 17,060 to 16,926. But a controversial recount showed LaRaia the actual winner by 483 votes — 17,231 to 16,748.

Peter O'Connell could take heart in that 1975 preliminary as he attempts to overcome James Sheets in this year's final election.

McGRATH

ROSS

In 1975 Hannon's lead over LaRaia in the preliminary election was 1,911 with LaRaia finally winning it by 483.

Hannon's preliminary election lead over LaRaia is similar to Sheets' lead over O'Connell in this year's preliminary election. Sheets' margin was 1,846 — 65 votes less than Hannon's preliminary election lead over LaRaia.

Of course, the LaRaia-Hannon campaign was an emotionally charged one whereas the Sheets-O'Connell race has been much more serene with jabbing but no real round-house swings. That election and this year's are not have much in common but the similar figures are interesting.

Whether O'Connell can do what four other mayoral candidates have done will be known Nov. 7.

EARLY REQUESTS FOR absentee ballots would seem to indicate voter interest is beginning to heat up in the final election.

BURKE

Over 400 absentee ballots would already been requested or obtained reports Asst. City Clerk Tom Burke. And some have already been cast.

Those who have gone into City Hall to mark their absentee ballots are people who will be travelling or somewhere absentee ballots cannot be delivered to them by mail.

"It's a good indicator that interest in the election is building," says Burke.

City Clerk John Gillis is forecasting a 50-to-55 percent voter turnout. He expects the final results in by 10:30 p.m.

YOU MIGHT SAY O'Connell has taken an early lead. Among those casting an absentee ballot was Gerry Coletta, administrative aide to Dist. Atty. William Delahunt.

Coletta, who will be on a trip between now and election day, marked his ballot and announced to those present: "Here's a vote for Peter O'Connell."

POLITICAL OBSERVERS SEEM to agree that the closest contest on the ballot will be for the Ward 4 City Council seat. They're calling it a toss-up between contenders Tom Fabrizio and Joseph Sheets.

Readers Forum Thanks LWV For Mary Gossard Lecture

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
On behalf of the Quincy Public Schools I wish to thank and to commend the League of Women Voters for their sponsorship of the Mary C. Gossard Lecture which focussed upon "Promising Initiatives in Public Education."

Dr. Sherry H. Penney's Keynote address was excellent and the responses of Harold Reynolds (Commissioner of Education), Robert Ricci (Superintendent of Schools), Thomas Walsh (Quincy Education Association), and Peter Griswold (Citywide Parents Advisory Council) provided broad and insightful perspectives. In her usual fashion, Ruth Paven moderated the evening with distinction.

To have all the constituencies of the community come together in the historic and beautiful Church of the Presidents for such an occasion was inspiring and renewing.

Congratulations to Mary Quinn and the Lecture Committee for their hard work and vision in making such a high quality program available.

East German Legal Delegation Visits Here

A judge from the Supreme Court of East Germany headed a four-member delegation of legal experts which visited the Quincy District Court yesterday (Wednesday).

Supreme Court Justice Rudi Beckert; Gerhard Schreiber, a former member of the United Nations Secretariat and presently the chairman of East Germany's Office of International Civil Law; Karl-Heinz Roder, the acting director of the Institute of State and Law of the East German Academy of Science and Erhard Poppe, a professor of Constitutional and Administrative Law, are on a three-week tour of the United States. The tour was sponsored by the U.S. State Department.

During their visit to Quincy, the group was accompanied by Susanna Fox, a state department escort officer.

Assistant Clerk-Magistrate James Foley, who coordinated the visit, said the East Germans had expressed an interest in observing the management and operation of a community court. Quincy was chosen because of its reputation as an innovative court and because it has previously sponsored other programs for visitors from Europe and Africa.

The group met with Presiding Justice Albet Kramer, Judge Lewis Whitman, Assistant Attorney General Timothy Spillane, clerk-magistrates, probation officers and local attorneys. They also observed a criminal trial.

The State Department hopes the visit will open up channels for future exchanges for information between the United States and East Germany.

57 Years Ago

The count was Hoover 16,855, Roosevelt 12,256 in Quincy, where a record 30,266 voters went to the polls.

HERO'S REWARD

John Murray Lennerton of 68 Upland Rd., Quincy Center, an unemployed chauffeur, was recommended for a Carnegie Medal after he rescued two persons from drowning and saved six horses from a burning barn.

Lennerton, who can't swim, jumped into Black's Creek in July to bring ashore a 14-year-old girl and in February he plunged into Boston's Fort Point Channel to save an 11-year-old boy.

Then, in August, he risked his life to guide six horses to safety when they were trapped in a burning stable owned by Dr. E. Murray Britton of West Quincy.

FLAVIN RESIGNS

City Councillor John P. Flavin's resignation was allowed to stand despite the Council's refusal to accept, so he could become a state rep. without holding two jobs.

Dr. George Salem Opens New Dental Office In Braintree

Recently, Dr. George Salem has opened a new, state of the art dental office at 400 Washington St., in Braintree Sq.

It is called The South Shore Institute For Dental Health. Dr. Salem is a General Dentist whose practice concentrates on esthetic and cosmetic dentistry. That is, dental treatment which restores or enhances the beauty of one's teeth and smile. Dr. Salem noted that porcelain veneers, crowns, bonding and bleaching are examples of this type of treatment. He said that although his practice provides conventional dental care (cleanings by a hygienist, silver fillings, crowns and bridges--), he would like the people of Braintree and the South Shore to modern, effective esthetic and cosmetic dentistry may be obtained in his practice.

Dr. Salem pointed out that many dentists proved esthetic and cosmetic dentistry to varying degrees, he is not the only one.

"It is truly exciting to provide this type of care", he said. "The effects of giving someone a beautiful smile can be profound. The changes in one's self-image, self-esteem and confidence are a joy to see. To make people feel better about themselves and happier because of it gives me the greatest satisfaction."

Dr. Salem has been published in the Journal of Prosthetic Dentistry and has been asked to write a chapter in an upcoming dental textbook. He holds the position of Assistant Clinical Professor at the Tufts University School of Dental Medicine. Dr. Salem is a member of the Academy of General Dentistry and the Northeastern Prosthodontic Society.

MIKE CHENEY HAS WORKED HARD TO PRODUCE POSITIVE RESULTS FOR THE PEOPLE OF QUINCY

MIKE CHENEY FOUGHT THE MWRA AND WON

Mike Cheney works with thousands of Quincy residents to prevent the siting of the primary and secondary sewerage treatment plant at Nut Island ... but he didn't stop there ... Mike Cheney continued his fight for Nut Island with the MWRA to win over 6.5 million dollars in concessions. Mike Cheney has proven that hard work does produce results when you deal with an agency like the MWRA.

MIKE CHENEY BELIEVES IT'S TIME TO GIVE SOMETHING BACK TO THE PEOPLE.

THIS IS WHY HE WORKED SO HARD TO MAKE THE TIDEMILL PROJECT ON THE SOUTHERN ARTERY A REALITY. IT BRINGS BACK AN HISTORIC CAROUSEL FOR ALL OF US TO ENJOY.

POSITIVE RESULTS ARE ALWAYS THE PRODUCT OF HARD WORK

Mike Cheney worked as a member of the Zoning Task Force to introduce zoning changes that protect our neighborhoods from overdevelopment. Mike worked as the founder of the Citywide Human Relations Committee to protect the rights of all the people in our community. Mike worked to strengthen the Conservation Enforcement Laws to help protect our environment and open spaces areas and Mike worked to bring back the idea of a Community School that promotes life long education by establishing the Snug Harbor Community School.

Ask MIKE CHENEY what's so good about this picture and he will tell you ... Before it became a popular thing to do, MIKE CHENEY started the process of rezoning hundreds of acres as open space. Preserving the environment by protecting our open space areas is important to our future ...

Residents Urged To Fight Waste Incinerator Proposal

Bryan Sindorf of Quincy United for the Environment told members of the Wollaston Park Association attending the group's recent 33rd annual Dinner Meeting at the Hollow Restaurant that Quincy is "under siege" and its residents are at serious health risk from the industries already polluting the Fore River basin.

Furthermore, the threat to residents of all ages will increase dramatically if the Clean Harbors' hazardous waste incinerator is permitted in East Braintree coupled with the noxious emissions from the MWRA's sludge treatment plant now being built, Sindorf said.

In addition, he urged Quincy residents not to let this happen, saying a barrage of telephone calls to the governor, Environmental Affairs Secretary John DeVillars, city officials as well as state senators and representatives could impress on them that Quincy residents prefer the incinerator be sited in some remote area not within a two-mile radius from any residential area.

Sindorf also said callers could tell officials that Quincy will not stand still and permit outside interests (business and political) to callously affect the health and welfare of residents and quality of life.

In other Association news, Richard Lockhead of 106 Willow St., was re-elected president. Other chair officers re-elected were: Dominic Fickett, 55 The Stand, vice president; and Dorothy C. Kelly, 108 David St., secretary-treasurer.

Directors re-elected were: Vito A. Barresi, 36 Rawson Rd.; Alice J. Delaney, 116 Davis St.; Madeline Falchetta, 55 The Strand; William M. Macdonald, 74 Copley St.; Eleanor Sharkey, 36 Briggs St. and Ruth Baker Porter, 165 Rice Rd.

John Keenan of 83 Lincoln St., was elected to the Board of Directors, replacing Benjamin Rudner who has moved to Florida.

The Association is conducting a membership drive and invites voting Wollaston residents interested in joining the group to call Colleen Lockhead at 471-1774.

Caryn Smith and John Keenan are also members of the membership Committee.

Paid for by the Committee to Elect Susan Gallagher

WHEN IT COMES TO THE ISSUES OF WARD FOUR... Joe Shea, is no stranger to...

DEVELOPMENT

During the past twenty years, overdevelopment of Ward Four has seriously threatened the quality of life in our community.

- I will propose that all commercial and multi residential developments in Ward Four come to an end until proper sewage and drainage systems are in place.
- I will propose that Ward Four be rezoned.
- I will call for closer inspection and compliance with City, State and Federal building regulations.

TRAFFIC

Many of our streets are now impassable during peak traffic hours. This has become a dangerous safety hazard to the drivers and the residents that live in these highly traveled areas.

- I will work with the City of Quincy to develop and implement a master traffic plan.
- I will request stricter enforcement of the parking ordinances in Ward Four.
- I will work towards a better working relationship between Ward Four residents and the City of Quincy traffic engineer.

EDUCATION

As we move into the 1990's our school system will be forced to deal with a wide range of fiscal pressures. In order to combat this fiscal crunch, we will have to offer new solutions to help our school system maintain its high standards.

- As your councillor, I will serve as a liaison between the business community and the school system to develop a privately funded drug education program along with various vocational programs.
- I will call for a complete inspection of the physical plant of all school buildings on an annual basis.
- I will fight to see that our tax dollars are spent wisely to assure quality education for our city's children.

FLOODING

In the past twenty years parts of Ward Four have sustained horrendous water damage, due to an overburdened drainage system. Our solutions must be swift to prevent any further loss to our neighbors.

- I will call for the immediate implementation of most of the 1976 Army Corps of Engineers Study.
- I will open communication with our city's legislative delegation to free nine million dollars specifically earmarked for Furnace Brook Basin improvements that is available through the capital improvement portion of the Transportation Bond Issue.

- I will work to insure a better working relationship between the City of Quincy and the MDC in the Furnace Brook area.

Working Women Group Endorses O'Connell

Saying he has the knowledge and capability to effectively manage the city, a group of Quincy's working women gathered outside City Hall Monday to publicly endorse Peter F. O'Connell for mayor.

"On the issues of education, child care, women's rights, health care and balancing the budget, Peter O'Connell will be the mayor for Quincy's working women," said Joanne Condon, a former city councillor.

Speaking before some 100 women at McIntyre Mall, Condon cited O'Connell's stands on issues important to women and their families.

"Whether in the workforce or working at home, or both, Quincy's working women know that Peter O'Connell stands with them. That's why we stand with him today," Condon said.

Condon, citing her eight years experience overseeing the city's budget, stressed O'Connell's strengths as a manager "and someone who knows how to stretch a buck."

"It's women who balance the family checkbook. We know how important a balanced budget is."

"With a deficit of $10 million or more facing Quincy, we need the best management skills available. That's Peter O'Connell," Condon said.

"Without Peter O'Connell's skilled financial management, all of our goals will suffer. We'll have teacher, police and firefighter layoffs, closed libraries, deteriorating parks and streets."

On education, Mary Collins, vice chairwoman of the Quincy School Committee, praised O'Connell's "innovative approach to problems facing our schools." "Peter is committed. He came up the hard way and knows that education is the key to success. But more importantly, he's come up with innovative, effective solutions to problems using the talents of teachers, students, parents, administrators and the mayor himself," Collins said.

Maureen Spillane, a nurse at Quincy Hospital, said O'Connell's management skills were desperately needed to keep the hospital healthy in its current fiscal crisis.

"As mothers, wives, as people with older parents, we know the need for local quality health care. Peter O'Connell's the one for the job," Spillane said.

Mrs. Sheila McIntyre, wife of the late former mayor James McIntyre, praised O'Connell's many charitable and civic works in the past as examples of "the quality of this man's character, the kindness he doesn't talk about himself." She mentioned his work with Father Bill's Place, a homeless shelter in Quincy, and with the Catholic Charities.

O'Connell was also endorsed by Nancy Powers, who runs Father Bill's Place. She said the shelter could never have been built without O'Connell's help, and praised his assistance in creating a shelter for battered women.

O'Connell voiced his commitment of equal rights for all women, particularly in the area of employment. He said he was fortunate to have had many extremely competent women in responsible positions in his company.

"In the traditionally male-dominated construction business, I learned the enormous contributions women can make. They gave me an edge, and helped make my business successful."

"I want to bring the 1990s to City Hall. I'll do that by bringing women into City Hall."

If elected, O'Connell said he would bring women to positions of responsibility in Quincy government and appoint a high ranking woman in his office. "I'd be foolish not to," he added.

5 Quincy Hunger Relief Centers Receive $50,500 From Project Bread

Five Quincy-based hunger relief centers received a combined $50,500 in grants from Project Bread during a recent ceremony in Boston City Hall.

The ceremony celebrated the recent 20th anniversary of the Walk for Hunger in which 35,000 people participated in a 20-mile anti-hunger trek through Boston, Brookline, Newton and Cambridge.

In all, 218 state hunger relief programs were awarded a record $2 million in grants from the Project Bread effort. The money is used to feed hungry women, men and children.

Quincy centers and the grant totals they received are:

- Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., $15,000.
- DOVE, Inc., $11,000.
- Mary-Martha Learning Center, $7,500.
- Quincy Crisis Center, $17,000.

This year's walk featured the most participants and the most money raised than ever before.

"In 20 short years, the Walk for Hunger has experienced incredible growth in response to the growing problem of hunger which has now reached epidemic proportions in Massachusetts," said Sohsana Pakciarz, executive director of Project Bread.

"Recent data indicates that half a million people in Massachusetts live at or below the poverty line with an average income of just $11,000 per year for a family of four.

"Families with children constitute the fastest growing segment of the hungry. More than 17,000 Massachusetts children under the age of six suffer malnutrition," Pakciarz noted.

The hunger relief funds are funneled into local soup kitchens, food pantries and shelter feeding programs.

Mary Brelsford of Quincy Community Action Center said, "We see working families come through our door every day who are struggling to make ends meet, but who just cannot. The Walk for Hunger grant enables us to help these individuals by providing food during their difficult times.

Mayor Raymond Flynn and MDC Commissioner Ilyas Bhatti congratulated the recipients.

Gasoline, Oil Storage Increase Approved

The License Board Tuesday granted a request from Carlos Davis, representing P.R. Ayoub of Ayoub Engineering, Inc., to increase the storage of gasoline, waste oil and fuel oil at the Shell Oil service station at 8 Franklin St.

Davis told the board that plans are to increase the total storage capacity to 38,000. The storage will consist of three 12,000 gallon gasoline storage tanks, and two 1,000 gallon storage tanks for waste oil and fuel oil.

He said the new tanks will be double-walled fiberglass tanks and will be equipped with an alarm system in the event of a leak.

When the existing tanks are removed, Davis noted, the Fire Chief will be present in the event that the soil is contaminated. If there is contaminated soil, it will be removed according to city and state regulations, Davis said.

Alex Kehane, who owns property at 9-11 Phipps St., adjacent to the gas station, was before the board to request that a time limit be placed on the hours that work can be done at the station. He also requested that a buffer zone be put between the gas station and the residential property near it.

Building Commissioner Matthias Mulvey noted that there are existing city ordinances to cover both requests. Mulvey said that Ayoub is a reputable firm and will surely adhere to the ordinances.

Davis assured the board and Kehane that he would review the ordinances and follow through on them.

Female Vo-Tech Students Attend Technology Program

Female students enrolled in vocational programs at Quincy Vocational Technical School recently participated in a special day at Wentworth Institute called Women in Technology.

Marie Hurley, assistant director at Quincy Voc-Tech, said the experience will be invaluable to expose females to higher education and to develop an increasing awareness that their gender does not prohibit them from entering the field of their choice. "Anything we can do to build confidence in our female students is a plus," she stated, adding that too often the opportunities in life seem to be geared toward males.

Hurley, who authored a directory of women in Massachusetts who work in non-traditional jobs, accompanied the 25 students Oct. 18, to the Boston Technical College. Of special interest, she said, the areas of fiber optics, computers and construction management.

The New Mayor: Sheets Or O'Connell?

(Cont'd from Page 1)

The breakdown is:
 • Ward 1: 1,135 for O'Connell, 1,104 for Sheets.
 • Ward 2: 1,027 for Sheets, 976 for O'Connell.
 • Ward 3: 1,319 for O'Connell, 1,302 for Sheets.

 O'Connell, who lives at 40 Hatherly Rd., is alphabetically listed first on the ballot. Sheets, of 926 Furnace Brook Parkway, is listed second.
 The councillor-at-large race features five candidates, including two incumbents. They are:
 Timothy P. Cahill, 23 Summer St. and Patricia M. Toland, 82 Cedar St., both candidates for re-election; Michael T. Cheney, 94 Rock Island Rd., Susan Gallaher, 21 Willow St. and Denis F. Tardo, 141 Sea St.
 Cheney, Ward 1 councillor the past five years, decided to run for councillor-at-large this year.
 Six candidates are running for the three, four-year seats on the School Committee. They are:

 Incumbents Mary P. Collins, 116 Lansdowne St. and Frank C. Santoro, 80 Haviland St.; and first-time candidates Judith F. Brams, 107 Atlantic St., Richard Crespi, 73 Ruggles St., Gary D. Fine, 88 Lancaster St., and Ronald Mariano, 57 Presidential Dr.

Also qualifying for the final were Brams with 4,686 votes, Fine with 4,643 and Crespi with 4,494.

The race for the two-year School Committee seat finds Mary "Jane" Powers of 16 Roberta Ln., against Charles T. Sweeney of 49 Ames St., a former School Committee-man.

The winner will fill a vacancy on the committee created by the death of longtime member Christopher Kennedy last July.

The Ward 1 contest is between Peter Kolson of 215 Palmer St., and Marcia L. Olinto of 8 Bay View Ave.

In Ward 4, Thomas A. Fabrizio, 36 Reardon St., is running against Joseph P. Shea, 55 Tinson Rd.

Besides the races, voters will be asked to vote yes or no on a non-binding referendum question. It asks, "Do you favor the construction of a hazardous waste incinerator in the city of Quincy or in any of the towns abutting Quincy?"

The question was put on the ballot after a petition was filed by political activists opposed to a proposal by Clean Harbors, Inc., of Braintree, for a rotary kiln hazardous waste incinerator in the Fore River industrial basin near the East Braintree-Quincy line.

Councillors running unopposed are:

Theodore P. DeCristofaro, 17 Murdock Ave., Ward 2; Lawrence F. Chretien, 51 North Central Ave., Ward 3; Charles J. Phelan Jr., 26 Kemper St., Ward 5; and Thomas J. Nutley, 235 Billings St., Ward 6.

'My Goals As Quincy's Next Mayor'

The Quincy Sun invited Peter F. O'Connell and James A. Sheets, the two mayoral finalists, to state in their own words what their major goals are and what they would do to accomplish them if elected mayor.

Each was given up to 1,500 words. Here in the order in which their names appear on the Nov. 7th final election are their responses to the theme: "My Goals and How I Would Accomplish Them As Quincy's Next Mayor."

By PETER F. O'CONNELL

In the course of the campaign, many people have asked me why I am running for mayor. But the question was not framed in the sense of why was I motivated to run for a high and noble public office. Rather, it was asked as, why on earth would I want to subject myself to the controversy and public scrutiny that political candidates and public officials find themselves in this day and age.

I take exception to that. Sure, I don't need to run for mayor. But I want to run for mayor. It is an American Dream and, to me, an American obligation.

I grew up in a family that taught me that I should give something back. I believe I am here to help others and to share my skills and abilities.

I also have enough experience and confidence to believe that I have something to offer as mayor of Quincy. I say that sincerely, not to sound overconfident or cocky.

So, my first goal is to bring the kind of success I have had in my business career to the mayor's office. To carry this city forward into the 1990's. To bring hope, pride, and prosperity to my friends and neighbors throughout the city.

I will accomplish this by successfully managing and resolving all of the key issues I've listed below.

Budget Deficit Crisis

The most critical issue facing the incoming mayor is the $10 to $13 million deficit. My goal is to immediately attend to it to return this city to sound fiscal management.

My first step will be to bring together a coalition of business people, union representatives, citizens and members of the financial community, perhaps Frank McCauley himself, if he is willing, to recommend ways to get the most from the taxpayers' dollars.

I will also begin negotiations with the MWRA on a fair compensation package for having the sludge treatment facility in the city. This will bring in sorely needed revenue that the city can put to good use.

I will not — as my opponent advocates — waste taxpayers' dollars in further futile litigation against the MWRA sludge plant siting. It is a ludicrous and an unnecessary expenditure to pursue litigation against the sludge plant. I can't think of a poorer use for that money. The sludge plant is being built. My opponent holds out false hope that the plant can be stopped.

But I'm a businessman, not a politician. I know what is right from a business perspective. He feels he knows what's right from the perspective of a career politician. But as a taxpayer and resident of the city, I object to this plan to waste thousands of taxpayers' dollars in litigation costs that Mayor McCauley's own legal staff says is a fruitless and useless pursuit.

Using my skills as a financial manager, I will ensure the city receives what it is owed by the state in a timely manner. I will reassess where your tax dollars are being spent so that city resources are properly allocated. I will make every effort to get the maximum efficiency and productivity from my employees. And I will actively pursue alternative, creative and innovative approaches to revenue generation.

One specific, and long ignored, revenue opportunity is to reenergize the tourism industry in the city. This is also part of my plans to revitalize downtown Quincy. With Quincy's rich historical heritage, it is a shame that the city has not taken advantage of it.

Education

I have said many times throughout my campaign that preparing and educating the children of this city for the business, economic and social realities of the 21st century is my primary goal. And I've backed that up with a promise to spend at least 50 percent of my time in office working on education related activities and issues.

Education provides the platform upon which we first learn to express ideas. It is a base from which to build success. It's a launching pad for risk taking and entrepreneurship. Most importantly, the quality of education is a measure of society itself.

In today's global economy, the United States is slipping in two key areas: technology and science. What is both sad and alarming is that the United States set the standard in these areas for many years, and now is lagging. Playing catch up in this day and age is very difficult.

Throughout my campaign, I have mentioned several possible solutions to improve the level of public education in Quincy, which I will explore once in office. They include: a return to the basics in education, longer school days, a full day on Tuesday to replace half-days, ensuring quality teachers and administrators, adding Japanese and Chinese language courses to the curriculum, and refocusing attention on technology, science and related fields.

There are other aspects of providing education, that are just as important. The physical condition of our schools, the learning tools available to our teachers and students, the core curriculum and elective courses, vocational training, and the budget the city appropriates for public schools.

From my experience as a trustee for Northeastern University, Stonehill College, and Boston College High School, I have seen the gap between public and private school education widen. And I would put all my energies to work with school administrators to halt that spread and close the gap.

MWRA

There are two issues regarding the MWRA, the sludge plant that is being built at the former shipyard and the MWRA Headquarters siting. The MWRA permanent sludge plant is here to stay. Quincy lost out on it because of the ineffectiveness of city officials in keeping it out. That is history.

I will, however, ensure the city gets the best possible mitigation package for having to live with the sewage sludge plant. I will also assure the MWRA operates and maintains the plant according to the highest and strictest standards. And I will propose legislation that will restrict the MWRA from using or siting any hazardous waste or other environmentally sensitive industry on property it owns in the shipyard.

But there is another key issue involving the City of Quincy and the MWRA, and that is where the MWRA Headquarters — and the 200-plus employees who work there — will be located.

I have personally filed a suit that has successfully blocked the MWRA Headquarters from moving its headquarters to Parcel 18 in Roxbury. I have been supported in this suit by the state's Inspector General, Joseph R. Barresi, and Attorney General, James Shannon, who agreed with my petition that the agreement the MWRA was about to sign was in violation of the state's bidding laws.

That suit is being held in abeyance while the legislative delegations from both Quincy and Roxbury attempt to reach a compromise that would stipulate moving other, as yet unnamed, state agencies as anchor tenants of the Parcel 18 development, while sending the MWRA Headquarters back to the shipyard where they will be on site with their sludge plant, where they belong.

Clean Harbors

Most residents are familiar with another environmental issue of concern, that is, the current efforts of Clean Harbors, Inc., to get state and other necessary approvals to site a hazardous waste incinerator just over the Quincy line across from the future MWRA sludge plant in the shipyard at its East Braintree facility.

My goal is to prevent the process from proceeding to the point where the city has no say in it as happened with the MWRA sludge plant. The Fore River Basin is not the place for a toxic or hazardous waste incinerator.

I will again put my skills as an effective manager to work. I am the candidate who best understands the licensing and review processes and will become involved at every level to block the incinerator.

The state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) and Hazardous Waste Facility Siting Committee (HWFSC) deadline for comments from opponents to the Clean Harbor's incinerator proposal passed October 10. I was the only candidate running for mayor to file comments during the public comment period. My letter to the DEP and the HWFSC raises serious licensing, safety, health, and transportation concerns. This is the type of active leadership I will give the citizens of Quincy as mayor.

Commuter Rail

My goal is for Quincy to benefit from the commuter railroad restoration project. I will work closely with federal, state and regional transportation people to ensure that Quincy gets the most from the project. It is currently in the preliminary planning stages. Now is the time for Quincy officials to become involved.

As mayor, I will require that Quincy receive a comprehensive package of benefits from the state for assisting in commuter rail restoration and allowing rail lines through the city. I will protect taxpayers and their investment in Quincy and in their homes.

The package will include, environmental barriers to reduce noise, landscaping to mask the existing line, strict agreements on no freight through Quincy and money included in the bond issue to fund traffic improvements in Quincy alongside the corridor.

And I will push for electrification of the rail line from Boston through Quincy to eliminate diesel emissions, ensure efficient service through the city and minimize noise.

Downtown Revitalization

My goal for revitalizing downtown Quincy focuses on getting federal funding for a National Urban Park linking Quincy City Hall, the First Parish Church, Hancock Cemetery, and McIntyre Mall.

Recently, Senator Edward M. Kennedy was in Quincy to endorse my proposal and to say he will lobby for federal funding for the project. Similar projects in Lowell and Salem have resulted in millions of dollars of improvements in those cities, bringing economic vitality to their businesses and restoring pride to the people.

This will be just the start of the process. I will also make the downtown a cleaner and safer place. And I will improve the lighting to make it brighter.

Quincy Hospital

My goal will be to restore Quincy Hospital to fiscal health by seeking additional revenues.

We can all learn something from Jim Sheets chairmanship of the City Council's Health and Hospitals Committee, which oversees Quincy Hospital. Despite receiving monthly reports that showed the hospital's deteriorating financial condition, he said he was "surprised" when he heard of the $4 million deficit, which resulted in 200 employees being laid off.

As a taxpayer, you cannot afford to let what happened to the hospital happen to this city.

The key to success in business and government is to be prepared. Prepared and able to take action as it is needed and when it is needed.

There are many other issues, such as drug treatment, crime and child care, which I will also address as mayor, but I feel the issues I've covered are the core issues the next mayor will need to focus most of his attention on. I am confident that my management, financial and personal skills can help this city through the difficult times ahead. And I ask for every voter to consider the issues and their vision of the future for the City of Quincy. And I ask for your vote on November 7.

Over $398,000 Spent So Far In Mayor's Race for advertising, a $2,000 loan to pay for rent at his headquarters and a $3,600 mailing loan.

All but $137 of O'Connell's liabilities are also listed as loans to himself. The $137 is owed to Golden Manet Press of West Quincy.

The $300 listed as "in-kind" contribution for Sheets is from John E. Hemphill of 125 Newbury Ave., Quincy, for office supplies. The $500 listed as liability is owed to the Common Market for a fundraiser function.

Of the $416,839 raised by the four mayoral candidates, O'Connell's $213,800 in receipts represent 51 percent of the total. The remaining receipt money breaks down this way: $94,847 or 23 percent from Sheets; $74,414 or 18 percent from McGrath and $33,778 or 8 percent from LaRia.

Of the $398,839 spent by the four mayoral candidates, O'Connell's $201,272 represents 50 percent of the total. The remaining expenditure money breaks down this way: $93,274 or 23 percent from Sheets; $71,139 or 18 percent from McGrath and $33,154 or nine percent from LaRia.

'My Goals As Quincy's Next Mayor'

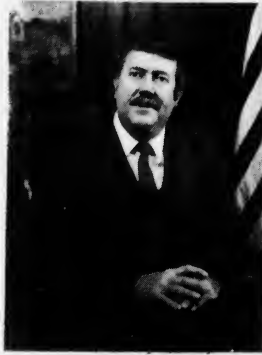

By JAMES A. SHEETS

Quincy is more than a city of bricks and mortar, more than blacktop and wood. Our city is people — families putting down roots and building memories: it is being able to say with pride, "I live in Quincy."

As a people, we have remained committed to those values that have made Quincy a beautiful city in which to live. We have maintained those ideals that have added so much enrichment to the fabric of our lives. We have worked to preserve that sense of pride which comes from our rich heritage.

Our challenge today is to be successful coping with future problems, and that is why I want to be mayor of Quincy. Together with the people of Quincy we can successfully take our city into the uncertain decade of the 1990's.

What are some of the goals we must achieve in the decade of the 90's? One such goal is that every child be educated to his or her full potential. The children of today must be educated to lead productive and meaningful lives in the 21st century. Three of my children have graduated from the Quincy Public School system and my son, Luke, attends North Quincy High School this year. Most of his life will be spent working in the 21st century.

As your mayor, I will work with parents, teachers, administrators, and the school committee to ensure that we continue providing quality education to all students and that every child in our school system be educated to his or her full potential.

To accomplish this mission, we must strengthen parent-teacher organizations. We must continually evaluate our curriculum to ensure that our students are graduating from high school with an adequate knowledge base, the necessary basic skills, the ability to think critically, and with a value system that stresses the work ethic. The learning environment in our schools must include properly maintained buildings and facilities, and each child must be assured of books and supplies as each educational program demands.

Another major goal is environmental purity. We must meet the challenge of keeping our environment pure and clean. This means continuing to battle against both the sludge and the toxic waste incineration facility at Clean Harbors. We must fight.

Another major goal in the 1990's will be to control over-development. Development must be brought under control and kept under control. We are a city of communities where people live and raise families. They must be protected from the side effects of development such as increases in traffic. We must look at rezoning our city in order to protect neighborhoods: making present zoning ordinances more strict; and, downscaling those projects which can be built as a matter of zoning right. We must also purchase and preserve as much open space as possible. We must control our own destiny when it comes to development and not allow it to be controlled by developers.

Keeping Quincy an affordable place to live must be another goal. We must not override proposition 2½ least the tax burden become too great for our citizens — especially our seniors on fixed retirement incomes who want to stay in their homes. We must be sensitive to provide for those who have provided so well for us in the past.

These and other goals await us in the decades ahead, such as keeping our city clean and beautiful, controlling traffic, caring for the homeless, dealing with flooding and sewer surcharge problems, and ensuring a strong and vibrant city hospital to serve all our citizens.

I believe my 16 years of service on the city council, my experience as city council president and chairman of many council committees; my experience serving in the state legislature; and 26 years of teaching many of your sons and daughters, friends and neighbors about how government works, uniquely qualifies me to understand the people of this city and its problems and lead Quincy into the decade of the 1990's.

Cerasoli Wants Consultant, Service Provider Accounts Cut Back

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli of Quincy has advocated the continued down-sizing of state government predicting that one billion dollars in reductions will have to be found in order to avoid an additional tax increase or more bonding to delay payment.

Cerasoli recommended the House Committee on Ways and Means, in its present line-item fiscal review, focus on consultant and service provider accounts known publicly as 03s and 07s, as areas that could be pruned "with a minimum of anguish." The 07s, or purchase of service contracts, are part of the $3.5 billion dollar laboratory, medical and general care account, second largest item in the state budget. 07s alone, total approximately $1 billion dollars in state funding.

The Quincy/Weymouth legislator pointed out that 1,200 private providers, mostly non-profit corporations, provide services for this $1 billion dollars, and employ thousands of employees who operate outside the cover of state ethics laws. Cerasoli added that 3,800 of the highest paid employees represent approximately ten percent of the total 07 money or about $100 million dollars.

"These people are, for all practical purposes, state employees but they are paid much higher salaries than state employees," stated Cerasoli, who is chairman of the House Committee on Post Audit and Oversight. "I would recommend a 30 percent cut of the 07 account which alone would save $300 million dollars."

Cerasoli said that information from the Post Audit Committee's investigative bureau disclosed the Commonwealth employs approximately 26,000 03 contractors, representing $365 million dollars annually. "There is little accountability from these individuals," testified Cerasoli, "since their contracts place them outside the state public bidding process and state ethics laws! My recommendation would be to terminate immediately 75 percent of the 03 accounts and, if nothing else, we might at least find out if the state is getting its money's worth. Let them come forth and justify their robust salaries and hefty budgets!"

According to Cerasoli, 03s and 07s were created to provide services that state employees could not furnish. They were hired from the ranks of private business to supposedly operate specialized branches of government more cheaply and efficiently than state bureaucracy. Neither of these developments took place, charged Cerasoli. "Not only are these contractors paid substantially higher salaries than state employees," reported Cerasoli. "But they are also given other perks to compensate for those benefits they would have received if they were state employees, like health insurance and pension plans. The state has, in effect, over compensated for a job poorly done and the time has arrived to correct this costly and draining situation."
